WAR TO BE TO THE FINISH WITHOUT HOPE OF A COMPROMISE, DECLARES FERRERO

Distinguished Historian Can See No Hope of Peace Except by the Total Exhaustion of One Side.

Nations Proud of Their Enlightenment Uncomplainingly Have Reverted to Medieval Conditions.

By Guglielmo Ferrero.

The Distinguished Italian Historian.

NOT only the internal concord of which the different European nations have given proof since the very beginning of the war has seemed a miracle, but their spirit of sacrifice has caused even greater surprise. Millions of men are dead; millions are wounded and mutilated; millions have lost all of their worldly goods. There are millions of widows and orphans in Europe. But none has yet complained or called for peace. An epoch accused by moralists of giving itself up to pleasure and selfishness has suddenly become stoic and heroic.

When a surprise occurs in history, something really unlooked for, it is necessary to go far back into history to seek for the causes. The so-called miracles are prepared little by little by the slow, silent work of time. And the origin of these surprises—or miracles, if you would so call them—must be looked for in the upheaval that during the last two centuries has changed the course of history in Europe, changing life's very aims and reasons.

In what did this upheaval consist? And as it is not possible to understand what is now going on in Europe without first clearly comprehending this, I shall try to explain as briefly as possible. Up to the eighteenth century, in all times and in all countries, the social order was founded on two principles: That human nature was bad and our many bad instincts had to be held in check, and that wealth was not an end, but a means. It is, of course, true that in past centuries men schemed to increase their possessions, but they did so almost in a hidden fashion, speaking as little about it as possible, and fearing the fatal effects that riches could exercise on the weakness of human nature. Wealth did not seem to be desirable for itself alone, but only inasmuch as it furnished the state and individuals with means to better curb men's bad inclinations, that is, by serving political, artistic and religious aims, by reinforcing the state and its institutions, to enlist armies, to buy arms, erect magnificent monuments, promote study, protect art and letters, help churches, erect convents, succor the poor, the sick, the unfortunate, etc.

WORLD'S IDEALS OF LIVING HAVE UNDERGONE COMPLETE REVOLUTION

THE eighteenth and nineteenth centuries overthrew this conception of life. From 200 years ago up to our time men have persuaded themselves that human nature is good, and they may, therefore aspire to liberty; and wealth has become an end—the end. True, the people of our time still write and read books, paint, model, go to church, study philosophy and other sciences. Their idea, however, in increasing their fortunes is not to spend their money for the fine arts, religion and study, but to have greater means of developing agriculture, industry and commerce, to produce new riches, increase the industries and commerce that already flourish and start other new ones; cultivate new lands, discover new mines, explore uninhabited and wild regions for new founts of riches; open up new markets to manufacture and sell annually increasing quantities of merchandise; invent more powerful machines of greater velocity—that's what our epoch wants and what it strives for.

How this great change occurred is not possible to tell in a few pages. It was an immense revolution. The writer who will write the history of it in a worthy manner will enrich literature with an immortal masterpiece. Many are the causes that have combined to effect this change: The discovery of America, the exploration of the earth's surface entire, the reconstruction of the great states, the progress of the physical sciences, the steam engines, fossil coal, electricity, railroads, the liberal ideas and philosophy of the eighteenth century that first affirmed that human nature was good, the American Revolution, the French Revolution, the great wars and minor revolutions of the nineteenth century.

Little by little, through the workings of those great events, those marvelous discoveries, that audacious philosophy, man convinced himself that he could trust his own instincts and those of his kind, and so he need not fear to aspire to be free; he became aware he could create instruments to conquer the earth and its treasures, and so from generation to generation for the last century and a half he has more and more resolutely opposed two ideals—liberty and the conquest of the earth by [illegible] and fire—to all the ideals of the preceding generations—beauty, sanctity, glory, heroism, honor, charity.

WORLD'S SOUL HAS CHANGED AS RESULT OF GROWTH OF LIBERTY

BUT if the causes of this great change were numerous, complicated, intricate, the effects, which interest us more, were simple and evident in their greatness. The world's soul has changed. Many differences of opinion and faith that in the past were the causes of hatred and fierce strife in Europe have been gradually fading away in the last century. To be sure, Catholics and Protestants, laymen and priests, the working classes and the bourgeoise, or middle class, the bourgeoise and the nobles, the educated and the ignorant, people who understand art and people who are blind to beauty, people who are refined and people who are coarse, conservatives and liberals, monarchists and republicans, still exist today in Europe as they did a century ago. But all the differences that caused so much trouble in the past are now hardly noticed by the men of our time who find themselves side by side in the conquest for the earth's treasures. In that undertaking there is only one difference that counts: that of ability. A Protestant or a Catholic may be an equally good or bad workman, clerk or overseer. If the nobility still possess superior finesse, the bourgeoise, which is less refined, possess energy, will power and activity, qualities the world needs more today than the ways and manners of Duchesses and Princesses.

The working people are certainly more ignorant and rough than the upper classes, but they do not only work with energy—they also consume the greater part of that which industry produces. What would become of innumerable industries and businesses if today the working classes would be satisfied to earn little and live poorly, as they once did? The rich classes would lose half of their incomes. So the rich classes would be foolish if they despised the people and considered them made of different and inferior stuff from themselves. The monarchy and the republic may be as different from each other as you will, and as much enmity may exist between them, but they both promote the building up of wealth, which is the supreme aspiration of all classes. In the last 25 years the Empire of Germany and the Empire of Russia have grown rich, as have the Republic of the United States and the French Republic. Is it worth while, then, to make an effort to change the political institutions? So in the monarchies the republicans adapt themselves and are resigned, as are the monarchists in the republics.

AGE OF HEROISM BURSTS FORTH FROM THE CHRYSALIS OF MATERIALISM

IN this way during the last century the social classes, religions, political parties, and even to a certain extent the different nations and races have been melting in Europe into one great hegemonous mass, in which the old causes of hatred and strife among men were attenuated. And for this reason many people thoughtlessly accused modern civilization of being materialistic and incapable of elevated sentiments. Is not this strife of the great moral, esthetical and political principles the supreme reason of life? was asked before the breaking out of the European war. And is not a society despicable that in its anxiety to get rich neglects this fecund strife of duty, the strife by which man seeks to solve the eternal question of the True and the False, Good and Evil? So the idea got firmly established that our epoch was satisfied to grow fat and was incapable of heroism or sacrifice. But it was an error, a great error.

In those great hegemonous masses, into which for the past century classes, parties, religions, and to a certain extent even races, have been losing themselves, there existed certain simple, but powerful, mystical ideas, among which were the idea of progress and the idea of patriotism, which are the soul and the reason for living of our time.

"Most Humane Age Has Suddenly Become the Most Barbarous"

By GUGLIELMO FERRERO.

OUR civilization had put the accumulation of wealth above every other thought; it had become the mystic duty of all men; to fulfill this duty, they underwent the most cruel trials, supported the heaviest fatigues, climbed the most perilous precipices. And this civilization, by letting loose the war in Europe, has seemed to want to imitate the suicide of many barbarian Kings spoken of in history and legend; by forming a great funeral pile of all the most beautiful and most precious treasures, and then apply the torch, plunge in the flames and burn with it.

Our civilization sought to wrest their most dangerous arrows from disease and death; it protected life as the greatest of all blessings; the researches of science and statesmanship were made to that end. Our civilization glorifed itself for having mitigated the cruel ferocity of ancient customs.

And the century that has suppressed epidemics, tortures, duels, spectacles of cruelty, that was almost ashamed to inflict the death penalty on a few criminals; that had even protected the dumb animals from the furious whips of drunken cart drivers—that century has been carrying on for nearly a year and will continue, how long no one knows, without horror, without complaint, the most horrible slaughter recorded in history.

More than 2,000,000 men have already been killed!

One would be tempted to affirm that our times have fallen into a deathly gulf of contradictions. The desire to accumulate riches seems to be ending in frenzied destruction; the hot thirst to enjoy life appears to be ending in wholesale slaughter; the passion for liberty is resigned, contented slavery.

Mere Armies Are Not at War Against Each Other, but Peoples, All Obstinate in Their Wills.

Having Fought for Centuries for Freedom, They Have Become as Blind Serfs to Their War Lords.

The idea of progress is the daughter of optimistic philosophers of the eighteenth century; the idea of patriotism, the love of country, is the daughter of classical culture and the great wars of the revolution and the empire! So true is this that during the last 30 years there has not been a violent struggle in Europe except those of race and language. Only when a race is governed by another, which tries to force it to change language and ideal of country, does there exist implacable hatred.

• • •

The concord that in a thrice took place in all the nations of Europe as soon as the war broke out; the spirit of sacrifice of which all the belligerent nations have given proof, is no longer, then, an enigma. We now know the deep reason of it. Europe wanted peace. But when the other nations of Europe saw Germany in arms, her people united and unanimous, ready to hurl themselves on their enemies and take possession of Europe, they then forget their religious and political rivalries to oppose to the united Germans their own forces, not less solid and resolute. In a few days the people cast aside their political and religious differences, because those differences had been growing weaker and weaker for some time, and patriotic sentiment had been thriving on their weakness. And now the people are supporting with tenacity all the sacrifices that the war imposes on them, because in all, especially in those more united by race and language, the patriotic sentiment is diffused broadly in the hegemonous masses of the nations, so that it now penetrates even the lower classes. That which seems a miracle to many people on the contrary is the last effect of a historical movement, the origin of which dates back from before the French Revolution.

"But then," the reader may ask, "considering all you have said, shouldn't we conclude that we may congratulate ourselves for being born in this country? The doctrine of progress is not a fallacy, then. The world is really progressing, since we have everything: riches, power, knowledge, the spirit of concord and the spirit of sacrifice. We know how to live in peace and we know how to make war." This way of looking at it would be fine and consoling, if we had not also succeeded, with all our virtues, in making the most murderous, most gigantic war that history has narrated to date, and a war that will be among the longest.

WAR WORLD'S BITTEREST BECAUSE PATRIOTS, NOT STATES, WAGE IT

THE world is face to face with a frightful contradiction. All these fine virtues that Europe has so unexpectedly shown itself as possessing—concord, solidarity, spirit of sacrifice—are the very elements that make the war so obstinate and so terrible. Cruel, gigantic, frightful battles have been raging for months between Germans and French, Russians and Germans, Austrians and Russians; sometimes one side wins, sometimes the other; millions of men have fallen, and yet no end is in sight. On one side or the other the battles are stubbornly taken up again. Why? Because armies and states are not at war against each other, but people, obstinate in their will to win, all held firmly together by an exalted patriotic sentiment, and the few who hesitate in each country cannot break away from it—they are swept on by the resolution of the others. So the defeats and victories are never decisive. In war a battle that does not destroy the forces of the loser—and such cases are rare—is only of value to the victors according to the impression of discouragement it causes the beaten army.

Even a grave defeat doesn't decide anything and doesn't compromise the success of a campaign unless the army, the country, the people that have been defeated become discouraged. Nothing is won if they remain animated with a desire to win. But what defeat will discourage one of the belligerents while all the belligerent peoples are so exalted and so obstinate?

To sum up, the European war will remain memorable in the history of the world because it is the first real war of peoples that has ever been seen. In all the other wars, even in that of 1870, only the part of the nation that was skilled in arms fought. This time all valid men between 20 and 45 have been called to arms, and behind these stand the nations entire, with money, with work and with their souls. It can now be said that the belligerent nations have mobilized the two sexes of all ages, even the old people, because those who are unable to fight take the places in the civil life of those who take up arms, as well as help the wounded, the sick, the families abandoned in misery, the heads of which have been called to the front. Modern civilization is thus suddenly placed before one of the most formidable moral problems through which humanity has ever passed.

Can concord then be the mother of war? Can the spirit of sacrifice be the instrument of the most horrible destruction ever seen? Is there in our makeup a germ of frailty and death that not

LIFE IN THE TRENCHES OF EUROPE FROM THE SOLDIER'S POINT OF VIEW

DESCRIBED BY A MAN JUST RETURNED FROM THE FRONT

Sergt. Bach, Who Was Discharged From the Canadian Overseas Expeditionary Force Because of His Germanic Origin Though He Had Served 18 Years in the Militia of His Adopted Country, Going Through the Boer War, Tells How British Private Comforts Himself Under Fire, How He Lives at the Front and How His Wants Are Provided For.

SERG'T RUDOLPH C. BACH...

THE story of life in the European trenches, from the soldier's viewpoint, is told here for the first time in St. Louis by Rudolph C. Bach of 4555 Delmar boulevard. So far as is known, Bach is the first of the millions of men who have been fighting on the Continent for 10 months, to locate in St. Louis.

Bach served for five days, last February, in the British trenches, near Armentieres, France. During Christmas week, he was with the British at Ypres, Belgium, as a spectator. He was a Sergeant in the Fourteenth Canadian Overseas Battalion. He is now an applicant for American citizenship, and a member of Company C of the First Regiment, National Guard of Missouri.

It will probably occur to the reader that the name of Rudolph Bach would sound strange in a British rollcall, and that most of the Rudolphs and nearly all the Bachs in this war are fighting against England. The same thing occurred to the British—and that is the reason why Bach, a native of Germany, but a citizen of Canada, who fought for England in the Boer War, was sent home to Montreal, whence he lately removed to St. Louis.

Since coming here, Bach has received from Ottawa a temporary copy of his certificate of discharge, to be replaced later, an accompanying letter stated, by a more formal document. This paper bears the significant words, "Reason for discharge—Owing to his being of enemy nationality."

Doesn't Blame Government for Action.

SUCH treatment, after years of previous service and months of recent training, would make some men enemies in fact. But Bach, who was one of 120 to be sent back at one time, thinks the British officers could hardly have done otherwise, in view of the feeling which prevails in England and in the army; and that in some cases which he observed, there were very good reasons for doing just what was done.

Bach's story of trench life, as it was told to a Post-Dispatch reporter, is a composite of his experiences at Ypres in Christmas week, when, like others of the Canadian troops, he went from a British training camp to the front to get a foretaste of fighting; and his actual experience in the British ranks at Armentieres, when his battalion, like other Colonial commands on their first arrival at the front, was temporarily divided, and the companies and half companies distributed among the British lines.

Everyone undertaking to describe trench warfare has been impressed by some one of its many features. To Bach, the most striking thing was the "listening patrol"—the volunteers who nightly creep toward the enemy's trenches, to listen to any preparations which may be making for a charge.

"As few men as possible are kept in the fire trench," said Bach. "The rest are in the support and reserve trenches. The fire trench is the very front line, and is not a continuous affair, but a series of trenches, usually not connected with each other, but connected with the supply trenches. Each of the front trenches is twenty to thirty feet long, occasionally longer, and they are kept separate so that, if the enemy takes one trench, he can't enfilade along the whole line.

How Different Watches Are Kept.

"IT is the rule not to keep a detachment in the front line more than four days. The routine is, four days in front, four days in support, four days in reserve. Sometimes the conditions of the service make it necessary to depart from this rule.

"On being relieved of front line duty, the soldier makes his way to the rear and gets a shower bath and clean uniform and underclothing. Uniforms go by sizes, and they pass from one man to another, after their different washings, which are a very necessary treatment. The men cannot keep free from vermin, but they can make a clean start every few days, through the efficiency of the laundries.

"All the supplies and ammunition are brought up at night, and a different way is taken every night, for the Germans find out, during the day, by what road our supplies are brought up, and they fire all night in that direction. It is just one instance of their lavish use of ammunition, in which they are not imitated by the British.

"The men on lookout, in the fire trench, stand on boxes or other supports, and look through peepholes in the sandbags which line the top of the trench, or through periscopes. They are hardly in any more danger of being hit than the men in the rear trench are, for the Germans shoot everywhere.

"The day may pass quietly—many days do—but the night, particularly to the man who is at the front for the first time, is a time of vivid experiences. With the enemy 200 or 300 yards away, a man can hardly avoid thinking of all the things that may happen before daybreak.

"Volunteers are called for, for the 'listening patrol'—a non-com. and two or three men—and they creep out, in the darkness, as near the German fire trench as they can. They take advantage of shell holes, and every depression or cover of any sort.

The "Listening Patrol's" Perilous Work.

"THEIR job is to find out what the enemy is doing. If they hear nothing but talking and singing, all is well. If they hear bayonets being ground and guns rattled about, a charge by the enemy is indicated, and the men are prepared to meet it. Of course, the Germans send their listeners out, and sometimes they collide with ours, with the result of casualties or taking of prisoners.

"At night, if there is any shooting, the Germans fire a brilliant rocket, that floats along, illuminating everything for a minute or so with a greenish-white light. When this dies down, they send another.

"At night, too, a close watch is kept for Germans in British uniforms. It has been a common practice of the Germans to send over some of their men, who can speak English, and who wear British uniforms over their German outfit.

"These men carry all the ammunition they can, and if they can get to the rear of the British trenches, they make for an old barn, a ruined house or some place where they can be concealed, and then they remove their British uniforms and begin picking off officers and men. If they are caught they pose as German soldiers, not spies—as they would be considered if taken in English clothes—and insist on being treated as prisoners of war. There was a great deal of complaint, when I was there, about treating these men as prisoners, and I heard of some plain cases where the men, in spite of their uniforms and their pose as soldiers who had lost their way, were shot down.

"At times, when no immediate charge is expected, the men can improve their trench quarters, and the Tommies are artists at making their trenches comfortable and secure. Chairs and tables are common, and I saw one place where a piano had been lugged in. If no other means of warmth is provided, the men get an old metal bucket, punch a few holes in it and use it as a charcoal brazier.

"The shelters are all roofed over, and it is found that five feet of loose earth on the roof is a protection against shrapnel.

How Enemy Often Helps the Advance.

"SOMETIMES the enemy helps us advance the line. If a shell explodes 10 yards in front of our trench, and makes a hole in the ground, we must get men into that hole, organize it into a trench and dig ourselves in there. Sometimes the only progress made in a week will be to occupy one shell hole.

"A watch must be kept for shells all the time. When the men eat dinner, one man must look for shells. The big 'Jack Johnsons' are the most dreaded. The rotating bombs are also unpleasant, but are easily dodged. Five shells in 10 minutes is nothing. When they get up to three or four a minute, we know they are trying to get us out. We know the shelling will last for a half-hour or an hour, and that when it stops, there will be an infantry charge.

"If the men on guard at the peepholes can't stop the charge, the British jump out of the trench and meet them half-way with bayonets. This plan of counter-attack has been a big development of the present war, and the British have made most use of it.

"The most desperate business in the world is climbing out of your own trench and going after the other fellow's with the bayonet. I was spared any experience of that kind during my brief service in the trenches but I talked with many men who had been through these riots, for that's what they amount to. I have not yet heard a man say that he wasn't scared when starting on one of these mad dashes; if he should say it, I would put him down as a liar. All the men I talked to readily admitted that they were scared blue when the order to go forward with the bayonet came. It's only when the actual melee begins, when you know that there is nothing to it but to go on and get as many of the enemy as you can before they get you, that you lose your sense of fear and are seized by a sense of fury and murder.

"Nobody who has not been through it, can realize what it means to climb out of a nice, safe resting place, into the face of the perfect

Bach Compares the Fighting Men at the Front

By R. C. BACH.

THE Belgians are the best of all. There is no end to their gameness and they are fighting for their own homes. If they don't win, they will have no country.

The French are great on offensive. If ordered to go to a certain point or take a certain position, they will do it or die in the attempt. But they are not so good in a defensive war. The truth is that where a French soldier once begins to retreat it's pretty hard to stop him. He loses most of his dash when he's the under dog. Fighting a losing battle does not appeal to him.

All the allies respect the German troops. They are "all there" and we always considered it a creditable performance to beat them. They are a worthy foe for any nation.

But the German soldier has nothing on Tommy Atkins, who is fully up to the English troops of tradition—of Blenheim, Waterloo and Balaklava. Tommy fights well anywhere and any way—winning or losing. It's a great sporting match with him and he knows he can't win all the time, but he believes he will win more times than the other fellow. He is the backbone of the allied armies.

"Either No More Germany or No More England After the War."

THE men in the British trenches believe, according to Sergt. Bach, that this war will mean the downfall of either Germany or England as an independent power—that, as he puts it, after the war, "there will either be no more Germany or no more England."

The soldiers at the front as individuals, he declares, do not expect to return home, and most of them did not so expect when they left home. They believe the war is to a finish—and they believe the finish will be accomplished by others, after they have given their lives.

"You know how men naturally would fight under such conditions," he says. "They are out to kill in every possible way and if the supposed laws of war get in the way—why it is unfortunate for the laws of war."

The Persistent Prohibitionists.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

That there is a real danger of the passage of a constitutional amendment prohibiting the sale and manufacture of malt, vinous and spiritous liquors in this country everyone outside of North and South St. Louis seems to realize. It must be the slight smell of boiling hops and malt in the atmosphere that makes the liberal element of this city so sneeringly complacent. Get away from the shadow of the breweries and you will receive a different impression.

The reasons for this phenomenon are not hard to find. There is not a live organization in the United States working against prohibition and for national sanity. Outside of those directly interested in a material way, no effort is being made to combat the efforts of the other side, with their evangelists, their "flying squadrons" and their countless other organizations and individuals constantly at it. No serious attempt is made to educate the people at large; they are permitted to hear only one side until they reach a state of mind where they feel that all the argument, all the religion and all the virtue is on the dry side.

What is needed is more virility among the liberal element of the country, more organization, more work and a getting away from making of this great moral question either a political issue or the prosperity of the liquor business. The liquor business is but an incident in this fight, a great deal more than its continuance or prosperity is involved.

SANITY.

Assumption.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

There is a certain class of men, (entertainers in a small way) who are full of local incidents, tell of fishing, hunting, playing of games, know by name all the nearby people. Their minds are like garrets—full of junk. There is no place in their heads for an inspired thought or high purpose. But the grotesque thing about it is that because they read a little, they call themselves literary. Never widely read, seldom away from their birthplaces, never participants in any deep experiences or varied happenings they even go fo far as to think they can write. It is amazing how many such people there are, who deem literary labor the commonest of all talents, whereas it is the most exalted and the rarest.

SIDNEY AVERILL, Baden Station, Mo.

The Traffic in Arms.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

At last after "watchful waiting," our President has opened his eyes and now realezes the pitiful conditions in Mexico, and that something must be done "in a very short time.." I wonder if he realizes also that such misery and devastation could have been averted, in part at least, if he had forbidden the transportation of ammunition to the rebels a year ago, instead he even having encouraged it, for without ammunition the fight would have ended.

Exactly the same conditions apply now to the war in Europe. We are amazed at this enormous conflict and we wish to make every effort possible to bring about peace. Yes, like in Mexico when the countries are torn to pieces.

Place an embargo on everything except foodstuffs for all nations and we'll see how much longer they will continue fighting, certainly no longer than if supplied with warfare implements. But the greed for gain is stronger than any other purpose in life in America, and therefore we will continue and aid in the destruction of human beings for the sake of the "filthy lucre."

The whole world wishes to see peace in Europe and the United States, which is the only nation that can exert the means to bring about peace, insists on helping in the destruction.

Bombarding Venice.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

I notice your editorial in a recent issue entitled "Shooting up the City of Dreams," which is in part as follows, "For an assault upon Venice is an outrage upon the universal sentiment, etc. Yes, it is indeed, but what in the name of heaven do all your cathedrals, museums, etc., amount to in compare with the thousands of lives being destroyed every day and every hour? With the million of homes being devastated? Doesn't it sound hypocritic to see one getting excited over the destruction of pieces of stone, no matter how valuable they may be from an artistic standpoint, while so many lives, every one of which is not only a piece of art but a whole world to some, are counted for nothing? Our civilisation must be deadly asleep if this blow didn't strike it hard enough yet. Our nerves do not seem to be working if we at the presence of this disastrous war still dream about "lolling through the canal in a gondola with Her, under a Venetian moon to the music of guitars," etc.

J. STERN.

BRYAN TO THE HYPHENATED.

Mr. Bryan's attitude has ceased to be a study in domestic politics, international law or peace propaganda and become a study in psychology.

In his plea to German-Americans he says that rules of war prevail which cannot be changed during the pending contest although he desires a change; that the sinking of the Lusitania cannot be defended; that one nation cannot plead the inhumanity of another as an excuse for its own acts; that the drowning of women and children cannot be justified.

But because Mr. Wilson said the same things in his note to Berlin and said them in diplomatic language in which the killing of women and children was not dwelt on too offensively, Mr. Bryan resigned. If Bryan's statement is contributory to peace, why was Mr. Wilson's note provocative of war?

As a matter of fact, Mr. Wilson's official summary addressed to Germany looked no more to the remedies of force than Mr. Bryan's unofficial summary addressed to Germans. Both may be accepted as helpful contributions to the law and fact of the case.

Bewilderment over apparent inconsistencies, speculation over fine points of diplomatic policy, amazement resulting from the workings of the Bryan mind must have pause while the text of the sound Bryan advice to German sympathizers in this country is examined.

With hundreds of telegrams from them, congratulating him on his resignation, pouring in on him, he stops to show them why the export of munitions, the ground of their chief grievance, cannot be forbidden.

He points out the injustice of the attacks on the President and bears witness to Mr. Wilson's faultless neutrality and profound desire for peace.

He tells them that British violation of sea law and German violation are entirely separate matters that should not be confounded, and suggests how much more serious acts affecting life are than acts affecting property. And in reminding them that the danger of war is found, not at Washington but at Berlin, he directs attention to a great truth:

> Knowing that the President desires peace, it is your duty to help him obtain it; and how? By exerting your influence to convince the German Government of this fact and to persuade that Government to take no steps that would lead to war.

Supposing after the "strict accountability" note of Feb. 10, the energy that has been wasted in organizing a sort of pro-German fire-in-the-rear movement in this country and denouncing the fair, peace-loving Government at Washington had been devoted to bringing pressure to bear on Berlin and that strong expressions deprecating unlawful acts at sea affecting the citizens of this country and our peaceful relations with Germany had greatly multiplied after the Lusitania tragedy. Who can doubt that it would have had a most potent effect in averting the crisis?

We all share Mr. Bryan's judgment as to the loyalty of German-Americans to the American Government and to American institutions. Berlin has presumed on their disaffection. To disillusion her on that point would be beneficial.

May we hope that the bellicosity of the United States shall go no further than the issuance of a White Book? By the way, just to be original and make our example a special example, shouldn't ours be Dove-Colored?

VISIT AND SEARCH AT SEA.

Much confusion of ideas is shown by some Post-Dispatch readers relative to that "visit-and-search" provision of international law which President Wilson insists must be observed in the case of American merchant ships and of merchant ships under other flags that carry American passengers. One reader writes that a large percentage of those with whom he talks hold that Germany was within her rights in the Lusitania case and that we had no business asking for an explanation.

This "visit-and-search" provision is an instance of a privilege that survives as a duty. How great a privilege it is can be seen from the universally accepted doctrine that "every merchant ship on the seas is rightfully considered as part of the territory of the country to which she belongs." For one country to attempt to exercise restraint or control over the actual territory of another with which it was at peace would be an instant cause of war, but for the fulfillment of wise purposes the analogy does not hold completely with reference to a similar invasion of sovereignty at sea.

Thus, as a concession to the necessities of war, a belligerent may stop a vessel of a country with which it is at peace, may subject its officers to irksome delay and interrogation and rummage and muss up its cargo, without giving valid cause of offense. But this is the utmost concession. No nation at peace has the right of search. To sink a neutral vessel engaged in peaceful commerce, as was done in the case of the Gulflight, is one of the most serious of all national affronts.

Much of the law governing merchant shipping comes down from a time when the methods and motives of war at sea were somewhat different from those of the present. The ships of a European nation at war with Spain watched eagerly for galleons carrying rich cargoes from Latin-America because their capture meant a vast enhancement of private fortune. To destroy them, except under the compulsion of the most extreme necessity was unthinkable, because when taken into port the value of the captured vessel and cargo was divided among the officers and crew of the naval ship making the capture. But if the sinking of unarmed vessels became unavoidable, the safety of those aboard had to be provided for. Even in that crude and rough time of early American colonization, war was not made on women, children and noncombatant men.

Belligerents must be very sure of what they do at sea. They must visit and search merchant vessels and ascertain to an absolute certainty their character before attacking them. They may seize enemy merchant ships, as they may seize enemy territory, but they may not drown the passengers aboard the one, any more than they may butcher the innocent inhabitants in the other. They invite trouble of the gravest possible description in attacking neutral ships. To attempt excuse of such acts as due to a blunder is to add the quality of a crime when they have neglected the very precautions that would have safeguarded them from blundering.

Three times before has America faced a crisis similar to the present affecting rights at sea. Once was when England, needing fighting men during the Napoleonic wars, asserted most arrogantly the right of search to impress the crews of American merchant ships in her navies. This led to the War of 1812. Another time was when the Algerian pirates attacked all merchant ships that refused to pay them tribute. This practice, which had some parallels with present causes of grievance, led to a war that extirpated the pirates. The third time was in 1873, when Spain seized at sea the American ship Virginius and killed 53 of its passengers on the charge that they were aiding Cuban rebels. Only a prompt apology, surrender of the ship and promise of indemnity prevented war then.

Perhaps the present crisis is the most important of all. The ocean-carrying trade has become an international public utility. The stock of vessel companies is widely held among all nations and citizens of all nations avail themselves of the service. That the ancient law of the sea shall be preserved is more vital now than ever before. Had the Germans obtained command of the routes and the Vaterland, carrying Americans, had been sunk without warning by a British submarine, we would have no recourse but to make as determined protests to London as we are now making to Berlin.

AN INTERESTING DOCUMENT.

Several St. Louis Aldermen, keen to make city jobs for their political henchmen, are angry at City Comptroller Player for having blocked one of their schemes to raid the City Treasury.

Their plan was to create 10 new clerkships at $90 per month for each, or $900 per month in all, to do a bit of extra work in one of the city departments.

Comptroller Player ordered clerks transferred temporarily from another department, in which work was slack, to do this extra work. He knew it would be easier to keep the 10 new clerks off the payroll than to take them off if they ever got on.

Apparently the Aldermen haven't read the new city charter. They should read it. They will find it an interesting document. Among other things, it specifically authorizes the Comptroller to save the people's money by using idle clerks in one department to do extra work in another.

BUYING MUSIC FOR THE BLIND.

Announcement that the late George D. Barnard provided in his will that his executors shall purchase Symphony tickets to the amount of $250 annually, to be distributed among the inmates of the Missouri School for the Blind establishes a precedent in St. Louis. This bequest not only benefits the unfortunate pupils of the blind school, but aids materially in the support of the Symphony Orchestra.

St. Louis' wealthy citizens have always liberally supported the various hospitals, charitable and educational institutions, but this is the first case on record where a sum of money has been provided for music.

The Chicago and New York philharmonic orchestras have received many large bequests. It would be well if the Barnard precedent should be liberally followed by men of wealth and public spirit in this city.

JUNE RISE AT EAST ALTON.

The unfriendly act of a European belligerent who spread close onto $1,000,000 worth of horseflesh over two or three townships of strictly neutral landscape, mussing up grade crossings and damaging the prospects of one of the finest corn crops that ever colored with the green the black soil of the American Bottoms, will be overlooked on disavowal and payment of adequate indemnity. But no precedents must be understood to be set.

The Bottoms are used to inundations of water, but an inundation of horse came as a surprise. War animals purchased for the allies' use to the number of 5000 or 6000 began to exert increased bank pressure on being stampeded by an electrical storm at the East Alton farm where they are cared for before shipment.

When they broke the corral levee, raging streams of them poured down over every road of the flooded districts, appearing on every adjacent railroad crossing to be killed by trains, smashing fences, digging her deep through truck gardens and breaking into fields of young corn to perish by indigestion instead of meeting more glorious though hardly more painful deaths by shrapnel in France.

Unusually destructive as the June rise is along the Bottoms, public subscriptions for flood sufferers will not be needed. The allies will have to settle. Lasso exercise, declining American accomplishment since the days of wild mustangs and semi-wild cattle, will be in demand for the next few days.

What of it, if after the roundup thrifty farmers at remote points are found to have concealed in back wood lots additions to their stock of good, strong work horses? They will be reserved for a better use than carrying men to slaughter abroad.

CAUSE AND EFFECT.

The United States Steel Co.'s plants are working to 75 per cent of capacity—a gain from 45 per cent within a few months. Less than a fifth of the increase represents foreign war orders; the rest indicates a revival of building in this country. It was inevitable that when materials and labor reached bottom, capital would take advantage of a so favorable opportunity to employ them in works which under any circumstances must needs be constructed.

GOOD-BYE, DR. DERNBURG!

(Tune, "Good-Bye, Annie Darling." Slow Music.)

NOW!

GOOD-BYE, Dr. Dernburg! For all your transgressions,
We hope you don't perish at sea.
We trust that your vessel will get some concessions
By dint of a royal decree.
We'll never forget you, we'll never forget you,
We'll never forget you, we know-ow-ow;
Your asseverations estranged the two nations,
Though some of them doubtless were so.

AGAIN!

GOOD-BYE, Dr. Dernburg! Your job was a new one,
So far as we know over here.
We don't know your pay, but we know that you drew one,
Say ten or twelve thousand a year.
Your method was clever, we'll know it forever,
The Sophists had nothing on you-u-u;
You could make the best side appear the obsessed side,
If one were disposed to your view.

ONCE MORE!

GOOD-BYE, Dr. Dernburg! You caught Mr. Bryan—
We knew you were just on the job;
But poor Billy B., whom you all had your eye on,
He took it all bait, hook and bob.
We'll never forget you, we'll never forget you,
The smoothest of Germany's me-e-en;
You'll cross the wide ocean, and we have a notion
We'll not see each other again.

LULLABY.

REST, little sister, rest;
The long, tired day is done;
The sunset smiles in the distant West,
Then peacefully dies on the mountain crest;
Rest, little sister, rest.

Sleep, little sister, sleep!
Safe in the twilight's arms;
Home from the hills are the weary sheep,
And the night-bird calls from the shadows deep;
sleep, little sister, sleep.

Dream, little sister, dream!
Dream how the fairies play;
Late in the night by the singing stream,
And on 'til the death of the last moonbeam;
Dream, little sister, dream.

ANSWERS TO QUERIES

BEAUTY CULTURE.

KIT.—One beauty writer says: To make neck plump, rub in cocoa butter with long, circular motion and practice deep breathing. Another says: Long continued use of cocoa butter yellows the skin. For chest development and filling out hollows in the neck take deep breathing exercises in the open air and warm baths with gentle massage.

ROSE.—Olive oil and cocoa butter have both been charged with hair growth. It is said that if cheeks are thin, or there are hollows in the neck, there is nothing so beneficial as slow massage. A gentle "spatting" of the skin will develop it and increase the flesh underneath. For a thin face five minutes' "spatting" each day is advised. Where the face and neck are too fat a heavy massage is preferable. There are these differences in the quality of massage—that while a quick massage takes off the flesh, a slow rubbing will develop it.

MRS. L. M.—X-ray, radium and electricity are used to remove birthmarks. As child grows older they sometimes disappear with no treatment. It is asserted that a small red birthmark was successfully removed by treating with milk weed. The stem was broken off and the milky sap rubbed over the red scar. This blistered the spot, which, when healed, was much lighter. Repeated applications, allowing the spot to heal after each treatment, soon effaced the scar. (If any reader knows of a sure, safe, inexpensive remover, this column is open for publication. Send address.)

CLEANSING.

READER.—White straw hat: Go all over it with damp corn meal, work thoroughly into the straw and leave it on for some hours. Brush out meal and wash freely with peroxide of hydrogen. Let dry in shade. (Peroxide has been charged with yellowing hats.)

ETIQUETTE.

B. S.—Cut cucumber pickles with knife; eat the slices with fork; fingers for very small pickles. For olives, fork or spoon; may also be taken with fingers.

S. S.—Best man's duties: Hire carriage to be used by groom and himself and one placed at clergyman's disposal, help groom in packing, see that his suit case, with all necessaries, is taken to bride's house, take charge of ring and deliver it at right moment. Accompanies groom through vestry into church, stands at his right hand during ceremony, gets his own and groom's hat at its conclusion, hastens down side aisle and takes to bride's house the carriage used in coming to the church, to be ready to greet the bridal pair on their arrival. Makes himself generally useful during reception—presenting people to bride and groom and to their parents, showing attention to all in need of it, and especially to maid of honor. Notifies couple when to dress for wedding journey, helps groom to change his clothes, sees that bags and suit cases are put in carriage to be used to convey bride and groom to station, having also engaged expressman and made sure that trunks have been sent on ahead. Follows the bridal pair to station, buys tickets and checks luggage if desired to do so. To him is intrusted the clergyman's fee, and he puts notices of marriage in newspapers, unless the bride's father prefers to do it.

HEALTH HINTS.

A. A.—White substance forming nightly in corner of eye is probably due to slight catarrhal condition, with excess of lachrymation (tear forming). If annoying, see an oculist.

HOUSEHOLD HELPS.

PHY.—Some reader may tell you what will take spots off calcimine white finished walls without erasing the white coat.

E. W.—Mr. Marlin of Tennessee says: I picked up a pan in the kitchen, about 4 or 5 inches deep, and put a handful of cornmeal in it; set it down on the floor, put a cloth around it on the outside, and went to bed. Next morning I had captured about 5000 roaches. They climbed over the cloth to the edge of the pan, and either fell or climbed down to the inside, from which it was impossible for them to get out, the sides being too slick and the roaches too full. What did I do next? Why, set the pan out in the chicken yard and the chickens did the rest.

EMIL.—When freezing ice cream pack freezer with ice and salt, as usual, then fill up to overflow hole with cold water and cream will freeze in half time it would have taken if water had not been used. Delmonico ice cream with angel food: 2 cups milk, ¾ cup sugar, yolk of 7 eggs, ⅛ teaspoon salt, 2½ cups thin cream, 1 tablespoon vanilla, 1 teaspoon lemon. Make custard of milk, sugar, eggs and salt; cool, strain and flavor; whip cream, remove whip; there should be 2 quarts; add to custard and freeze. Serve plain or with angel food. Coffee ice cream: 2 cups sugar, 3 eggs, 1 quart milk, 1 pint cream, 2 cups strong coffee. Beat the sugar and eggs, add the other ingredients and freeze. Frozen coffee: 1 cup strong coffee, 2-3 cup sugar, 1 teaspoon vanilla, 1 pint cream. Beat the yolks of two eggs, add to the coffee while warm, cool, add sugar and vanilla. Beat cream stiff and mix together. Put in a mold, pack in salt and ice and let stand at least 4 hours. Vanilla ice cream: 1 can condensed milk, 1 pint cream, 1 quart milk, 3 tablespoons sugar, vanilla to suit the taste. If not sweet enough add more sugar, but do not need to. Freeze. If strawberry ice cream is wanted, use above rule, add quart of berries, mashed and sweetened. Economical ice cream: 3 quarts milk, 3 pints cream, 2 eggs, 2 cups sugar, 2 tablespoons flour, not cornstarch. Beat whites and yolks of eggs together, add quart milk and cook in double boiler. When hot, add the sugar with which the flour has been well mixed. Let cook 20 minutes, stirring steadily, so that it will be quite smooth. Cool, add remainder of milk, the cream, flavor and freeze. This is more work than if made from clear cream, but it is good, costs less, keeps better, and makes six quarts.

TO MAKE CREAM CHEESE.

J. F.—Genuine cream cheese is made from a rich cream thickened by souring, or from sweet cream thickened with rennet. This is put in a cloth and allowed to drain, the cloth being changed several times during the draining, which requires about four days. It is then placed on a board covered with a cloth, sprinkled with salt, and turned occasionally. It is ready for consumption in from 5 to 10 days. Another variety is made from cream with low content of fat (12 to 15 per cent). The cream is curdled with rennet, broken up to allow a part of the whey to escape, and is then mixed and worked into almost a paste. This is then molded into pieces weighing 2 to 4 ounces, which are wrapped in tin foil and placed on the market without curing. It is very mild, very rich.

MISCELLANEOUS.

OLGA.—We know nothing of the Producers' League.

A. X. L.—For dog with falling hair, try pure air life.

G. E. A.—See "'Ostler Joe" at this office or in Public Library.

CONSTANT.—Dog goiter: 10 cents' worth iodide of potassium, dissolved in cup of water, then bottle. Massage with this often. Operation is best.

LADY.—You run risks in renting your house or your good furniture to tenants. Look for them to be damaged. Lawing is troublesome and profitless. Get security if you can. As to gas bills, arrange as best you can. Gas may or may not be wasted; it usually is.

F. E. P. AND B.—The name bohemian is often applied to any person who leads an irregular, wandering and restless life. It is particularly given to those persons who follow in a more or less desultory manner the profession of journalist, artist, actor, etc., and whose habits and tastes are unconventional or careless. Persons generally who have or affect similar habits and tastes often characterize themselves as bohemians. The word probably sprang from its early application to gypsies, who were supposed to have their original abode in Bohemia.

Bryan's Retirement From the Cabinet

DISSENTING ELEMENT OUT.

Louisville Evening Post: The resignation of Mr. Bryan, instead of fermenting dissension, makes for a more perfect unison of all the forces that stand for an unshaken and unshrinkable democracy. If it is war, it will be waged with all the power of a wronged nation. If it is peace, it must be peace on conditions that meet the demands of the past and give us assurances for the future.

Today it is Caesarism from the heart of Europe confronting the democracy of the New World; the past, about to die, salutes the future, about to triumph, in the last great battle between absolutism and liberty.

A WISE ACT.

Indianapolis News: Mr. Bryan was within his rights in resigning. But even more than that, his action was wise, since unity of view in the Cabinet is essential. While it is regrettable that differences should have arisen at such a time, response from all sources in support of the President will result in simplifying the President's problem. Looked at from this point of view, Mr. Bryan, by his resignation, has rendered an important public service. We shall now have a united and harmonious government. The duty of the hour is to stand together as Americans in support of an American administration.

A POLITICAL VIEW.

Pittsburg Gazette-Times (Rep.): President Wilson has the opportunity, if he is alive to its national aspects as distinguished from purely partisan consideration, to take the edge off the whole exasperating business by inviting into his Cabinet a Republican of standing and capacity. That would reduce the Bryan incident in the United States, as far as the war situation is concerned, to a nullity.

PRESIDENT SHOULD STAND FIRM.

New York World: Mr. Bryan's resignation, however unfortunate, cannot change the attitude of the country toward the President. Rather it will mobilize public sentiment still more strongly behind Mr. Wilson, realizing, as every citizen must realize, that the President in this crisis has greater need than ever of emphatic popular support. Mr. Wilson has put his hand to the plow and he cannot turn back until he reaches the end of the furrow. In spite of Mr. Bryan's scruples there is no public desire that he should turn back. On the contrary, it is the President's grave and solemn duty to continue to the end, having faith that right makes might and daring to do his duty as he understands it.

"PEACE AT ANY PRICE."

New York Press: If it is a credit to Mr. Bryan's conscience, as voiced in his letter of farewell, that he would rather expose his country to further affront and subject his countrymen to further crime than to face the chance of war, nothing could more strikingly prove his unfitness for the office which he has now left.

And by the same token Mr. Wilson, forcing the issue with Mr. Bryan as he hands his answer to Berlin, begins to redeem in its international aspect, his foreign policy and his administration before a determined, united and loyal American people.

A GERMAN-AMERICAN VIEW.

New York German Herold: Bryan seems to be again fishing for the presidential nomination the coming year and it seems he resigned in order to get the powerful German-American vote. But it is doubtful whether the German-Americans will ever vote for the friend of Great Britain—Grape Juice Bryan.

What is the truth and what is merely imagination in this case? With the greatest probability one is on the right trail in saying this:

It should be remembered that some days ago the German Ambassador had a secret interview with President Wilson regarding the Lusitania affair and that after the interview Count von Bernstorff emerged from the White House with an expression of confidence and satisfaction on his face.

Long ago people who claimed to know hinted that some things have been happening in administration circles which had better be kept from publicity. Has Count von Bernstorff opened the eyes of the President in regard to these matters? Who knows?

One thing is certain. It is that during the last few months the malicious undermining which has been going on in this country on behalf of Great Britain has been met adequately by the Germans and therefore it is probable that the representatives of the German Government here have given information which, let us say, has finally brought about the estrangement between the President and Mr. Bryan.

THE ATTACK ON BRYAN.

R. L. Metcalf, former editor of Mr. Bryan's Commoner: I am not in the least surprised at Mr. Bryan's resignation. Ever since he has been in the Cabinet Mr. Bryan has been the victim of an organized attack, and it is an open secret that this attack has been encouraged by men who are more or less conspicuous in the administration. No greater injustice in history has been done any man than that which has been done Mr. Bryan. Germans everywhere have learned to hate him under the impression that he is their bitter enemy, when, in fact, he has been more nearly their faithful friend. Under the circumstances his retirement amounts to a public calamity, and I am sure it will be so regarded by the people whose opinion counts "after the Captains and the Kings have departed."

TOO UTOPIAN.

New York Tribune: Making fetiches of peace, good will and the avoidance of friction, he committed the department, so far as he ever succeeded in controlling it, to a program of Utopianism, in which no allowance was made for the unreadiness of the rest of the world to live up to these altruistic ideals.

THE ISSUE NOW CLEAR.

London Evening Star: Coming after the heroic decision of Italy to draw her sword in defense of liberty and the public law of Europe, it is a death blow to the Germanic Powers. It means that America has crossed the Rubicon. It means that the greatest democracy on earth has resolved to be true to itself and to its ideals. It means that Germany will be held to a strict accountability for her violations of human sanity. It means that the American people will defend civilization against barbarism in international law, against submarine piracy and right against conscienceless might. It means that Germany must choose between obedience to the ancient code of sacred justice and the new code of satanic deviltry. It means that America will omit no act which is necessary to cleanse the seas of the Prussian wolves and tigers, who prey upon women and children.

The issue is now clear and clean. Germany must face the certitude of American fixety of purpose. If she pursues her submarine policy, America will make good her warning. Germany must choose, and choose at once. There is still a bare chance of peace, if Germany will bow before the law of nations which America has slowly and reluctantly but resolutely sworn to uphold. If she stiffens her neck and hardens her heart, there can only be one outcome.

NOT NECESSARILY WAR.

London Evening Standard: Mr. Bryan's resignation from President Wilson's Cabinet appears to foreshadow a more decided American policy—not necessarily intervention or war. It was some vision of this, no doubt, which led Germany to dispatch an unofficial emissary to talk unofficially of peace in the United States; he can be disavowed more easily than Count von Bernstorff when the occasion requires. England will not emulate Germany in attempting to bully or cajole neutrals as to their policy.

The policy of the United States is a matter for the Government and the people of the United States to settle themselves. Political feeling will run high in America during the next few days, but the issues are clear enough, although German agents will certainly attempt to confuse the public mind.

Rupert Brooke's Great War Sonnets

The five sonnets written by Rupert Brooke, the young English poet, are the greatest contribution to literature inspired by the war. Brooke enlisted at the beginning of the war and died of sunstroke at Lemnos while serving in the Dardanelles campaign. The sonnets follow:

PEACE.

Now, God be thanked Who has matched us with His hour,
And caught our youth, and awakened us from sleeping,
With hand made sure, clear eye, and sharpened power,
To turn, as swimmers into cleanness leaping,
Glad from a world grown old and cold and weary,
Leave the sick hearts that honor could not move,
And half-men, and their dirty songs and dreary,
And all the little emptiness of love!
Oh! we, who have known shame, we have found release there,
Where there's no ill, no grief, but sleep has mending,
Naught broken save this body, lost but breath;
Nothing to shake the laughing heart's long peace there
But only agony, and that has ending;
And the worst friend and enemy is but Death.

SAFETY.

Dear! of all happy in the hour, most blest
He who has found our hid security,
Assured in the dark tides of the world that rest.
And heard our word, "Who is so safe as we?"
We have found safety with all things undying.
The winds, and morning, tears of men and mirth,
The deep night, and birds singing, and clouds flying,
And sleep, and freedom, and the autumnal earth.
We have built a house that is not for Time's throwing.
We have gained a peace unshaken by pain forever,
War knows no power. Safe shall be my going,
Secretly armed against all death's endeavor;
And if these poor limbs die, safest of all.

THE DEAD.

Blow out, you bugles, over the rich Dead!
There's none of these so lonely and poor of old,
But, dying, has made us rarer gifts than gold,
These laid the world away; poured out the red
Sweet wine of youth; gave up the years to be
Of work and joy, and that unhoped serene
That men call age; and those who would have been
Their sons, they gave, their immortality.
Blow, bugles, blow! They brought us, for our dearth,
Holiness, lacked so long, and Love, and Pain.
Honor has come back, as a king, to earth,
And Nobleness walks in our ways again;
And we have come into our heritage.

GLORY.

These hearts were woven of human joys and cares,
Washed marvelously with sorrow, swift to mirth,
The years had given them kindness. Dawn was theirs,
And sunset, and the colors of the earth.
These had seen movement, and heard music; known
Slumber and waking; loved; gone proudly friended;
Felt the quick stir of wonder sat alone
Touched flowers and furs, and cheeks. All this is ended.
There are waters blown by changing winds to laughter
And lit by the rich skies, all days. And after,
Frost, with a gesture, stays the waves that dance
And wandering loveliness. He leaves a white
Unbroken glory, a gathered radiance,
A width, a shining peace, under the night.

THE SOLDIER.

If I should die, think only this of me
That's there's some corner of a foreign field
That is forever England. There shall be
In that rich earth a richer dust concealed;
A dust whom England bore, shaped, made aware,
Gave, once, her flowers to love, her ways to roam,
A body of England's breathing English air,
Washed by the rivers, blest by suns of home.
And think, this heart, all evil shed away,
A pulse in the eternal mind, no less
Gives somewhere back the thoughts by England given;
Her sights and sounds; dreams happy as her day;
And laughter, learnt of friends and gentleness,

The Week's War Comment

GIGANTIC STRATEGY OF THE WAR.

Philadelphia Ledger: The allies are not merely moving army divisions against Germany and Austria-Hungary. They are moving whole nations. When the psychological moment arrived they mobilized the Italian armies and hurled them against the southwestern frontier of Austria, with the consent, of course, of the Italians. The next move will be not to send Russian or French troops to attack the eastern frontier of Austria-Hungary, but to call out the Rumanian troops, thus surrounding the Teutonic allies with a wall of hostile nations and compelling them to defend every frontier. Never before has such gigantic strategy been employed in warfare.

After Rumania has moved her armies into the field we may expect news that Bulgaria has joined the allies in their attack on Turkey, and will march on Adrianople, and thence advance with the Russians and British to the very gates of Constantinople itself. The Kaiser is Napoleonic, at least in his capacity for inviting the hostility of all nations.

ITALIAN FORBEARANCE.

New York Globe: The order of the Italian military authorities to steamships and airships to spare the remains of the famous Roman amphitheater at Pola, the Austrian naval base on the Adriatic, is in refreshing contrast to the German course in the cases of Louvain, Malines, Rheims, and other cities of Belgium and France. It is an act of civilization that will win the grateful applause of observing nations, just as the vandalism of the Germans won anger and execration.

A HINT TO ENGLAND.

New York Sun: In the thrilling contest between the monoplane in Belgium and the Zeppelin, Lieut. Warneford rose swiftly in his easily handled machine to a point directly over the bulk of the sluggish dirigible and dropped bomb after bomb, until the sixth attempt was followed by an explosion and the dreadnought of the air collapsed, falling to the earth a blazing wreck. The British aviator seems to have had the luck of the daring, for after he had lost control of his monoplane and the machine turned a somersault, he righted it, descended into the enemy's lines and then, rising again, made his escape.

What Lieut. Warneford accomplished can be done by other British aviators, whose numbers are becoming legion. Plainly the way for England to deal with the Zeppelin menace is always to have a fleet of aeroplanes ready for a raid of the enemy, day or night. As a Zeppelin is visible at any height it can be reported by telephone when descried approaching the coast. Provided the defending aviators are prepared to ascend with a supply of bombs, the enemy dirigible should have a poor chance of returning to its base from a raid.

INVESTIGATION AT WRONG END.

Philadelphia Inquirer: The controversy between the United States and Germany is very easy to understand. It is merely a question of investigation.

The murderous submarine fires first and investigates afterwards.

The President insists that the investigating shall be done first and the firing come afterwards.

AMERICAN ARMS FACTORIES.

Indianapolis News: In a special dispatch to the News of yesterday it was said that the German Government was, either directly or indirectly, negotiating for the purchase of the Bethlehem Steel Co. and the Remington Arms Co., the purpose being to shut off the supplies of arms and munitions to the allies. The report seems to be of the nature of many other war rumors, but no doubt foreign Powers in this time of their great need would be glad to control some of the sources of American munitions. Our Government is not interested in any way in arming the allies, but it is greatly interested in any transfer of this property that might have the effect of limiting its own source of supply in time of need. It would be unfortunate to have these great plants controlled in any way by any foreign Government. For there is no foreign Government with which we might not conceivably at some time be at war. If our people cannot—and such is the contention—sell arms to whomsoever is prepared to buy them, we could not hope to purchase them abroad in war time. This makes it all the more necessary that we should see to it that our factories are prepared and willing at all times to meet any demands that may be made on them by our own Government. American factories owned by Europeans might be a poor reliance in case of trouble with a European Government.

NEUTRALS STILL VICTIMS.

New York World: While the world awaits the President's Lusitania note, the illegal torpedoing of merchant ships continues. Two small Norwegian steamers were yesterday reported sunk. Until this year Norway had reasons for friendship with Germany; she is fast forgetting them. As if Belgium had not suffered enough, 17 persons, including the captain's wife and daughter, lost their lives with the torpedoed Belgian steamer Menapier. Such practices may embitter the nations; they will never win the war.

AN EXTRAORDINARY FEAT.

Springfield Republican: No single adventure of the war has been more sensational than the exploit of two British naval aviators in pursuing a Zeppelin across Belgium and destroying it in the gray dawn of yesterday's morning. Deeply deplorable is the tragic end of the Zeppelin, involving, according to reports from Holland, the death not only of its entire crew, but of two nuns and two children in the Belgian orphan asylum into which the blazing mass of the great airship fell.

As an exploit of aviation, the feat of the two Englishmen was extraordinary. Caught by the uprush from the exploding gas bag, their machine was whirled over and over, falling from a height of nearly a mile. Not till within a few hundred feet from the ground did they get it righted, and this achievement is a sufficient answer to those who have called Pegoud's "looping the loop" a useless spectacular trick. It was necessary to descend, but despite a hard bump they were able to get the machine started and to make their escape from the enemy's lines.

Aside from illustrating once more that the English, who took up aviation late, are showing in the air an audacity and address worthy to put with the exploits of Nelson's countrymen on the sea, this engagement is of significance as showing the vulnerability of the Zeppelin to attack.

DRIVING TYPHUS FROM SERVIA.

Memphis News-Scimitar: From Servia comes the gratifying news that American skill and genius have about driven out the scourge of typhus that was mowing down so many lives in that unfortunate country. War is bad enough and it is a great waste of life, but pestilence goes forward indiscriminately and sweeps away the young and old of both sexes. When the scourge was at its height Servia sent up a despairing cry for assistance, and this was responded to promptly and effectively. American physicians and sanitary experts lead the world, and their services are frequently in demand. The work that we did at Panama and in Cuba established a reputation for our scientists that is not equaled by the experts of any other nation.

SHOOTING BALES OF COTTON.

Arkansas Gazette: According to an article in the Independent, guncotton, which is cotton treated in a certain way, is used in the production of more than two-thirds of England's output of powder and in more than half of the powder made in Austria, England, Sweden and Norway, while in the case of Germany the proportion is larger. As the powder factories are now working at more than full time, some estimates are that those of Europe are consuming cotton at the rate of 400,000 bales a year.

It is said, further, that every time the British dreadnought Queen Elizabeth fires one of her 15-inch guns at the Dardanelles forts, a bale of cotton is finally consumed, and that a first-class battleship may use while in action 5000 pounds of powder in a minute, or from 10 to 12 bales of cotton.

The great war in Europe is making a certain demand for the South's staple, but King Cotton distinctly prefers the much greater demands of industry in times of peace.

No One Need Imagine the Dance Craze Is Abating—"Ragging" at the Country Clubs Causes Comment—Miss Julia Choteau Maffitt to Wed Robert H. Keiser Wednesday—Engagement of Miss Frances Dameron to Theron E. Catlin Announced.

By Frances Cabanne Scovel.

IF anyone thinks the dance craze is dying out, all one has to do is to journey out to one of the country clubs on the evenings when a dinner dance is going on to see how mistaken is the idea.

Several years ago, when everybody—old and young—had to learn to dance all over again, of course there were dancing classes and clubs and dancing in general to the exclusion of almost everything else, but now everyone knows how to dance and the rush for lessons has abated. But the dancing still goes on in the same mad way—only madder.

Ever since Saturday evening—a week ago—when a certain country club was given over to a number of the college set, dancing has again become a topic of conversation.

No, not dancing—"ragging!"

To such an extreme was it carried that one man wondered where the mother of one of the girls could be!

So great was the shock to some of those who happened to witness such dancing that many unflattering comments have been made, and it seems to have started a lot of talk about the "ragging" that has been creeping generally into the dancing all summer.

Two-steps and waltzes have come back, it is true, but the "ragging" is just as bad and as ungraceful as the bunny hugging and turkey-trotting that revolutionized dancing a short time ago. What next?

THIS week will be marked by two notable weddings in town, two of interest out of town, a large garden party and many departures for summer homes.

The marriage of Miss Julia Chouteau Maffitt to Robert Hough Keiser, which will take place Wednesday evening at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Pierre Chouteau Maffitt, will be one of the brilliant nuptial affairs of the season.

The bride's two cousins, Misses Julia and Nancy Bates, and Mr. Keiser's cousin, Miss Eleanor Hough, will be bridemaids. Miss Julia Bates will be maid of honor. Charles Winston, now of Jefferson City, will be best man.

Miss Maffitt is a descendant of Pierre Laclede, the founder of St. Louis. She made her bow to society several years ago and has enjoyed unusual popularity. She is a fine horsewoman, fond of outdoor recreation, and has traveled widely.

Her wedding will bring together a fashionable gathering, and many relatives whose names are associated with the history of St. Louis.

Mr. Keiser belongs to every civic and social club of importance in St. Louis. He is a broker and is on several charity boards. He is the son of the late John P. Keiser and resides with his mother at 42 Portland place, where he will take his bride when they return from their wedding trip.

We are showing New Sweaters and Sport Hats. Sally Meagher Mill. Co., 800 Century Bldg.

THE wedding of Miss Ina Morris, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. C. C. Morris, and Travis Fleishel, formerly of Tyler, Tex., will be a large affair, taking place at the Second Baptist Church, Thursday evening, at 8 o'clock. The ceremony will be followed by a reception at the home of the bride, 5550 Bartmer avenue.

The bride has been one of the maids of honor at the Veiled Prophet's ball, twice, and is one of the most popular belles of her set. Mr. Fleishel came here several years ago and has resided at 8 Beverly place with the "Beverly Place bachelors," a group of men who are prominent socially and in business affairs.

Miss Lorna Doone Carr will be maid of honor, and the bridesmaids, Misses Juanita Wilkinson, Vera Teichmann and Miss Reba Raines of Columbia, Mo., a cousin of the bride.

The bridegroom's brother, Mark Fleishel, of Jacksonville, Fla., will be best man. The ushers will be Arthur Waite, of Chicago, who formerly lived here; William Dunlay Jr., Rovert Abeles and Jack Fielder and Edward Hale.

Don't neglect your steadily increasing weight; you'll be fat before you realize it. Write for our booklet. Reducing Machine Co., 750 Century Bldg.

MISS MARION JOHNSON'S marriage in Chicago, Tuesday evening, to John O'Fallon Clark Jr., will be of interest here, where Mr. Clark formerly lived and has many relatives.

The bridegroom's sister, Mrs. Edward L. Adreon, will depart Monday evening for her cottage at Douglas, Mich., and will stop in Chicago for the nuptials. Mr. Clark and his bride will spend their honeymoon at Weequetonsing, Mich., where the bridegroom's sister, Mrs. Alonzo C. Church, has taken a cottage for the summer, but will not occupy it until a little later in the season. She has lent it to the bridal couple.

The wedding will be quiet, on account of the recent death of the bridegroom's mother, who, before her marriage, was Miss Beatrice Chouteau, a descendant of Auguste Chouteau, who came to St. Louis with his stepfather, Pierre Laclede, to establish the trading post which is now St. Louis.

Mr. Clark is the [illegible] of George Rogers Clark of the Lewis and Clark expedition.

Another wedding, also of a former St. Louis man, will be that of Gifford T. Vermillion, son of Mr. and Mrs. T. M. Vermillion of 610 Hamilton avenue, and Miss Gertrude Dickens of Milwaukee, Wis., which will be celebrated there Saturday. Mr. Vermillion and his bride will continue to reside in Milwaukee.

THE engagement of Miss Frances Dameron, second daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Caswell Dameron of Pike County, to Theron E. Catlin, which was announced Friday afternoon, is one of the most notable bethrothals of the year.

Miss Dameron and her sister came down from their place, "Falicon," near Clarksville, and were the guests of Mrs. Allan T. Simpkins and her daughter, Miss Enid Simpkins, so as to be here for the luncheon at the Florissant Valley Country Club when the formal announcement was made.

The wedding, to be in the autumn, will be one of the important social events of the season.

Miss Dameron made her debut season before last, and, like her sister, Miss Catherine, who was a debutante the pervious year, was a great success.

Each winter Mr. and Mrs. Dameron and daughters come to town for the season from their country house, one of the show places in Pike County. Last winter they took the Nixon house, at 5 Lenox place.

Mr. and Mrs. Dameron and their daughters have spent much time abroad and were presented at the Court of St. James about three years ago.

Mr. Catlin is the second son of Mr. and Mrs. Daniel Catlin of 21 Vandeventer place, and the brother of Daniel Kayser Catlin and Mrs. Frederick Winthrop Allen, now of New York.

He is a graduate of Harvard, class of '99, and a member of the University, Racquet, Country, St. Louis and Noonday Clubs of St. Louis and the University Club of New York.

Have your hair permanently waved at Patterson's, 4970 Delmar.

MRS. WILLIAM H. SCUDDER of 3673 West Pine boulevard, accompanied by her daughter, Mrs. Henry McRee, and her new granddaughter, Amelia Scudder McRee, will depart the last part of the month for her summer home at Magnolia, Mass. Her other daughters, Mrs. John H. Overall, who went on ahead to open the house, and Signora di Rosa of Boston, are already there.

Mrs. William G. McRee of 11 Hortense place and her sister, Miss Nan Taylor, have gone to Biddeford Pool, Me., where Mrs. McRee has a summer home.

Later her daughters, Mrs. Howard L. O'Fallon, and Mrs. Tankerville J. Drew will join her.

Misses Anne and Ruth Lionberger of 37 Westmoreland place have departed for their summer home in Marion, Mass.

Mrs. Ben Hyman of 5937 McPherson avenue, has announced the engagement of her daughter, Miss Rose Hyman, to Milton D. Mendle of 4936 Fountain avenue, and will be at home this evening from 7 until 11 o'clock, in honor of the occasion.

Mrs. Francis A. Lane of 3640 West Pine boulevard, and her daughter, Miss Isabelle Lane, have gone to Esmont, Va., to spend several weeks before joining Mr. and Mrs. Nathaniel Lane and their daughter, Miss Helen Leroy, in Cambridge, Mass.

MISS HELEN BANISTER, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. E. W. Banister of 5128 Westminster place, entertained the Washington University Chapter of Kappa Alpha Theta, Saturday, at luncheon, to announce the engagement of Miss Mildred Searcy, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. J. Searcy, 5095 Westminster place, to Frank B. Bills.

The announcement was made by two children, Jane Knippenburg and Virginia Lee Gregg, dressed as "Tom Thumb" bride and groom.

Miss Searcy, a graduate of Mary Institute, is a junior in Washington University.

Mr. Bills is a graduate of the engineering department of Washington University, in the class of 1914.

The marriage of Miss Ethel Schumacher, of 1842 North Jefferson avenue, and William J. Kennel will take place at the home of the bride, Wednesday. After a short bridal tour Mr. Kennel and his bride will be at home at 4140 St. Louis avenue.

Mrs. Marcus Harris of 14 Washington terrace and her daughter, Virginia, will depart today for Salt Lake City, Utah. There they will join Mr. Harris and go to the San Francisco Exposition. They will spend the summer at Long Beach, Cal.

MISS EULA EDNA URBAN, twelfth and youngest child of Judge and Mrs. Emanuel Urban of Louisiana, Mo., and Dr. J. M. Kuhns of Honolulu, Hawaiian Islands, were married last evening at the home of the bride's sister, Mrs. John F. Schnitzer of 4850 Humphrey street.

The Rev. W. J. Williamson of the Third Baptist Church officiated. The bride's parents and all her brothers and sisters were present at the ceremony.

The bride has been private secretary to Dr. Robert Terry at Washington University for four years, and it was while Dr. Kuhns was taking his course there they met.

Dr. Kuhns has received an appointment at Queen's Hospital in Honolulu and he and his bride departed last night for that place. They will stop in San Francisco to visit the bridegroom's parents and the exposition.

The bride's sister, Hilda, was her maid of honor, and Dr. J. E. Strode, a classmate of the bridegroom, was his best man.

The bride's sisters are Mrs. E. Lane of Blazeau, Mo.; Mrs. C. A. Turner of St. Louis, Mrs. E. F. Dowell of Kinloch, Mo., and her brothers, four of whom are doctors, are Eugene and C. F. Urban of St. Louis and Drs. W. E. of Perryville, Mo., E. T. of St. Louis, Robert O. of Centralia, Ill., and John G. Urban of St. Louis.

MEMBERS of the Century Boat Club will be occupied during this week with preparations for the club's annual automobile run Saturday and the dinner dance at the clubhouse, which will follow. The event will be much more a social affair than is usual in such matters, because most of the entrants will carry guests as passengers, and practically every club member will have guests at dinner. The cars will be gay with flowers and green and white pennants and streamers, green and white being the club colors, and each will vie with the others for the greatest beauty of design. A long list of prizes for their feature of the day will make the decorations contest very keen. Mayor Kiel, B. G. Brinkman and Eberhard Anheuser have offered cups for the first three prizes in the decorations contest. The other prizes range from gasoline to automobile "parts" and accessories.

The day is sure to be a gay one and one of the notable events of the week.

The marriage of Miss Sarah Louise Presser, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. O. J. Presser of 3825 Cleveland avenue, to Charles F. Klinge, took place Wednesday at 8 o'clock, at the home of the bride's parents. The Rev. Dr. R. Ames Montgomery of Tyler Place Presbyterian Church officiated. The bridegroom's sister, Miss Edwina Klinge, and William Stoppelworth were bridemaid and groomsman, respectively. After the wedding Mr. Klinge and his bride departed for their new home at 2925A Sidney street, where they were given a surprise party by the Tyler Place Christian Endeavor Society, of which the young people are members.

Announcement has been made of the engagement of Miss Margaret Pietzker, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. E. J. Pietzker of 5646 Clemens avenue, to William R. Perkins of Galveston, Tex. The wedding in August will be the culmination of a romance begun two years ago, when the bride-to-be was visiting in the South.

Miss Clara Stock of 5717 Florissant avenue and John C. Maguire were married Thursday morning at 9 o'clock, in the Church of Our Lady of Perpetual Help. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. Joseph Wentker at solemn high mass. Miss Stock is the daughter of Bernard Stock. Mr. Maguire is the son of William E. Maguire, State president of the Catholic Knights of America. Both families are prominent in Catholic circles and have many friends. After a honeymoon trip Mr. Maguire and his bride will be at home in their new residence, 4721 St. Louis avenue.

Miss Alma Hoffmeister, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. F. J. Hoffmeister of 7806 South Broadway, and Dr. T. Joseph Toner of Gary, Ind., were married Tuesday morning at St. Boniface's Church, the Rev. Father Neiters officiating.

The bride's gown of white satin was trimmed in pearls and some rare lace brought to her from Brussels, and a court train fastened from the shoulders with an ornament of pearls. Her veil was arranged cap-fashion and fastened with orange blossoms. She carried a shower bouquet of bride's roses and lilies of the valley.

Miss Adele Hoffmeister was maid of honor and Miss Anne Savage of Lincoln, Ill., was bridemaid. They were gowned in lavender, the maid of honor's gown being a combination of embroidery and lavender taffeta, with a picture hat of lavender maline. The bridemaid's gown was of lace and a deeper shade of lavender taffeta, with a picture hat of lace and maline. Both had maline streamers on their hats, fastened to their wrists with miniature bouquets. They carried shower bouquets of palest pink Killarney roses.

After a wedding breakfast at the Planters Hotel, Dr. Toner and his bride departed for Chicago and from there they will make a motor trip through the Wisconsin summer resorts, and will be at home after August 1 at Gary.

HAIR ON FACE NECK AND ARMS WHAT CAUSES IT

Nature does not produce coarse stubborn growths of superfluous hair. They are caused by the unwise use of so-called hair removers.

The only way to gain control of such growths is to devitalize them. It is impossible to accomplish this result with pastes and rub-on preparations, because they only remove hair from the surface of the skin. De Miracle, the original liquid depilatory, devitalizes hair by attacking it under the skin as well as on the skin.

Imitations of De Miracle are as worthless as pastes and rub-on preparations, because they lack certain ingredients that De Miracle alone contains, which give it the power to rob hair of its vitality—its life sustaining force.

Insist on the genuine De Miracle, and you will get the original liquid hair remover. Others are worthless imitations—refuse them. De Miracle is sold in three sizes, 50c, $1.00 and $2.00 bottles. The larger sizes are the most economical for dermatologists and large users to buy. If your dealer will not supply you, order direct from us. The truth about the treatment of superfluous hair mailed in plain sealed envelope on request. De Miracle Chemical Co., Park Av. and 130th St., New York.

Today's Beauty Helps

COMPLEXION BEAUTIFIER—Nothing is more repulsive than to see a woman with her face all daubed with face powder in her desire to hide marks of age. Instead of using powder which clogs and enlarges the pores, it is far better to use a good face lotion that will improve and permanently benefit the skin. By dissolving four ounces of spurmax in one-half pint hot water you can make an inexpensive lotion that will do wonders as a skin whitener and complexion beautifier. It removes all shininess, sallowness and roughness, and gives the skin a smooth, velvety tone, while it does not rub off easily like powder, nor does it show on the skin.

MAKES HAIR FLUFFY—By washing the hair with a teaspoonful of canthrox dissolved in a cup of hot water, afterward rinsing thoroughly with clear water, one finds that it dries quickly and evenly, is unstreaked, bright, soft and very fluffy, so fluffy, in fact, that it looks more abundant than it is and so soft that arranging it becomes a pleasure. This simple, inexpensive shampoo cleanses the hair and scalp thoroughly of all dandruff and dirt, and leaves a clean, wholesome feeling. All scalp irritation will disappear, and the hair will be brighter and glossier than ever before.—ADV.

IT RUINS HAIR TO WASH IT WITH SOAP

Soap should be used very sparingly, if at all, if you want to keep your hair looking its best. Most soaps and prepared shampoos contain too much alkali. This dries the scalp, makes the hair brittle, and ruins it.

The best thing for steady use is just ordinary mulsified cocoanut oil (which is pure and greaseless), is cheaper and better than soap or anything else you can use.

One or two teaspoonfuls will cleanse the hair and scalp thoroughly. Simply moisten the hair with water and rub it in. It makes an abundance of rich, creamy lather, which rinses out easily, removing every particle of dust, dirt, dandruff and excessive oil. The hair dries quickly and evenly, and it leaves the scalp soft, and the hair fine and silky, bright, lustrous, fluffy and easy to manage.

You can get mulsified cocoanut oil at any pharmacy, and a few ounces will supply every member of the family for months.—ADV.

OBJECTIONS BY ARCHBISHOP MAY HOLD UP GRADING

Aldermen Had Intended to Prepare Taylor Avenue for Car Line Extension to North St. Louis.

A protest by Archbishop Glennon against the assessment of special taxes against the disused Holy Trinity Cemetery at Taylor and Florissant avenues may prevent the enactment of an ordinance by the Board of Aldermen to grade Taylor avenue at that point, to furnish a way for the United Railways to extend a line to Broadway in North St. Louis.

Director of Public Utilities Hooke says Taylor avenue is the only street in that vicinity the grade of which is not so steep that it could be used as a street railway route. There is no line between Cass avenue and Baden, a distance of about five miles, which connects with the Broadway line and enables passengers in the western part of the city to reach North Broadway without riding miles out of their way.

Archbishop Glennon sent a letter of protest to the Public Service Board before the bill was introduced in the Board of Aldermen, in which he said the cemetery is divided into innumerable burial lots, the owners of which cannot possibly be made to pay special assessments for the grading. The Archbishop suggested that a delay of a year or so might enable him to arrange with lot owners to move their dead to other cemeteries, making the old cemetery marketable for other purposes, and placing the property in condition to stand a special tax for street improvements. This letter has been forwarded to the Board of Aldermen by the Public Service Board.

The Holy Trinity Cemetery, known also as the Bremen Cemetery, is one of the oldest in or near St. Louis. Not a grave has been opened in it for more than a generation. About half the cost of the proposed grading, estimated at more than $5000, would be assessed against the cemetery property under the pending bill. The balance would be assessed against the Terminal Railroad Association, which owns 2277 feet fronting on the proposed improvement.

The Terminal Association also filed a protest against the improvement, contending that its property would receive no benefit from the grading of Taylor avenue, as it is used purely for railroad purposes.

The United Railways Co. has not signified an intention of extending a line down Taylor avenue when graded, to Broadway, but public officials feel that if this street were put in proper condition it would be a simple matter to get the traction company to use it as a North Side connection with its Broadway line.

The bill was sent to committee last week and will be the subject of a public hearing, to be announced next week.

CHOLERA MICROBES ROUTED BY OTHER MICROBES, DOCTOR SAYS

PARIS, June 12.—Dr. Louis Legroux of the Pasteur Institute has made the declaration that neither soldiers nor civilians in France need have any fear of the cholera.

Cholera microbes are destroyed, the doctor says, by other microbes that develop during the process of the decomposition of bodies in the open air. This and other reasons, according to Dr. Legroux, removes all danger of cholera from decomposing bodies.

Greatest Waist Purchase on Record

The entire stock of one of New York's best designers purchased by Sonnenfeld's—resulting Monday in a great sale of

3500 Summer Waists at $3.50

Intended Prices, $5.95, $6.95, $7.95, $8.95, $9.95 to $12.95

The entire New York wholesale district is talking about this record-breaking purchase. It is the greatest single purchase ever made for waists of this character.

The maker's name is withheld by request. We secured his entire stock—all brand-new, in latest Summer styles, materials and trimmings.

When one store buys 3500 Waists in a single lot, it means that the price was so low they simply couldn't resist. And you will find these values at $3.50 so astonishing that your highest expectations will be far exceeded.

Thirty-five hundred fresh, crisp, Waists—exquisitely fashioned and embodying finest workmanship. Styles so varied that complete description is out of the question. An endless profusion of exclusive trimmings, materials and shadings.

Pretty trimmings of fine Silk, Filet, Venise, Cluny and Mechlin lace. Some with hand-embroidered eyelets or lace insertion extending around body. Others with flaring standing collars, or flat collars edged with frills, or of all-lace.

Waists of fine, heavy Georgette Crepe, Crepe de Chine, Sheer Organdie, Chiffon Cloth, Shetland Lace and washable Satin, in shades of white, flesh, peach, bisque, rose, and combinations.

Intended Prices, $5.95, $6.95, $7.95, $8.95, $9.95 to $12.95

Sleeves are all trimmed to harmonize perfectly with the body of the waists, and are in both long and short effect, including a complete showing of the new bell-shaped style.

Virtually our entire main floor will be devoted to the display of these waists Monday, and fifty experienced salesladies will be on hand to aid you in choosing. You can see many of the styles in our windows.

Aunt Sally's Advice to Beauty Seekers

K. C. F. asks: "Will you tell me how to get my hands white and soft? They have become rough and are so dark in contrast to my arms." The method mentioned in reply to Eloise should bring the desired results; wear gloves to prevent soiling the bed linen.

D. N. A. writes: "How can I reduce a double chin? Also how to get rid of crow's feet?" Use a wash lotion prepared by dissolving 1 oz. powdered saxolite in ½ pt. witch hazel. This tightens the skin, tending to disperse wrinkles as well as flabbiness about the chin or elsewhere.

Eloise says: "My freckles are worse than ever this year, made doubly conspicuous by a pallid complexion. Is there any cure?" Ask your druggist for an ounce of mercolized wax, apply nightly like cold cream, removing in the morning with warm water. As the wax gradually absorbs the lifeless cuticle, not only will the freckles vanish, but the new and younger skin which appears will have a healthy color. Probably you will need to continue treatment a couple weeks or so.—Woman's Realm.—ADV.

New, Positive Treatment to Remove Hair or Fuzz

(Beauty Notes)

Women are fast learning the value of the use of delatone for removing hair or fuzz from face, neck or arms. A paste is made with some powdered delatone and water and spread on the hairy surface. In 2 or 3 minutes it is rubbed off, the skin washed and every bit of hair has disappeared. No failure will result if you are careful to buy genuine delatone.—ADV.

ST. LOUISAN GETS MILITARY DIPLOMA BY RECORD EFFORT

Leroy H. Watson Will Bring Home Pole Vault Championship of West Point Academy.

Leroy H. Watson, who distinguished himself as a McKinley High School athlete, was graduated yesterday at the West Point Military Academy, and will bring back to St. Louis the pole vault championship of the college.

Watson, 21 years old, won second prize in 1909 in a popularity contest conducted by the Post-Dispatch, and was rewarded with a trip to Washington, D. C., to attend the inauguration of President Taft. Upon his return from Washington, his schoolmates elected him captain of the track team.

Overcame Difficult Obstacles.

His ambition to enter West Point seemed impossible of gratification, as he was about to be graduated at McKinley, but in the face of discouraging advice he pluckily packed his grip a week before the commencement exercises, and went to Highland Falls, N. Y., where he understood a preparatory school was in session. He found the school closed, and had only enough money left out of $50 he had borrowed from an uncle, to take him to New York City.

There he learned the address of an instructor in the preparatory school, and persuaded a railroad official to give him a pass to the instructor's home town in the western part of the State. The tutor assisted the plucky youth, and in less than two weeks he had "crammed" sufficiently to return to Jefferson Barracks just in time to stand examination for West Point. He passed, and was recommended by Congressman Dyer of St. Louis.

Mother Unaware of His Efforts.

His mother, Mrs. William C. Wright of Dallas, Tex., was visiting in Texas at the time, and did not know of his plan until after he had been admitted.

Gus Frey, Republican City Central Committeeman of the Seventh Ward, is an uncle of the West Point graduate, and will entertain him in St. Louis upon his return this week.

Watson is subject to assignment elsewhere at the end of a four-months' furlough that commenced yesterday.

Miss Alice Pitcher, assistant secretary to Director of Public Welfare Tolkacz, a cousin of the graduate, was his guest at the military ball which preceded the graduation last week.

JOSEPHINE HOUSE WILL BE FORMALLY OPENED TODAY

Co-operative Boarding Place for Girls Earning Less Than $10 a Week.

Josephine House, 1769 Mississippi avenue, which has been designated by its founder, Miss D. E. Nirdlinger, as a cooperative boarding house for girls, will have its formal opening and reception this afternoon. Josephine House was furnished by Mrs. Marquard Forster and Mrs. Caroline Seitz in honor of their mother. Mrs. Josephine Schlossstein. The purpose of the founders is to establish a real home for girls who earn less than $10 a week. Mrs. D. Burg is in charge.

There are 12 rooms in the house and one will be used as a drawing room, a library and dining room. This will be the social part of the home. There will be seven bedrooms and the capacity of the home will be 14 girls. It is non-sectarian.

The officers of the home will receive the general public, who may inspect the boarding house, and after today it will become the private home of the young women boarding there. The officers are: Miss D. E. Nirdlinger, president; Mrs. E. V. Papin, vice president; Mrs. Stella Schnaider, secretary and treasurer, and Mrs. Edna Walsh, chairman of the House Committee.

Texas Delegates to Ad Men's Convention to Stop Over in St. Louis.

The Advertising Club of St. Louis received word Saturday that about 125 delegates to the Chicago convention, to be held June 20—24, would pass through St. Louis next Saturday night, on a special train over the Missouri Pacific and Iron Mountain. From St. Louis the Texas delegation will go over the Wabash system to Chicago. While the Texans are in St. Louis, between trains, they will be entertained by individual members of the local advertising club.

BILL BY TALBERT PROPOSES WIDENING OF LOCUST STREET

He Would Cut Three Feet Off Sidewalks Between Jefferson and Theresa to Facilitate Traffic.

A bill to widen Locust street, from Jefferson avenue to Theresa avenue, by cutting three feet from each of the 12-foot sidewalks, will be introduced shortly by Director of Streets and Sewers Talbert, as a measure for traffic relief.

Locust street is narrower by six feet west of Jefferson avenue than east of it. The plan to widen it from Theresa to Fourteenth street, by cutting six feet off both sidewalks, has been under consideration by Talbert, but has not been decided upon by the Board of Public Service. It will be necessary next summer to resurface the smooth paving of Locust street, and it is Director Talbert's aim to have the curb line moved back at the same time, to avoid double inconvenience to the public and property owners.

The widening measure must be approved by the Service Board before it is introduced in the Board of Aldermen.

Nugent Employes Give Excursion.

CATHOLICS ASKED FOR LIBERAL CONTRIBUTIONS TO THE POPE

Conditions in Europe Basis of Special Appeal by Papal Delegate and Archbishop Glennon.

Collections for the benefit of the Pope will be taken in all the Catholic churches of St. Louis and the St. Louis Diocese next Sunday.

John Bonzano, Archbishop of Meltene, the apostolic delegate at Washington, sent to all of the archbishops in the United States an appeal for liberal contributions, on account of the war in Europe. He called attention to the fact that, as the European nations are at war, they would be unable to respond so generously with their donations this year, and that it would be necessary for the United States to contribute more liberally than usual.

Archbishop Glennon added that as the Pope was anxiously and successfuly working for the pacification of Europe and contributing to the support of the most unfortunate among the war victims, he hoped the appeal for money would meet with generous response.

MONTHLY TRIAL DAY FOR WIFE-BEATING CASES SUGGESTED

Assistant City Attorney Believes Innovation Would Restore Peace in Many Families.

Assistant City Attorney Norman Y. Sadler told a Post-Dispatch reporter yesterday that he believed if he could induce Judges Hogan and Sanders of the two city courts to consider all wife-beating cases on one day each month, that peace could be restored in many families and that many wives and children could be kept from want.

His position is that when a husband and father is fined and sent to the workhouse for wife-beating, the real suffering is borne by the family, which frequently has no income while the man is serving his sentence.

The assistant city attorney has written letters to the judges asking them to try his plan. In the meantime, he is putting it into effect in a different way. In the last two weeks he has continued on the docket until June 30 the cases of 12 men charged with disturbing the peace of their wives. He has instructed parole officers to visit their homes and determine the cause of the trouble and just how serious it is.

"When the day for the trials arrive," he said, "we will be in possession of the facts and will know just how to deal with the cases. My idea is for the court to fine the men if they are guilty and then parole them. If they do not behave they can be sent to the workhouse for violating the paroles.

"My idea in having all such cases set for one day each month is that cases of the character can be handled much better in a private session of the court than when the courtroom is crowded."

Judge Sanders for more than a year has been assessing only nominal fines for first offenders in such cases. After sending a man to the workhouse for a few weeks he has a parole officer investigate, and if the man is found to be seriously at fault he is warned that a second offense will mean a much more severe punishment. Judge Sanders says his plan has been very successful.

No Compromise, War to Finish, Is Ferrero's Opinion

even the science of which we boast nor the power we have acquired over things can conquer? Even the most candid optimist feels himself called on to answer "yes" to these questions—so clearly do the facts seem to speak.

Civilization's Vast Funeral Pyre.

Our civilization had put the accumulation of wealth above every other thought; it had become the mystic duty of all men; to fulfil this duty they underwent the most cruel trials, supported the heaviest fatigues, climbed the most perilous precipices. And this civilization by letting loose the war in Europe has seemed to want to imitate the suicide of many barbarian Kings spoken of in history and legend; by forming a great funeral pile of all the most beautiful and most precious treasures and then apply the torch, plunge in the flames and burn with it.

Our civilization sought to wrest their most dangerous arrows from disease and death; it protected life as the greatest of all blessings; the researches of science and statesmanship were made to that end. Our civilization glorified itself for having mitigated the cruel ferocity of ancient customs. And the century that has suppressed epidemics, tortures, duels, spectacles of cruelty, that was almost ashamed to inflict the death penalty on a few criminals; that had even protected the dumb animals from the furious whips of drunken cart drivers—that century has been carrying on for nearly a year, and will continue, how long no one knows, without horror, without complaint, in silence, the most horrible slaughter recorded in history. More than two million men have already been killed! Our century claimed to have given the liberty to the peoples to freely criticize their governments, and to have abolished the secrecy with which public affairs were carried on; and we behold the people giving up these rights without a lament, obeying more blindly than slaves, and fighting the most terrible of wars, on which the lives and fortunes of millions are depending, almost with closed eyes, without knowing or asking anything—not even what happens, what the heads of the armies think or want, nor what the government proposes to do. Even when Europe was governed by the most absolute monarchies there never was a war that was conducted with more secrecy, without giving any explanations to the people, who are called on to shed their blood.

And our century was proud of having shortened the time necessary for all the workings of life. Twenty cases and twenty suits could now be made in the time it formerly took to make one; and now we go in one hour the distance it once took us a day to go. But this epoch that knows how to save so much time, even on works of art, fails when it comes to the very thing that would be to all our urgent interests to have over as quickly as possible—war.

One would be tempted to affirm that our times have fallen into a deathly gulf of contradictions. The desire to accumulate riches seems to be ending in frenzied destruction; the hot thirst to enjoy life appears to be ending in wholesale slaughter; the passion for liberty in resigned, contented slavery, and the frenzy for speed has turned to mortal slowness.

Is it really thus? And what then is this germ of frailty or death that secretly threatens all attainment? We shall try to point it out in our next article, which these studies.

Man Just From Trenches Tells of a Soldier's Life

spray of death that the Germans send flying right at the top of your trenches when they suspect that you are getting ready to go after them. There is no getting through that fire and the only way to get out is to select a point at which the machines are not hurling their bullets. You couldn't get through without being hit any more than you could run through a rainstorm without being drenched.

"I have read of a trench rule that four shots an hour must be fired by the men in the front line, but I did not see any such rule followed. I did see the shovel truce, when a shovel held point upward from the trench, and answered in the same way from the other side, signifies a period for the burial of bodies between the two lines, but these are not very common, and in many places bodies are lying in sight, where they have been since October. It is a common thing, in trench digging, to disturb bodies which have been buried.

"Either side that has an apparent advantage is slow to grant a truce of any sort. The Christmas truce was observed at some places along the front, but the men who took part in it on our side were frowned on, and we heard through prisoners that the Germans didn't like it any better. With the feeling that exists now, such a thing is not likely to happen again. At some places where the trenches are close together, the Germans call out 'Johnny Bull!' and the British yell back, 'Sauerkraut!' But there are no friendly exchanges of papers, tobacco or anything of that sort.

"Aeroplanes are a frequent sight, and an aeroplane battle is an event eagerly watched for, but I did not see one. When an aeroplane passes over us we know that the enemy's artillery will have the range within 10 minutes. It is very difficult for the enemy to drop shells into the narrow space of a trench, but it is easy for them to shell out a battery, and after an aeroplane has seen a battery, about the only thing to do is to move the battery. The covering and concealing of batteries has become an art, and some are so well concealed that they are never found.

"The British are superior in aeroplanes, and they are superior, too, in artillery now. The big German superiority is in machine guns. They use machine guns to bore a hole through a brick wall. One hundred and fifty bullets in one place will make a hole through a nine-inch wall, and while one gun can't deliver that many, three guns can do it, and the fellow behind the wall has to get out.

"The use of asphyxiating gases had not begun at the time when I was at the front, and it was supposed then that the big shells, which knock down walls by air pressure, but which don't kill a man unless a piece hits him, were the worst weapons that could be used against us.

"One of the most necessary things for the soldier to understand is shrapnel. Shrapnel bursts forward, injuring only those in front of it, and it has a deadly effect for 250 yards from the bursting point. When they get your range with shrapnel you must either advance 50 yards or retreat 200 yards, to get out of range. Shrapnel is used by each side to prevent reinforcements coming up for the other side. When it bursts directly overhead it is practically harmless.

"Another use for shrapnel is to mow down the barb-wire entanglements that are in front of the German lines. Shrapnel will cut the wire and knock the posts over, and although the wire is still there, it isn't half so bad to have it lying on the ground as to have it up to your neck.

"The Germans prove the plentifulness of their ammunition by shelling in any and every direction. They shelled a Sunday religious service which I happened to attend, two miles back of the line, and the chaplain dismissed us without the benediction.

"The Germans also seem to have plenty of food, from the appearance of prisoners. The food supply for the British soldiers is plentiful and of good quality. But when it comes to drink, the British line is 'teetotal,' as they say in England. French country people often offer Tommy a bottle of wine, but he doesn't dare take it. A man on night post, not drunk enough to show it, but just a little tipsy or drowsy, is a danger to the whole line, and the army can't take any chances like that. An officer in the Dorsets, Lieut. Butcher, told me that five men had been courtmartialed and shot for being tipsy.

"The food is cooked some distance behind the line, and is brought up in 'dixies,' or big camp kettles, and reheated in square, covered dugouts near the line. There is stew three times a week and roast three times, with plenty of bacon, jam, cheese and bread; not hardtack, but freshly baked bread.

Hospital Facilities Called Wonderful.

"The facilities for handling wounded men are remarkable—a man can be in Southampton Hospital within 24 hours after he leaves the front. The great danger is from tetanus, in cases where dirt is carried into wounds. This is because of the infectious condition of the fertilized soil, a condition which tends to get worse the longer the armies stay there.

"My first view of the British in the trenches was at Ypres, in Christmas week, when they were still holding the town, and when the church there was little damaged, though the roof had been burned from the Cloth Hall. The British trenches, which were only 200 yards from the Germans in places, were full of water, but the men were cheerful, smiling and singing. I was at that time with the Seventh City of London Regiment, Royal Fusiliers, but as a spectator, rather than a combatant. Many of our Canadian men visited the line in this way before their own companies went over.

"The men I saw at the front in France showed this same spirit. Comparing it with the Boer war, I found that the great difference was in the relation of the men and their officers. In South Africa the volunteers were officered by an arrogant lot of regulars, and it was the rule that the men hated the officers and the officers bullied the men. Not all the British officers that fell in the Boer war were killed by the Boers—their own men shot some of them, if the stories that were current are to be believed.

"But in this war the officers and the men have a fellow-feeling, strict as the discipline is. The men are certain they can't lose, and are looking and hoping for the big advance. I am positive that they will hold their present positions. But that isn't the question. The question is whether they can dislodge the Germans. And I admit that it looks to me like a deadlock.

Germans Intrenched in Quarries.

"The Germans on the Aisne are intrenched in quarries, practically stone fortifications, many of them built for the purpose of German owners in the past dozen years. I have no personal knowledge of their second and third lines of trenches, but there is no reason to suppose that they are not just as strong as those which the British and French have built behind their front line, and those are practically untakeable.

"It is impossible to advance a 300-mile line all at once, and when you advance one part of it ahead of the rest, you form a salient, which is an easy target for the enemy on both sides. That is why I can't see how either side, on the west front, is going to dislodge the other. That had begun to be the feeling when I was there, and it is much plainer now. However, that isn't saying that the Germans can't be dislodged. England is full of soldiers, and she has pleny of men to make a landing expedition over the North Sea, if the thing could be feasible from a naval standpoint."

Beside his knowledge of the daily events of trench life, gained by personal experience and from the lips of others, Bach has brought back a plentiful supply of the views and the gossip of the privates and noncommissioned officers on matters which are beyond their official knowledge, but which it is their privilege to talk about. Gossip of this sort is not conclusive, but it is frequently interesting. This applies to Bach's "inside" story of the maneuvers before Paris, just before the city was saved from siege by Von Kluck's retreat. He tells the story as he heard it from British soldiers.

"The reason the Germans did not take Paris," he relates, "was that the Crown Prince insisted on having the honor of being the first to approach the city, and later to enter it.

"If Von Kluck had been permitted to

GOODYEAR ALL-WEATHER TREAD

See What These Dealers Call Service

UTMOST service does not lie in patching a tire on the road or cleaning a spark plug.

What these men give is BETTER. For they help you GUARD AGAINST these troubles. They make sure, so far as men can, that TROUBLES NEVER COME.

In a Dozen Ways They Guard Your Car

These men can cure your troubles when they come. And they do. But real service, they believe, lies in prevention.

And so they watch your tires and your car. With your permission, they fill the little tire cuts—do a hundred things that make tires last longer.

They point out here and there, the facts that you should know, so that no inconvenience comes to you when far from home.

Hundreds of Extra Miles

There are a score of inexpensive ways to get extra miles from old tires

These dealers know them. And before they suggest a new tire, they try to mend the old one.

A tire patch today—a little repair gum—may double mileage of a tire that has cost you many dollars.

And your dealer—one of the list below—will gladly show you all these things, if you only let him. He calls it "tire service."

Get These Protections

From any of these dealers you can get Goodyear Fortified Tires.

Goodyears do not always outlast any other. Mishap and misuse will come to any tire. But Goodyears won their top place because they average best, as proved by millions of tests and comparisons.

One reason lies in that high quality attained by ceaseless betterment. For years and years we have spent $100,000 yearly on research and experiment.

The other reason is that Goodyear Fortified Tires have five great features found in no other tire. They combat these six chief troubles in the best way known.

Rim-Cuts Insecurity
Blow-Outs Punctures
Loose Treads Skidding

We spend millions of dollars to give you these protections. This year alone we added improvements which cost us more than half a million dollars.

That's why Goodyears rule. They are supertires. Men who adopt them find contentment, and they stay.

Your Neighbor

Probably he already sells you supplies, perhaps repairs your car.

Then let him sell you tires, too. He has more to offer than others. He gives you good tires. And he offers you tire knowledge— intelligent tire care.

Your neighbor can give you all you want in service. Why should you go elsewhere?

The questions answered below are general in character, the symptoms or diseases are given and the answers will apply in any case of similar nature.

Those wishing further advice, free may address Dr. Lewis Baker, College Bldg., College-Ellwood Sts., Dayton, O., enclosing self-addressed stamped envelope for reply. Full name, and address must be given, but only initials or fictitious name will be used in my answers. The prescriptions can be filled at any well-stocked drug store. Any druggist can order of wholesaler.

"Mother" writes: "My son and daughter have reached the ages of 21 and 19. Both of them have grown up quickly and are well formed and strong looking, but they are neither of them strong and active as I had hoped they would be. They both are weak and timid. They are listless and forgetful and I am much alarmed over their conditions. You relieved me of rheumatism and I want you to prescribe for my children."

Answer: Your children have both grown large at the expense of their strength. Their systems need a good bracing tonic and builder. Three grain cadomene tablets will be splendid for them and should make them strong and healthy in a short time.

* * *

"Miss C" writes: "I am so light in weight that my friends call me 'Bubble.' I have a large frame and feel well, but I am very thin and pale. I want to increase my weight."

Answer: What your system requires is a good blood and nerve tonic. Such you will find in three grain hypo-nuclane tablets. Take these tablets with your meals and they will cause proper assimilation of your food. I always recommend these tablets to increase the weight. Some have gained as much as fifty pounds in six months.

* * *

"R. R. No. 2" asks: "Will you please tell me what is the matter with me and tell me what I may get to make me well? I have constant misery in my back on both sides, have headache all the time, and my feet and limbs, in fact, my whole body swells. At first I did not mind, but now I'm much worried.

Answer: You did not say how long you have been suffering, but you have a well developed case of kidney trouble. Start at once taking balmwort tablets. They should get your kidneys in good order in a little while. Continue their use until fully recovered.

* * *

"L. W." writes: "My blood is in bad condition. I suffer with constipation and my tongue is always coated. My skin is dark and I have pimples and don't feel good. I feel tired all the time, but when night comes I am too nervous to sleep. Please prescribe for me."

Answer: Get a tube of three grain sulpherb tablets (not sulphur) and take according to directions. They will clean your blood, aid digestion and relieve constipation. When you get your blood pure, the other symptoms disappear.

* * *

"Lucile" writes: "I want to get rid of dandruff and itching scalp. What would you suggest?"

Answer: In my practice I have prescribed the same treatment for seven years to overcome dandruff, and thousands are satisfied there is nothing better than the use of plain yellow minyol. Minyol contains no alcohol, and cleans and vitalizes the scalp. A few treatments should overcome the worst cases of dandruff. It tends to strengthen the scalp and gives life, lustre and health to the hair.

* * *

"W. W. C." writes: "I have gained so much flesh that I'm all out of proportion and I do not feel good. What will reduce my weight?"

Answer: Five grain arbolone tablets are the most effective and safest reducers I know of. They are harmless; come in sealed tubes with complete directions.

go ahead without interruption, nothing could have kept him from reaching Paris. But Von Kluck's army was moved to one side, to make room for the Crown Prince's army to come up. This movement made an opening for the British, and on the morning of Sept. 6 the British, who had been in retreat, assumed a position to take advantage of it. The result of this, and of Gen. Gallieni's prompt movement of his French troops, was that Von Kluck had to retreat.

"As proof of this statement, is the fact that on the previous night the British had orders to dig themselves in and fight to the last ditch. These orders were given before Gen. French had definite information of the advantage given him by the change in Von Kluck's position."

Bach says the impression among the British troops is that the Zeppelin is a notorious failure as a war vehicle, and that London is in much more danger from accidents due to the darkening of its streets at night than from the Zeppelins themselves.

"The British aeroplanes are guarding the coast so thoroughly that Zeppelins have no chance to do great damage," he declares. "An occasional Zeppelin visit is a good thing for England—it helps recruiting."

Bach Was Born in Madgeburg.

Bach, who is 35 years old and married, was born in Magdeburg, Saxony, but was taken by his parents to London when he was 6 months old. He lived two years in London, eight years in New York, and since that time, until this spring, he was a resident and a citizen of Canada. He was a militiaman in Montreal and Winnipeg, and went to the Boer War as a member of the First Canadian contingent. He has the silver service medal of that war, with four clasps bearing the names of Johannesburg, Driefontein, Paardeberg and Cape Colony.

Members of the Canadian militia were not required to go to the European war, any more than members of Missouri militia companies, in 1898, were required to serve in the Spanish War; but in one case, as in the other, there was a moral compulsion, and most of the militiamen enlisted. Bach went to Camp Valcartier, near Quebec, as a Sergeant in the Grenadier Guards of Canada, and this organization, with others, was merged in the Fourteenth Overseas Battalion.

Thirty-three thousand officers and men were taken across the Atlantic by the transport flotilla, which left Gaspe Bay Oct. 3. Bach has preserved the printed list of the ships in the flotilla, and it will be interesting to transatlantic travelers, who will recognize in it some of the favorite carriers of a year ago in the New York, Boston and Montreal services.

Impressive Voyage Across Atlantic.

Bach was on the Cunarder Andania. Among the 31 other transports taken from the transatlantic and Caribbean passenger service were the Cunarders Laconia, Franconia, Saxonia, Ivernia and Alaunia; the White Star liners Laurentic and Megantic; the Red Star liners Lapland, Zeeland and Manitou; the Royal George and Royal Edward of the Canadian Northern line, and the Cassandra, Florizel, Athenia, Tunisian and Virginian of various other services. The battleship Glory, one dreadnought of the Queen Mary type and four cruisers escorted the transports. The landing was made at Plymouth.

Bach believes that this flotilla, with its escort, could have made a successful landing on a hostile coast, if that had been necessary. He does not think, though, that the United States is in danger of invasion by any European Power, so long as it has a strong navy.

Some of the men from Western Canada, Bach relates, made trouble by taking pet animals with them, and one Winnipeg regiment insisted on being accompanied by a good-sized bear, which caused consternation among the inhabitants of Devonport. The Canadians found weather conditions in England as formidable as any they later encountered in France, and when they were moved from their tents at West Downs into huts at Lark Hill, spinal meningitis, diphtheria and pneumonia attacked them and several died.

The pay of Canadian soldiers is $1.10 a day for privates, $1.20 for corporals, $1.50 for sergeants, and up to $6 a day for Colonels. A separation allowance of $25 a month is made to wives, and husbands can assign part of their pay, in addition.

Praises St. Louis' Only Regiment.

Bach said there was some complaint, when he first enlisted, against recruiting men with German names or of German birth, but that he and others were accepted. When he got to the front, however, he found the feeling much stronger, and he was not surprised when he and 120 others were ordered returned. Most of the others, he said, were found not to be citizens of Canada, and were detained in Halifax, where he believes they still are. As he was a citizen, he was permitted to go where he chose, and he chose to leave Canada.

He was surprised, he says, to find that St. Louis has but one regiment, and that little interest is taken in it. Montreal, a smaller city, has in time of peace six infantry regiments, two field batteries, a cavalry troop and various auxiliary corps. However, he found the First Regiment here much better equipped than any Canadian volunteer regiment of his acquaintance.

Bach is interested in the present state of affairs between the United States and Germany, but says that, personally, he would prefer a Mexican expedition to another experience of European warfare.

Goodknit

The Underwear That "Solves the Bare Knee Problem"

Every man knows the infinite superiority of athletic underwear over the sticky, clingy, knitted kind. But it was an inspiration of genius that combined with a regulation athletic union suit three small features, improvements at strategic points—

1. Knitted knee extension of soft, light crosswise webbing, to protect the knee from contact with the rough trouser cloth.
2. "Closed Crotch"—the original "K. K." patented October 18, 1910—one button, opening extending down one leg. It cannot bind, gap, sag nor bunch up between the legs.
3. Patent Ventilation at Crotch. A very sensible improvement found only in "GOODKNITS." Crotch made of special fabric woven with holes that permit free and easy ventilation, and insure coolness and comfort where ordinarily the greatest discomfort is felt.

MADE IN SIZES TO FIT EVERY MAN

In Kool Krepe	$1.50
In Checked Nainsook	1.00
In Aero-weave	2.00

Other cloths, $1.00 and upward

"GOODKNITS" are made also in Athletic Knee length style, also in full knitted. If you cannot obtain "GOODKNITS" from your dealer, ask him to call

WOMAN SUFFRAGE

It's War Time Aspect.

The women of England are doing their duty. They are taking care of the wounded, or if they cannot assist in work of that kind they are adding their savings to promote the good work. They are knitting and sewing for the soldiers at the front. The suffragists have given so little trouble to the government that it will undoubtedly soften the hearts of those in Parliament, since the "militants" have turned all their energies to aid the fighting men of England, and so suffrage may soon come after this terrible war is over.

Thousands of women in America have overcome their sufferings, and have been cured of womanly ills by Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription. This medicine, though started nearly half a century ago, sells more widely today than any other womanly tonic. It can now be had in tablet form as well as liquid, and every woman who suffers from backache, headache, nervousness, pain at times, should take this "Prescription" of Dr. Pierce.

Many a woman is nervous and irritable, feels dragged down and worn out for no reason that she can think of. In ninety-nine per cent of these cases it is the womanly organism which requires attention; the weak back, dizzy spells and black circles about the eyes are only symptoms. Go to the source of trouble and correct the irregularities, the drains on the womanly system and the other symptoms disappear.

Doctor Pierce's Pellets are unequaled as a Liver Pill. Smallest, easiest to take. One tiny, Sugar-coated Pellet a Dose. Cures Sick Headache, Bilious Headache, Dizziness, Constipation, Indigestion, Bilious Attacks, and all derangements of the liver, stomach and bowels. 25 cents vial, by druggists. —ADV.

Radway's Ready Relief

J. L. Haddock of McGee, Mo., writes: "I had muscular rheumatism six weeks. Had three doctors, but did not get much relief. A friend insisted on me trying R. R. R. and sent me two bottles. In twenty minutes after the first application I could turn in bed with ease. Have used two bottles and am well."

Rheumatism

Apply the Relief externally to the part or parts affected, as briskly as circumstances will permit. Benefit will also be derived from Radway's Pills, their alterative action being peculiarly suited to this disease. Where the joints are swelled, stiff or contracted, the Relief, with sweet oil, is an admirable lubricant. 25c and 50c sizes, at all druggists.

LIBERTY BELL TO BE EXHIBITED IN ST. LOUIS IN FALL

Chairman of Relic's Itinerary Committee Virtually Promises Visit on Its Return From Fair.

The Liberty Bell, most noted of American historic relics, will be seen in St. Louis next fall, on its way home to Philadelphia from the Panama-Pacific Exposition in San Francisco. This was indicated in a telegram received by the Post-Dispatch yesterday from Chairman Seger, of the Philadelphia Councils Committee, in charge of the bell's tour.

Chairman Seger said in his message:

> The petition of 75,000 school children has been forwarded to the Liberty Bell Committee by Mayor Blankenburg, and I have in turn referred it to the Committee on Itinerary. I have no doubt at the present time but that the request will be complied with.

This indicates that only the formal announcement of the committee's decision remains. The committee has had considerable time for considering the return itinerary, and has received several requests, so that if there were any likelihood of a decision unfavorable to St. Louis the chairman would hardly speak in so confident a tone.

Post-Dispatch Obtained Signatures.

The petition to which he refers was a mass of sheets, bearing the signatures of 75,000 pupils of 119 St. Louis schools. These signatures were obtained by the Post-Dispatch week before last, with the co-operation of Supt. Blewett, and the petitions were forwarded to Philadelphia by express Tuesday, except that two of the schools mailed their petitions direct.

The movement to bring the bell here was started by the Post-Dispatch three weeks ago yesterday, and was indorsed in a proclamation by Mayor Kiel, who asked the children to sign the petitions.

This year's journey to San Francisco and return is probably the last that the Liberty Bell will take, if the Daughters of the American Revolution and the metallurgical scientists, whose opinions are quoted by the "daughters," have their way. There was strong opposition to the San Francisco tour, and only the prime importance of the occasion prevailed over these protests. The last previous journey made by the bell was to St. Louis for the Louisiana Purchase Exposition of 1904.

Bell Has Serious Disease.

In an article later printed in the Iron Age of New York the assertion is made that the bell is suffering from a serious metallic disease, and that its famous crack has been extended by the vibration caused by its journeys about the country—to New Orleans in 1885, Chicago in 1893, Atlanta in 1895, Charleston in 1902, Boston in 1903 and St. Louis in 1904.

The original crack has been held to be due to defects in admixture and in casting. It occurred when the bell, with clapper muffled, was tolling on the occasion of Chief Justice John Marshall's funeral. Had the bell been allowed to remain in Independence Hall, the experts say, the crack would not have grown bigger, but at present its extension is plainly to be seen, and if the "disease is not checked the bell may cease to be a single piece and become an august pile of fragments.

695 ISSUES OF NEWSPAPERS SUPPRESSED IN RUSSIA IN 1914

Forty-Four Periodicals Went Out of Business as Result of Activities of Censor in War.

BERLIN, June 12.—The strictness of the Russian censor is indicated in a dispatch from Copenhagen, which gives statistics for the year 1914, showing how many Russian newspapers and how many issues were suppressed, temporarily or permanently.

The figures show that the censor proceeded against and prevented the publication of 465 issues of periodical papers, and 230 non-periodicals. In 96 cases of periodicals the prohibition was only temporary, and in 24 cases of non-periodicals.

As a result of the activities of the censor in proceeding with considerable regularity against periodicals that persisted in printing undesirable material, 44 newspapers went out of business during the war.

MAYOR ISSUES PROCLAMATION FOR "AMERICANIZATION DAY"

A proclamation to celebrate "Americanization day," July 4, by inviting all citizens naturalized within the past two years and those whose declaration papers have been filed, to a mass meeting at the Coliseum, was issued yesterday by Mayor Kiel.

The Mayor will appoint a committee shortly to arrange for the Coliseum meeting. His action was at the request of local organizations interested in a national movement that started in New York. The newer citizens of the republic will be welcomed with patriotic addresses on Independence day, under the plan.

FIREWORKS PERMIT NECESSARY

Unless you intend to spend more than $2 shooting fireworks this July 4, you will not have to obtain a permit from Secretary Findly of the Public Service Board.

An ordinance passed last year, which transferred the permit function from the Mayor to the board, stipulates that only in case more than $2 worth, wholesale prices, are touched off by a patriot at one session, will a permit be necessary. The ordinance forbids the sale of cannon crackers, large fire crackers, "dynamite" tablets, to be shot in canes or other high explosives.

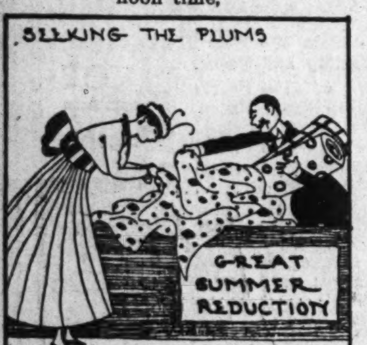
ARABELLA GETS A BARGAIN.

MISS ARABELLA SIMPKINS BROWN, in haste and agitation,
Again is running 'round the town, and filled with queer elation,
She goes where crowds the thickest are from morning until noon time,



SEEKING THE PLUMS
GREAT SUMMER REDUCTION

In jitney and in trolley car she seeks the plums of June time;
The bargains rare that grow on trees when summer days are warming,
The dollars cut to ninety-eight with which the woods are swarming.
The Palm Beach at three-forty-six that used to be three-fifty,
For thus does price the value fix and make a suit look nifty,
Which just before the mark-down sale was not at all appealing;
Thus price reductions never fail to cause a different feeling.
Though we despise the little cent in most of our transactions
Much bargain coin would not be spent but for these vulgar fractions.
In May Miss Brown espied a hat she thought was just a dandy
And would have bought it but for that she had no twenty handy.
But she contrived to bide her time well knowing that in season
The sun of June and summer clime would bring the price to reason.
We saw her on the street today, that selfsame hat a-wearing;
Its flowers were so bright and gay we could not keep from staring;
Which seemed to give her great delight; she asked us how we liked it.
We said we thought it out of sight the moment that we piked it.
"A bargain, too," she answered straight, "a bargain good and plenty;
'Twas only nineteen ninety-eight—they marked it down from twenty."

CAUSE FOR PRIDE.

"I see they're going to coin a new dollar at San Francisco."

"Yes. I understand it will have a workingman's face on it."

"That's a fine idea. The workingman ought to be proud to have his face on a dollar."

"But I know something that would make him prouder."

"What?"

"To have his hands on it."

REDUCING MAINTENANCE COST.

"Hooray. They have cut the price of gasoline again."

"Why should that interest you. I didn't know you had an automobile."

"I haven't."

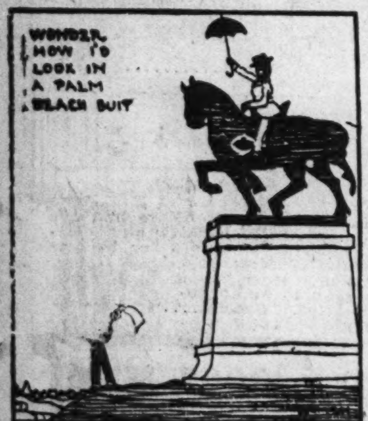
"Well, then, what's the cause of your hilarity?"

"I've got a Palm beach suit. If the price of gasoline keeps going down I can afford to clean it."

MONUMENTAL INTERVIEWS

"How are you, St. Louis. Is everything going well on Art Hill these days?"

"Yes, as well as might be expected when one has to sit on a three-legged horse and wear a heavy coat of chain mail this warm weather. Wonder how I'd look in a Palm Beach suit?"



WONDER HOW I'D LOOK IN A PALM BEACH SUIT

"What do you think of this town that's named after you?"

"From what I've been able to see of it this is a fine town, but I've been told that my view isn't very comprehensive. They say that from my position here I can see only the Twenty-eighth Yard."

"Well, that's the ward that gave the big majority for the Parkway."

"Too bad that Parkway project didn't pass. I'd like to get this balky nag of mine to put all four feet on the ground and start somewhere. If I could do that I'd ride through those 23 wards that voted against the Parkway and tell the folks a few things."

"Too bad you can't do that, St. Louis, but you seem to be firmly anchored here."

"Yes, but there's one consolation."

"What's that?"

"While I'm waiting for the people to change their mind and vote for the Parkway I can sit here and watch the progress of another great improvement."

"I don't quite get you."

"Why, don't you see I can watch them build that palatial $300 clubhouse for the Bait and Fly Casting Club down there by the lagoon. Things do move in this town."

A PROBABILITY.

And gone to take a walk;
As a betting proposition
Sixteen to one he'll talk.

The Gasoline War

BY CLARK M'ADAMS.

THE Standard Oil Co. has cut the price of gasoline in St. Louis to 8.9 cents. It is Mr. Rockefeller's intention ultimately to give us gasoline here. Mr. Carnegie gave us our library, and Mr. Rockefeller does not want to be outdone. He has made an investigation to ascertain what is the prime requisite of our lives, and having found it to be gasoline, which he sells himself, he is letting us have that at a price which is probably not approached anywhere else in the United States. We can all burn gasoline in whatever we have to burn it in as much as we like, and if there is a deficit in the end between the cost price and the selling price Mr. Rockefeller will cheerfully pay it. He wants us to have a good time. It is one of the great griefs of his life that there happen to be other people here selling gasoline who cannot have a good time with us. Mr. Rockefeller feels deeply for those people, and if there were anything in the Clayton act which would enable him to put us all on the same plane of happiness he would gladly avail himself of it. After we have had our good time and all those who are competing with him in the gasoline business here are put out of that business, Mr. Rockefeller will boost the price of gasoline to where only a few rich people who want to play all the time can afford to buy it in any quantity, and the rest of us will go back to work. Mr. Rockefeller is the originator of the theory that all play makes Jack a dull boy. There will be no dull boys here, if he can help it. He wants everybody to be bright and read the books in the library Mr. Carnegie has given us, just to make it quite plain to us that his is a kindlier and more humane philanthropy than Mr. Carnegie's. It will work out all right. Mr. Rockefeller never loses. When Judge Landis fined the Standard $29,500,000 Mr. Archbold and some of the others were alarmed, but Mr. Rockefeller only smiled. He knew.

MOTHER, may I go out to swim?
Yes, my darling daughter;
Be sure to bathe in gasoline—
It's cheaper now than water.

Father, get out the little Ford,
And let's go out to Gumbo;
The petrol hasn't been so low
Since Christofo Columbo.

Isn't our Uncle John a friend
To us who go a-riding?
He leaves us many a dime to spend
At some bucolic siding.

We'll wash the clothes in gasoline,
To do away with rubbing;
And, ah! the glory of the lawn
While gasoline is subbing.

Now we can have a motorboat,
And roam the river flowing
At no more cost to get about
Than if we all were rowing.

Does anyone here think Standard Oil
Is wicked, on the level?
We think that theory out here
Has gone to join the Devil.

It is, as Roosevelt has said,
A righteous corporation,
As anyone can quickly prove
By citing this deflation.

Just think of gas in Buffalo—
It brings about a quarter!
Imagine anyone a prey
To such illicit barter!

It costs about a nickel flat
To pipe it and refine it;
But one would think at times they had
To dynamite and mine it.

Get out the motorcycles, boys,
And let us go a-scooting
By sylvan brake and bosky dell
While merchants are disputing.

The corn is higher than the fence,
The sweet wild rose is blooming,
And all the country round us needs
A regular perfuming.

We'll pop our carburetors off
For nothing much this one day,
And find out if the Sunset Inn
Is selling drinks on Sunday.

We'll rim the course of Wild Horse Creek
From A as far as Izzard,
And all that vale shall smell of gas
Until we have a blizzard.

SOMEHOW our own sympathy for the other gasoline dealers doesn't flow as freely as Mr. Rockefeller's does. We have strained it through a chamois skin and blown through the pipe, but something interferes with the free passage of sympathy between our antitrust tank and our competitive carburetor. We are afraid it is our suspicion that before the Standard was readmitted to the State the other dealers were selling gasoline to us for more than twice what it cost. We are disinclined to believe this, but what else are we to think when they continue in business and meet every cut the Standard makes? What must they have been making when gasoline was selling for 17½ cents, the price when the Standard came back to Missouri and began its campaign?

None of Mr. Rockefeller's local competitors subscribes to the theory that the price of gasoline in St. Louis is a typical Rockefeller philanthropy. He has two or three ulterior motives, to hear them tell it. One always hesitates to attribute ulterior motives to so great a philanthropist as Mr. Rockefeller, but the ten other gasoline dealers in St. Louis don't mind doing it. They say that after its quarrel with the Waters Pierce Co. the Standard has come back to put the Waters Pierce out of business. Of course, Mr. Rockefeller would not know anything about that, nor would his son John. That is the sort of thing that is done out of their knowledge. Mr. Rockefeller and his son want everybody to be in business and do well at it. They have made themselves quite plain as to that. They are only careful that competition does not require the consumer to pay more than he should. That is a legitimate condition where there is no competition, but where there are a number of people selling the same thing and everybody is up and on his toes keeping his product moving, Mr. Rockefeller and his son do not think it should be so—and it usually isn't.

Gasoline at 8.9 cents a gallon is only a reflection of Mr. Rockefeller's own uniqueness. So let us burn some while we may. He can't live always. It only seems like it.

SAVE-THE-BABIES WORK TO QUICKEN AS SCHOOLS CLOSE

Necessity for Generous Support by St. Louis Children Is Strongly Apparent.

Closing of the St. Louis public schools this week will release from studies the thousands of children who each summer take up the pleasant task of saving the lives of babies through raising money with which to supply them with pure milk and free ice with which to preserve that diet from heat ravages.

With this earnest and energetic army at work, reinforced by the Post-Dispatch, it may be expected with confidence that the heavy mortality among needy infants, which otherwise would be inevitable, will be averted.

Many members of the Pure Milk and Free Ice League, into which the youthful workers have banded themselves, have been impatient at the restraint upon their efforts entailed by school duties, and devoted some of their time after study hours to conferring with district associates with the view to inaugurating an active campaign at the earliest opportunity. In this way much of the preliminary work is out of the way and substantial results will follow promptly the closing of the schools.

Conditions already disclosed to the Free Ice and Diet Circle of King's Daughters and the St. Louis Pure Milk Commission foretell a trying summer for those benevolent institutions. With the heated term but recently begun, both find themselves almost overwhelmed with calls for aid. Every resource is being employed by them in supplying the imperative needs of the babies, but they feel the necessity for that generous support that for ten years past has come from the boys and girls of St. Louis, with whom the Post-Dispatch realizes so great satisfaction in cooperating.

Neither the King's Daughters nor the Pure Milk Commission has money other than that derived from private sources, and their relief work is naturally controlled by their resources. But for the substantial sums annually contributed through the life-saving children, hundreds of babies must have perished, and that emergency now exists in a rather acute form.

It is a situation that no doubt will appeal strongly to parents and other older relatives of the League's members, who can make these little ones the medium of a philanthropic work unsurpassed in its divine character.

NATIONAL ANTI-SALOON LEAGUE PLANS "PETITIONS IN BOOTS"

Convention Plan to Send 5000 to Interview President; Delegates From Here Asked.

The Anti-Saloon League of New York has sent requests to the churches of St. Louis and other cities to send, at their own expense, delegates to the National Anti-Saloon League convention at Atlantic City, July 6—9. The league hopes to have 25,000 delegates at the convention, and the Million Dollar Pier, with its four auditoriums, having a seating capacity of 10,000, has been engaged. The league would prefer to have pastors sent as delegates, where possible.

It is proposed after the convention to send 5000 men from Atlantic City to Washington, by special train, to petition President Wilson to lend his influence to the fight against the saloon interests. The delegates on this trip are designated as "petitions in boots."

MEDALS FOR DIESEL ENGINE, MADE HERE

The Busch-Sulzer Bros. Diesel Engine Co. of this city has just been given the two highest awards bestowed by the Panama Pacific International Exposition jury of awards. The jury consists of 15 prominent and widely-known engineers of this country. The company was awarded the medal of honor on account of the merit of their Diesel type engine, and also the gold medal for the most complete and attractive exhibit in the Palace of Machinery.

These are the two highest awards conferred upon exhibitors. The Busch Company, of which August A. Busch is president, was the first to install the exhibit. The driving of the first concrete pile was made the occasion of a special ceremony by the exposition officials, city, State and Federal engineers being in attendance.

The 500-horsepower engine, the largest of its type built in this country, was started on the opening day by President Wilson by wireless. The impulse was received at the "Tower of Jewels" and by relays was conveyed from there to a special electric drop, attached to the engine.

It took four freight cars to transport this engine from St. Louis to San Francisco. The company has set aside $50,000 for the maintenance of the exhibit and the instruction of visitors during the life of the exposition.

$6,000,000 LOCOMOTIVE ORDER

Russia Awards Contract for 250 to Baldwin Works.

PHILADELPHIA, June 12.—Alva B. Johnson, president of the Baldwin Locomotive Works, said today he had received a cable message from the Russian Government awarding a contract to the company for 250 locomotives, to be completed by the end of the present year.

The order amounts to $6,000,000.

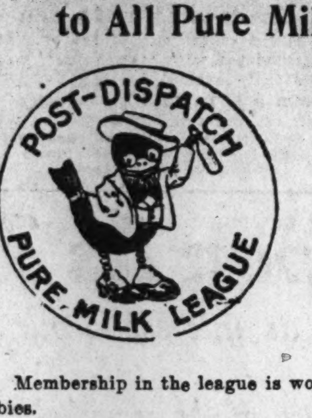
Membership Buttons to Be Given to All Pure Milk League Workers



HANDSOME buttons, testifying to their wearers' membership in the Post-Dispatch Pure Milk League, are ready for distribution to all who become league members in the summer of 1915.

They bear the inscription "Post-Dispatch Pure Milk League" and an attractive drawing of the Post-Dispatch Weather Bird in colors and with a bottle of pure milk in its "hand."

Membership in the league is won by helping the league to save the babies.

A membership card also will be sent to each person who thus qualifies.

Three Drown When Boat Overturns.

INDEPENDENCE, Io., June 12.—Ray [illegible], aged 23; David Sickles, 18, and James Sycles, 23; were drowned in the Wapsipinicon River here yesterday, when their boat overturned. A. Sewell was in the boat but managed to swim 30 feet to the shore.

How to be Slim and Attractive

If you are one of the many who suffer from obesity you know only too well the humiliation and discomfort one suffers when they are too fat. The cause of obesity is undoubtedly due to faulty assimilation. Too much of your food is turned into fat and too little into strength and vitality. To correct this eat sparingly of starchy foods and get from any good druggist a few oil of korein capsules and take one after each meal and one before retiring at night.

Weigh yourself once a week and note what a pleasant and reliable method this is for removing superfluous fat from any part of the body.

It costs little, is absolutely harmless and I am sure a week's trial should convince anyone that it is unnecessary to be burdened with even a single pound of unsightly fat.—ADV.

FRECKLE-FACE

Sun and Wind Bring Out Ugly Spots. How to Remove Easily.

Here's a chance, Miss Freckle-face, to try a remedy for freckles with the guarantee of a reliable dealer that it will not cost you a penny unless it removes the freckles; while if it does give you a clear complexion the expense is trifling.

Simply get an ounce of othine—double strength—from any druggist and a few applications should show you how easy it is to rid yourself of the homely freckles and get a beautiful complexion. Rarely is more than one ounce needed for the worst case.

Be sure to ask the druggist for the double strength othine as this is the prescription sold under guarantee of money back if it fails to remove freckles.—ADVERTISEMENT.

CENTURY BOAT CLUB TO HAVE ITS AUTO RUN NEXT SATURDAY

Six Silver Trophies Have Been Offered as Prizes in Annual Contest for Members.

Six silver trophies have been offered as prizes in the annual automobile run to be made by the Century Boat Club members Saturday afternoon, from the clubhouse on South Broadway to the Jefferson Memorial and return. Donors of the trophies are Mayor Kiel, G. A. Buder, Russell E. Gardner, Eberhard Anheuser, Benjamin G. Brinkman and Mrs. Mina Feuerbacher.

Hugh K. Wagner is chairman of the contest committee, with A. M. Lane as chairman of the committee on entries, and the following judges: Technical points, William Dever, O. E. Buder, J. A. Johansen, C. M. Spohr, Charles J. Sutter; decoration of cars, Homer Bassford, William Mollet, S. J. Harbaugh, William A. Meston, Elmer A. Kiel. E. J. Fuess will drive the pilot car. The return will be over a different route.

At the close of the run members of the club and their guests will be entertained with a dinner dance at the club house.

Fruitola Came to Her Rescue

From her home in Mountain Park, Oklahoma, Mrs. [illegible] Strange writes to the Pinus laboratories:

"I am taking Fruitola and Traxo for gallstones with good results. If it had not been that it came to my rescue, I would have been dead I am sure. I cannot say too much for Fruitola and Traxo."

Fruitola possesses properties that act directly upon the intestinal parts. It is a great system cleanser. Traxo is a tonic alterative that acts on the liver and kidneys, stimulates the flow of gastric juices to aid digestion and removes bile from the general circulation. It serves to build up and strengthen the weakened, run-down system.

The Pinus laboratories have many letters on file that testify to the merits of Fruitola and Traxo; letters from people who have used the remedy and know from actual experience what it has done for them.

For the convenience of the public, arrangements have been made to supply Fruitola and Traxo hrough leading druggists. A booklet of special interest to people suffering from stomach trouble can be obtained free by writing to the Pinus Co., Monticello, Ill.

MANY ITALIANS IN ARMY HAVE AMERICAN WIVES

Authorities Pleased by Ready Response Made by Aristocrats to War Call.

ROME, June 12.—Italian authorities are expressing gratification over the zeal with which men of all classes have hastened to volunteer since the declaration of war. In the aristocracy the volunteering is quite as general among the houses still faithful to the Pontiff as among those adhering to the House of Savoy.

Many noblemen who have volunteered have American wives. There is the Marquis Spinola, who some years ago married Miss Page, cousin of Thomas Nelson Page, the present Ambassador here. The Princess di Poggio Suasa, who was a Miss Curtis of New York, has opened her palace in Rome as a hospital for the wounded, and is sending three sons, who were all born in New York, to the front.

Don Marino Torlonia also will help, encouraged by his wife, Elsie Moore of New York; Prince del Drago, another volunteer, has as aunt-in-law Princess Giovanni del Drago, who was Mrs. Josephine Schmid of New York; another is Prince di San Faustino, who married Jane Campbell of New York.

Four of the Princes Rospigliosi are on the list, two of whom have American wives, Ethel Julia Bronson and Mildred Hasseltine. Marquis Teodoli, who has enlisted, had as mother Lily Conrad of New Orleans, at one time the most beautiful woman in Rome; while Count Senni leaves behind an American wife, Mary Layley of New York.

PROHIBITION NOT FAVORED BY COMMISSION IN NORWAY

Swedish Liquor System Recommended in Majority Report of Investigating Body.

CHRISTIANA, June 12.—An alcohol commission which was appointed by Parliament three years ago to investigate certain conditions and recommend reforms, has just issued majority and minority reports. The commission consisted of nine members. The majority report, which is signed by six members, advises against the prohibition of the import and manufacture of brandy spirits, but would have the sale of spirits subjected to the same rigid laws which are now in force in Sweden, in accordance with what is known as the Bratske system. The sale of distilled liquors, according to this system, is subjected to the most rigid limitations. The majority report also favors the Swedish system for the sale of beer, according to which beer below 2¼ per cent alcohol by weight is sold free of restrictions.

There are two minority reports. One is signed by two members and recommends prohibition by local vote; the "Semlag," place of dispensing liquors, to be allowed to import and sell spirits. The third member of the minority recommends total prohibition, or, that the prohibition of distilled spirits be decided by referendum.

The Norwegian Government sent a commission to the United States two years ago to study prohibition and other legislative conditions affecting the liquor business in the United States.

CIVILIANS REMAIN IN FIGHT AREA TO OBTAIN BIG MONEY

Most of Tradesmen Thus Active Will Be Able to Retire When the War Is Over.

DUNKIRK, France, June 12.—British officers and soldiers from the devastated countryside which now constitutes the battered front between their army and that of the Germans, frequently express surprise that some steps have not been taken to remove the civilian population from the immediate area of fighting. The clearing out of civilians, they declare, would simplify military operations, and reduce the opportunity for successful spying by the Germans.

Few of the civilians, however, will move until absolutely compelled, for most of them are earning large sums of money from the troops, either through the sale of garden truck or as artisans of various types. Prices in hotels, wineshops, and in the small general stores with which every little hamlet is supplied, are on a level with those in a Western American mining camp or a fashionable New England summer resort. Most of the tradesmen will be able to retire when the war is over.

WANTS AUTO LAWS ENFORCED

Civic League Says Ordinances Are Not Being Properly Observed.

Laxity in the enforcement of the new automobile ordinances was called to the attention of the Board of Police Commissioners yesterday by the streets committee of the Civic League in a communication signed by George C. Mackay, its chairman. The committee states that the ordinances relating to automobile headlights, noises and muffler cut-outs, which went into effect May 15, were well observed and fairly well enforced for a week or two after that date. Since then, the committee stated, conditions have become gradually worse, particularly in relation to the ordinance prohibiting dazzling headlights.

The committee called attention to the need of enforcing these regulations, in effect in virtually every large city, in the interest of public comfort and safety.

Tennis at Night to Be Tried.

The Social Service Committee of St. George's Chapel, Olive and Pendleton avenues, has arranged for an experiment in lighting tennis courts for night play. Sixteen gas lamps are being installed on two courts adjoining the chapel.

GRAND-LEADER
SIXTH WASHINGTON SEVENTH & LUCAS
SAINT LOUIS

EVERY ST. LOUISAN ASKED TO SALUTE FLAG TOMORROW

City Will Be Presented With Mammoth Emblem as Part of Flag-Day Celebration.

Arrangements for the Flag day celebration tomorrow have been completed by the Flag Day Committee appointed by Mayor Kiel. One of the features will be the presentation to the city by the Million Population Club of the largest flag in the United States.

The flag was made at the order of the club and was carried through the streets by 150 of the club members and 80 Boy Scouts, June 14, 1914, when it was viewed by more than 100,000 persons. It is of wool bunting and weighs 500 pounds. It is 78 feet wide and 150 feet long, and the blue field contains 48 stars, each 5½ feet in diameter.

The Flag Day Committee will assemble at the Business Men's League at 8:30 a. m. and will go to the city hall in automobiles. Each automobile will display a flag. The committee will have as guard of honor the Boy Scout Troop of the Clayton Methodist Orphans' Home, under command of H. H. Simmons, Scout Commissioner.

The Million Population flag will be presented to the committee by Postmaster Colin M. Selph, on behalf of the Million Population Club. Edward Hidden, chairman of the committee, will in turn present it to the city. Mayor Kiel will receive the flag on behalf of St. Louis.

Every citizen of St. Louis is asked to salute the flag at 9:15 a. m. The public schools will celebrate Flag day, and the committee has requested Supt. Ben Blewett to have every school child salute the flag at that hour. It also is requested that the street cars stop, and all business be suspended for one minute at that hour, and that the factory whistles be blown and the church bells be rung.

The committee asks that business houses, public buildings and residences display the flag, rather than use it as a decoration, thus conveying a spirit of reverence rather than gayety and celebration.

Flag day will be observed today by many of the churches in the city. Many of the ministers will devote a sermon to the flag and patriotism.

Examination for Library Positions.

The next examination for admission to the training class of the Public Library will be held in the Central Library, Thirteenth and Olive streets, beginning Tuesday, June 22, at 9 a. m.

Corn-Mad? Use "GETS-IT," It's Sure

Makes Corns Vanish Like Magic

A hard cap of skin makes up every corn. When you put 2 drops of "GETS-IT" on it, it shrivels up and comes right off—and there's your corn—gone by thunder! Simple as taking off your hat!

Don't Waste Time "Hollering." "GETS-IT," World's Simplest Corn-Cure, Never Fails.

That's why corn-millions have gone wild over "GETS-IT"—nothing like it ever known. Some folks, to this day, putter around with bandages, sticky tape, thick plasters, corn "pulling" salves, gouge corns out with knives, snip them with scissors, make them bleed and then howl because they can't get rid of sore corns. Use "GETS-IT." There's nothing to do but apply 2 drops. The work is done. "GETS-IT" does the rest. No pain, no fussing, no changing shoes, no limping. It never fails. Try it tonight for any corn, callus, wart or bunion. Be sure that you get "GETS-IT" and nothing else.

HOW JAPAN WOULD HAVE ENFORCED ITS DEMANDS ON CHINA

Article in Tokio Paper, Believed to Have Been Inspired, Gives Military Plans.

QUICK CAPTURE OF PEKIN

Little Trouble Was to Be Expected Because the Chinese Army Was Widely Scattered.

Correspondence of the Associated Press.

TOKIO, May 24.—If China had declined to meet the demands of the recent ultimatum by Japan, the Japanese program would have been to capture Pekin, which would have been "a matter before breakfast," and to have effected a military occupation of other centers of political power and wealth, according to semiofficial newspapers.

The Japan Times, a journal printed in English, but controlled by representative and influential Japanese, which is usually believed to have good authority for its utterances, undertook to outline the course Japan would take, even before the diplomatic crisis with China had been passed.

In most quarters its publications of these details, customarily forbidden before the outbreak of war, was regarded as officially inspired, very likely with the object of convincing China that Japan was determined and would brook no delay.

The article made it clear that the "independent" action which Japan in her ultimatum said she would take if China was obdurate, would not necessarily be war. It would be better styled, perhaps, a military and naval occupation of China pending acceptance of the Japanese demands. Nevertheless, it would be effectively an execution of the demands by force of arms.

Chinese Army Widely Scattered.

The general staff had estimated the military force of China at 47 divisions, including 300,000 troops of modern training and 150,000 men of the old school. However, as these troops were scattered all over the Chinese empire, their mobilization and concentration would be difficult.

Japan's military base would be established at Tientsin. A fundamental necessity being the control of the principal means of communication, the Tientsin-Pukow and Pekin-Mukden railroads would have to be captured. Their occupation would firmly establish a Japanese foothold in China. The troops stationed at Tsingtau would be able to "occupy Tsinanfu in a minute." The northern part of the Tientsin-Pukow Railway, that is, the line between Tientsin and Tsinan, could easily be occupied, and with Tientsin the base of operation, Japanese soldiers would soon be seen marching on Pekin. In Pekin there was stationed one company of infantry, while in Tientsin were two companies, with machine guns. The soldiers in Pekin would act as escort for Minister Hioki to Tientsin, where he would embark in a warship and proceed to Japan.

The account declared that in the south moves would have to be made jointly by army and navy, and then the better part of China would be under Japanese sway. Special care would be taken to protect Japanese and other foreign residents.

Some Engagements Expected.

The journal continued: "When the centers of China are guarded by a garrison, the soldiers will be disbanded. Then all places will be put under the control of our army; peace and order are to be maintained by our military administration. If the Chinese army offers no resistance, things will be carried out in peace; but when they show any resistance our soldiers will be obliged to fire upon them. And it is to be feared that engagements will take place between the Chinese and Japanese troops here and there, as the land of China is so extensive that peace cannot be established at a moment's notice."

In Manchuria, the program continues, the two divisions under Lieutenant-Generals Hungo and Ando, would be concentrated in Mukden and marshalled against the seventeenth, eighteenth and twentieth divisions of the Chinese army. The two Chinese Generals, Chan Tsolin and Feng Linko, who command these divisions, would soon surrender when informed of the real situation. The northern part of the Pekin-Mukden Railway would be captured by Japanese troops. Great forces would then be landed at some points in the province of Chihi; Pekin would be seized immediately. Indeed, the fall of Pekin, as stated, would be a "matter before breakfast."

The outline concluded: "In the south the power of our navy will soon tell. The Chinese ships can immediately be swept from the coast; and our land forces can be disembarked without any difficulty. The British troops garrisoned in Hongkong may be asked to cooperate with our soldiers in this part of the country. Thus our troops will carry all before them wherever they go in the land."

BOZ CLUB BANQUET TUESDAY

Organization Will Meet at Midland Valley Country Club.

The Boz Club of St. Louis will hold its reunion banquet Tuesday evening at the Midland Valley Country Club. The club will give this as the finishing touch to its year of literary and civic work. The Boz Club advocated the free bridge and Central Parkway, and among the talks of the evening will be one on, "What's the Matter With St. Louis?" and another on, "Municipally Owned Electric Light Plant." There will be other talks by members on literary subjects.

Davison Obear is president; the Rev. Bertram A. Dickens, nephew of the novelist, is life president and sponsor for the name "Boz." The membership is composed largely of students and young business men of St. Louis and other cities.

EVERY ST. LOUISAN ASKED TO SALUTE FLAG TOMORROW

City Will Be Presented With Mammoth Emblem as Part of Flag-Day Celebration.

Arrangements for the Flag day celebration tomorrow have been completed by the Flag Day Committee appointed by Mayor Kiel. One of the features will be the presentation to the city by the Million Population Club of the largest flag in the United States.

The flag was made at the order of the club and was carried through the streets by 150 of the club members and 60 Boy Scouts, June 14, 1914, when it was viewed by more than 100,000 persons. It is of wool bunting and weighs 500 pounds. It is 75 feet wide and 150 feet long, and the blue field contains 48 stars, each 5½ feet in diameter.

The Flag Day Committee will assemble at the Business Men's League at 8:30 a. m. and will go to the city hall in automobiles. Each automobile will display a flag. The committee will have as guard of honor the Boy Scout Troop of the Clayton Methodist Orphans' Home, under command of H. H. Simmons, Scout Commissioner.

The Million Population flag will be presented to the committee by Postmaster Colin M. Selph, on behalf of the Million Population Club. Edward Hidden, chairman of the committee, will in turn present it to the city. Mayor Kiel will receive the flag on behalf of St. Louis.

Every citizen of St. Louis is asked to salute the flag at 9:15 a. m. The public schools will celebrate Flag day, and the committee has requested Supt. Ben Blewett to have every school child salute the flag at that hour. It also is requested that the street cars stop, and all business be suspended for one minute at that hour, and that the factory whistles be blown and the church bells be rung.

The committee asks that business houses, public buildings and residences display the flag, rather than use it as a decoration, thus conveying a spirit of reverence rather than gayety and celebration.

Flag day will be observed today by many of the churches in the city. Many of the ministers will devote a sermon to the flag and patriotism.

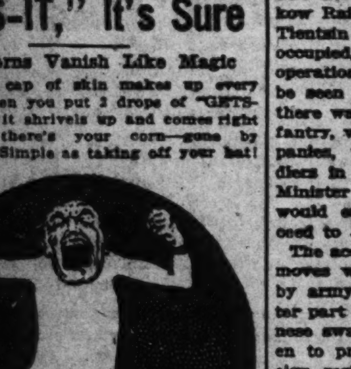
Examination for Library Positions.

The next examination for admission to the training class of the Public Library will be held in the Central Library, Thirteenth and Olive streets, beginning Tuesday, June 22, at 9 a. m.

Corn-Mad? Use "GETS-IT," It's Sure

Makes Corns Vanish Like Magic

A hard cap of skin makes up every corn. When you put 2 drops of "GETS-IT" on it, it shrivels up and comes right off—and there's your corn—gone by thunder! Simple as taking off your hat!



Don't Waste Time "Hellering." "GETS-IT," World's Simplest Corn-Cure, Never Fails.

That's why corn-millions have gone wild over "GETS-IT"—nothing like it ever known. Some folks, to this day, putter around with bandages, sticky tape, thick plasters, corn "pulling" salves, gouge corns out with knives, snip them with scissors, make them bleed and then howl because they can't get rid of sore corns. Use "GETS-IT." There's nothing to do but apply 2 drops. The work is done. "GETS-IT" does the rest. No pain, no fussing, no changing shoes, no limping. It never fails. Try it tonight for any corn, callus, wart or bunion. Be sure that you get "GETS-IT" and nothing else.

HOW JAPAN WOULD HAVE ENFORCED ITS DEMANDS ON CHINA

Article in Tokio Paper, Believed to Have Been Inspired, Gives Military Plans.

QUICK CAPTURE OF PEKIN

Little Trouble Was to Be Expected Because the Chinese Army Was Widely Scattered.

Correspondence of the Associated Press.

TOKIO, May 24.—If China had declined to meet the demands of the recent ultimatum by Japan, the Japanese program would have been to capture Pekin, which would have been "a matter before breakfast," and to have effected a military occupation of other centers of political power and wealth, according to semiofficial newspapers.

The Japan Times, a journal printed in English, but controlled by representative and influential Japanese, which is usually believed to have good authority for its utterances, undertook to outline the course Japan would take, even before the diplomatic crisis with China had been passed.

In most quarters its publications of these details, customarily forbidden before the outbreak of war, was regarded as officially inspired, very likely with the object of convincing China that Japan was determined and would brook no delay.

The article made it clear that the "independent" action which Japan in her ultimatum said she would take if China was obdurate, would not necessarily be war. It would be better styled, perhaps, a military and naval occupation of China pending acceptance of the Japanese demands. Nevertheless, it would be effectively an execution of the demands by force of arms.

Chinese Army Widely Scattered.

The general staff had estimated the military force of China at 47 divisions, including 300,000 troops of modern training and 150,000 men of the old school. However, as these troops were scattered all over the Chinese empire, their mobilization and concentration would be difficult.

Japan's military base would be established at Tientsin. A fundamental necessity being the control of the principal means of communication, the Tientsin-Pukow and Pekin-Mukden railroads would have to be captured. Their occupation would firmly establish a Japanese foothold in China. The troops stationed at Tsingtau would be able to "occupy Tsinanfu in a minute." The northern part of the Tientsin-Pukow Railway, that is, the line between Tientsin and Tsinan, could easily be occupied, and with Tientsin the base of operation, Japanese soldiers would soon be seen marching on Pekin. In Pekin there was stationed one company of infantry, while in Tientsin were two companies, with machine guns. The soldiers in Pekin would act as escort for Minister Hioki to Tientsin, where he would embark in a warship and proceed to Japan.

The account declared that in the south moves would have to be made jointly by army and navy, and then the better part of China would be under Japanese sway. Special care would be taken to protect Japanese and other foreign residents.

Some Engagements Expected.

The journal continued: "When the centers of China are guarded by a garrison, the soldiers will be disbanded. Then all places will be put under the control of our army; peace and order are to be maintained by our military administration. If the Chinese army offers no resistance, things will be carried out in peace; but when they show any resistance our soldiers will be obliged to fire upon them. And it is to be feared that engagements will take place between the Chinese and Japanese troops here and there, as the land of China is so extensive that peace cannot be established at a moment's notice."

In Manchuria, the program continues, the two divisions under Lieutenant-Generals Hungo and Ando, would be concentrated in Mukden and marshalled against the seventeenth, eighteenth and twentieth divisions of the Chinese army. The two Chinese Generals, Chan Tsolin and Feng Linko, who command these divisions, would soon surrender when informed of the real situation. The northern part of the Pekin-Mukden Railway would be captured by Japanese troops. Great forces would then be landed at some points in the province of Chihi; Pekin would be seized immediately. Indeed, the fall of Pekin, as stated, would be a "matter before breakfast."

The outline concluded: "In the south the power of our navy will soon tell. The Chinese ships can immediately be swept from the coast; and our land forces can be disembarked without any difficulty. The British troops garrisoned in Hongkong may be asked to cooperate with our soldiers in this part of the country. Thus our troops will carry all before them wherever they go in the land."

BOZ CLUB BANQUET TUESDAY

Organization Will Meet at Midland Valley Country Club.

The Boz Club of St. Louis will hold its reunion banquet Tuesday evening at the Midland Valley Country Club. The club will give this as the finishing touch to its year of literary and civic work. The Boz Club advocated the free bridge and Central Parkway, and among the talks of the evening will be one on, "What's the Matter With St. Louis?" and another on, "Municipally Owned Electric Light Plant." There will be other talks by members on literary subjects.

Davison Obear is president; the Rev. Bertram A. Dickens, nephew of the novelist, is life president and sponsor for the name "Boz." The membership is composed largely of students and young business men of St. Louis and other cities.

COMMUNICATION LINES REASON FOR GERMAN STRENGTH

Wonderful System Spreads Out Like Fan to Within Short Distance of Trenches.

DEPOT FOR REPAIRS

French Town Turned Into Huge Plant for Feeding and Caring for Kaiser's Army.

Correspondence of the Associated Press.

NORTHERN FRANCE, May 25.—In a one-time prosperous and busy city that now contains almost as many German soldiers as it does French inhabitants, is one of the "Hauptpunkte" or chief points in the remarkable lines of communication which stretch from Germany to the front trenches.

Even a casual inspection of this link in the wonderful chain of communications reveals one of the reasons why Germany is able to contest stubbornly every effort of its opponents to recapture the territory that has been taken, and why its soldiers are possessed of necessities, and even luxuries, that were unheard of in earlier wars.

Various such "Hauptpunkte" exist all along the long battle line, and from each there stretch out fan-shape lines to within a short distance of the trenches. Along these ribs of the fan there are transported daily the enormous quantities of food, ammunition and clothing that are needed.

The "Hauptpunkte" may be called for want of a better name a division headquarters in the lines of communication. This headquarters has, roughly, two functions, the preparing and forwarding of food and ammunition and the repairing of material that has broken down under the strain of battle.

In the city recently visited by an Associated Press correspondent, the German authorities have requisitioned the slaughter house of a one-time French butcher, and in it are methodically preparing the enormous quantities of meat needed for the army a few miles away.

Cattle Driven From Germany.

The cattle are, for the most part, driven in from Germany. For miles as one approaches the city one can see the herds grazing on the rich French fields. By the time they have reached the division headquarters they are fat and sleek.

Within 100 yards of the slaughter house is the bakery, formerly a manufacturing establishment, whose brick ovens have been found to lend themselves very well to the baking of 15,000 loaves of bread a day. Each loaf, composed of one-third of white flour and two-thirds rye flour, weighs 1500 grams.

Where the necessary railroad tracks did not exist they have been built, so that there is easy and efficient railway connection with these two plants that supply the two main food necessities of the army—meat and bread.

Perhaps less important and vital but more interesting are the establishments where damaged artillery and guns are repaired and put into shape for use at the front again. In these plants also it has been found feasible to employ French civilians at many kinds of work, so that they may earn their livelihood, be independent and not be a drag upon the German authorities who are supporting many of the city's inhabitants.

The Junk Pile.

In point of interest to the casual visitor the prize of the division headquarters is the "Sammelstelle" or collection point—the junk pile containing the sweepings of the battlefield would be a better name—where every conceivable object from bits of rubber to broken bayonets and cartridge shells is collected and sorted out.

The knapsack of every wounded soldier first or last finds its way to this big building, and there is subjected to the scrutiny of "junk experts." The cartridges that remain are laid to one side, to be reapportioned to some other fighter. The drinking flasks or bottles are similarly weeded out and the clothes that still are fit to wear are placed in piles according to their character.

The bayonets go to one department, where they are carefully cleaned and put in shape for use again. The rifles—they include not only German, but French, English, Belgian and Russian guns—are thoroughly overhauled and oiled and come out looking like new. Every piece of equipment that still has value is renovated.

After every battle in which the Germans have been victorious the field is literally scoured, and all the junk is transported to headquarters. Scores of ripped and torn auto tires are collected and sent to an establishment where the rubber can be utilized in the making of new tubes.

A big laundry establishment with a capacity of over 100,000 garments in less than a month cleans old clothes after they have been repaired, and puts them into shape for further use by new soldiers or by old troops, whose supply has been exhausted.

A spur of the railroad track runs directly to the end of the "Sammelstelle" and carts away to Germany huge quantities of scrap that has every appearance of being worthless but which later is to appear in newly manufactured form. Not one thing with any possible value is wasted.

Medical Headquarters.

The division headquarters very naturally has not only the hospital facilities that are common to most German cities, but also a medicament headquarters. In a wholesale drug establishment of almost staggering size there are stored some 4,000,000 marks worth of medicine and medical instruments for use in the field hospitals.

Volunteer and professional nurses prepare some 15,000 yards of bandages a day, which are shipped off to the front in compact packages. The establishment maintains 15 mounted filtering plants that are shifted from point to point.

TICKET TO COAST TO BE GIVEN AWAY AT CHARITY GAME

Entertainment Features Provided for Tuberculosis Society Benefit June 26.

The charity ball game to be played at Federal League Park Saturday, June 26, will be diversified by entertainment features before and after the game. More than 100 matrons and young women are arranging the details.

The game will be between members of the Chicago Advertising Club and the Advertising Clubs of St. Louis. The entire proceeds will be turned over to the St. Louis Society for the Relief and Prevention of Tuberculosis.

The affair is part of a plan to raise $30,000 so that the work of the society can be kept up in St. Louis until the municipality can take it over. The society has a large deficit which it is trying to meet. It maintains a corps of visiting nurses, operates the Night and Day Camp and feeds the children at the Open Air Schools, besides conducting other lines of anti-tuberculosis work.

Merchandise donations, obtained from mercantile establishments and manufacturers, will be given away on the day of the ball game. More than 500 already have been obtained, ranging from curling tongs to a round trip ticket to the San Francisco Exposition, the latter donated by B. F. Bush.

Mrs. Nat S. Brown, chairman of the Score Card Committee, will have 20 young women selling score cards at the game. Mrs. Arthur Lieber of the Kendall Hotel is chairman of the Gift Committee. Mrs. William Dee Becker is in charge of a large committee for the disposal of tickets. These will be sold at popular prices. Mrs. Alvin Bauman is chairman of the Concessions Committee.

JAPANESE EMPRESS EXPECTS ANOTHER HEIR IN AUTUMN

Announcement Is Made at Celebrations of Fifteenth Birthday of Crown Prince.

TOKIO, June 12.—Simultaneously with the celebration of the fifteenth birthday anniversary of the Crown Prince, the public has been greatly interested and pleased with an announcement from the Imperial Palace that the Empress expects to give birth to another heir in the autumn. The coming of this event about the time of the coronation at Kyoto probably will prevent the Empress from taking part in the ceremonies.

The Emperor and Empress have three children—all boys. The Crown Prince, whose name is Hirohito, is a sturdy, active young man. He is receiving his education under the direction of Admiral Togo, the great naval hero of the Russo-Japanese War.

The Crown Prince is especially fond of wrestling and the distinctive feature of his birthday celebrations was an exhibition of wrestling in which the great champions of Japan took part. His highness invited his two brothers, many young Princes and Princesses of the blood and many schoolmates.

Mothers' Circles to Meet.

The final regular meeting for the season of the Council of Mothers' Circles and Parent Teachers' Associations of St. Louis and St. Louis County will be held at Webster Groves in the high school, Wednesday, at 3 p. m. The development and future outlook for safe and sane Fourth of July celebrations will be discussed. Park Commissioner Cunliffe will speak on "Neighborhood Playgrounds and Their Possibilities."

MAGNOLIAS AND ORCHIDS IN BLOOM IN SHAW'S GARDEN

Trumpet Pitcher Plant and Venus Fly Trap Two Interesting Features.

The orchid and ariod houses of the Missouri Botanical Garden contain a number of interesting plants in bloom, among them the "spider orchid," so called because of its odd formed flowers which resemble a spider.

Another striking orchid which is new to the garden is the dendrobium thyrsiflorium, the flowers of which are pure white and a rich orange and grow in clusters like the flower spike of the hyacinth. There is a fine specimen of the "cinnamon orchid" now in bloom. The flowers of this orchid are bright yellow and the fragrance is spicy like that of cinnamon, the flowers of the hyacinth. There are a number of the "moccasin" or "lady slipper" orchids in bloom. One which differs slightly in form is the Cypripidium Rothschildianum, which has the appearance of a French slipper, the pistil of which resembles a shoe tree inserted in the shoe.

In the ariod house a superb Philippine plant is in bloom. It is the nedinilla magnifsicanna. In this house will be found the niocia magnifsicanna, a rich foliage plant, the leaves of which are of velvety texture with white veins on the upper surface, while the under surface is a rich maroon.

The carnivorous plants in the nepenthes house are attracting the attention of the visitors. The trumpet pitcher plant is one of the most attractive of the insectivorous plants. The operation of the venus fly trap is particularly fascinating to the public, while the sun dew plant is equally interesting.

Eleven banana trees in the banana house are bearing fruit in various stages.

The display in the flower house is one of the most attractive of the season, showing a profusion of lilies, of fuschia, hydrangea, marguerites, begonias, gloxinia and summer chrysanthemums.

The rose garden is especially attractive and will be in superb condition for at least two weeks. The pergola is now a mass of red and pink blossoms, while the formal flower beds are ablaze with roses of every shape and hue, from delicate pink to the deepest reds, and from white to rich yellow.

Fragrant magnolia tress are now in bloom and are vieing with the roses for the attention of visitors.

In the water gardens are the hardy nymphaeas marliacen hybrids of a delicate pink, and the James Bryden, a magneta-colored flower. The banks of the water gardens are flanked with a superb collection of irises, Japanese, French and Spanish forms.

BRITISH PRIVATE RULED YPRES LIKE A KING JUST FOR A WEEK

He Had Been Left Behind When Troops Were Withdrawn, Set Up a Government and Made Good.

DUNKIRK, France, June 12.—The story of the British private who made himself King of Ypres after the first bombardment of that city last November is being told at British headquarters.

When the British withdrew their troops from the town they did not remove the civil population. There was one private who did not leave with the rest, for he was asleep in a cellar. He awoke to find Ypres without any authority, and set about governing it himself. He kept the citizens under an iron discipline, had looters shot at sight, and though himself inclined to the bottle, prevented drunkenness in others.

The inhabitants called him the King of Ypres, but his kingship lasted only for a week. He was arrested by a British officer and sent before a courtmartial. The courtmartial duly tried him, found that his efforts in the cause of order had been good and forgave him for his other delinquencies.

Flag Day to Be Celebrated at Stix, Baer & Fuller Department Store.

Among the other firms and corporations in St. Louis that will celebrate Flag day tomorrow as the 137th anniversary of the Stars and Stripes will be the Stix, Baer & Fuller Dry Goods Co. For five minutes, from 9:15 to 9:20 a. m., all business will be stopped in the great department store. A big American flag will be unfurled in front of the building and a man representing Uncle Sam will salute it. Then there will be a general celebration. Inside the store the big feature will be at the grand stairway. American flags and American beauty roses interwoven with ferns will hide the stairway proper. Grouped above the audience will be a chorus of 175 of the Stix, Baer & Fuller song birds. They will sing the national anthem as flags are unfurled and the Stars and Stripes waved.

KNIGHTS TO RECEIVE COMMUNION

Members of Father Matthew Organisation to Attend Mass at St. Leo's Church.

The annual holy communion of the Knights of Father Matthew of all the parishes of St. Louis will be received in St. Leo's Church, Twenty-third and Mullanphy streets, this morning at a special 7 o'clock mass. Reservations have been made for upwards of 700 Knights for both the holy communion and for the breakfasts which will be served by the women of the parish immediately after the mass. Breakfast will be served in St. Leo's Temperance Hall.

In addition to the entire membership of the Knights proper the Uniform Rank, nearly 100 men in full uniform, under the command of Capt. G. La Chance, will occupy the center aisle, and in one of the most solemn parts of the mass—the elevation—the knights will rise and salute. The officers of the Uniform Rank are: C. P. Byrne, president; P. Dooley, secretary and treasurer, while the officers of the association are John Shelley, Chief Sir Knight; Jeremiah Sheehan, Dept. Chief Sir Knight; Joseph M. McCormick, Recorder, and Frank O'Mara, Banker. The mass will be celebrated by the Rev. James T. Coffey, who will be assisted by the Rev. Fathers Redder and O'Tooley.

Altenheim Festival Today.

The St. Louis Altenheim Spring Festival will be held at the grounds of the home this afternoon. There will be a program of music and feature dances, beginning at 2 p. m., when the gates will be opened to the public. There will be dancing and other forms of entertainment and supper will be served from 5 to 8 o'clock.

Naval Reserves Going on Cruise.

Members of the Missouri Naval Reserve are making arrangements for their annual cruise on the Atlantic, which will last from July 1to 1. Ten officers and 70 men from St. Louis and four officers and 30 men from Kansas City will embark at Philadelphia July 3 for maneuvers and target practice.

BOARD CLOSES GRATIOT SCHOOL

Action Taker Because Roof of One Wing Collapsed.

The Board of Education yesterday ordered the closing of the Gratiot School at 1615 Dillon street, because the roof over one wing of it fell in at 3 a. m. Friday.

There is but one more week of school and the board decided that the pupils would not lose much by the closing of the school a week in advance of the other schools. The Gratiot School was one of the first of the concrete construction school buildings. The damage was estimated at $1000.

The Post-Dispatch is the only evening newspaper in St. Louis that receives or publishes news gathered by the Associated Press.

1700 ORPHANS TO GET FREE AUTO RIDES WEDNESDAY

Wednerday will be automobile outing day for 1700 children from 18 St. Louis orphanages and other institutions. It will be the occasion of their annual automobile ride, which is given them by the St. Louis Automobile Club, through the loan of cars by its members.

A committee of the club has sent out a request for 300 automobiles. Up to yesterday a little more than one-half of that number had been promised, but the committee believes the remainder will be provided. J. R. Barroll is chairman of the committee. The other members are A. H. Little, Philip B. Fouke, C. H. Howard, Joseph Pulitzer Jr., A. B. Lambert, Forrest Ferguson, Ewing Hill Jr., J. E. Bishop, Ferd P. Meyer, Richard McCulloch and Louis Nolte.

Those furnishing machines are asked to have them at the St. Louis Club, 3663 Lindell boulevard, at 9:30 a. m. Wednesday. The cars will be used until 1 p. m. Refreshments will then be served to the children by the Automobile Club.

The institutions from which children will be taken are the South Side Day Nursery, St. Joseph's Deaf Mute Institute, St. Patrick's Day Nursery, Children's Home Society, Guardian Angel Settlement, Episcopal Orphans' Home, Masonic Home, Methodist Orphans' Homes for Girls and Boys, City Industrial School, Christian Orphans' Home, Mission Free School, Girls' Industrial School, St. Joseph's Asylum, Children's Hospital, Waisenverein Home, and Union Mission.

DENIES SALOON WAS DISORDERLY

Mrs. Arnold Says Husband Closed Place at 9 P. M.

Mrs. J. H. Arnold of 4653 Evans avenue, whose husband for four years ran a saloon at Thirty-ninth street and McRee avenue, denied today that Arnold lost his license because of complaints of the neighbors that the place was disorderly, as was stated to the Post-Dispatch Thursday by Attorney Wayne E. Wheeling.

Arnold lost his license, she said, because it was too orderly to suit some men of the neighborhood, who wanted him to keep open until midnight or later, while he insisted upon closing at 9 p. m. Another objection was to the removal of the saloon from the rear to the front of the building. There was no carousing in the saloon, Mrs. Arnold said, and no drunkenness or bad language.

Huerta Wins Wall Street by His Gameness

Win or Lose, He Is Always Smiling

Looks Like a Big Corporation Executive

Now a Genuine Long Island Commuter and Takes to the Life of the Financial District Like a Duck to Water.

But He Is Forever Talking of Mexico and His Attitude in These Discussions Shows That His Exile Is Galling to Him.

By HENRY N. HALL,
A Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, June 12.

ONE year ago Gen. Huerta was President of Mexico, and his envoys were negotiating with the delegates of the United States at the A. B. C. mediation conference for the withdrawal of the American forces at Vera Cruz. But even then Huerta's abdication was a foregone conclusion.

For months and months he had been held up to the American people as a drunken and bloodthirsty dictator at whose orders Madero had been foully murdered that he might gain power thereby. President Wilson had laid down the doctrine that government on this hemisphere was not to be seized as the result of assassination and had made it clear that Huerta must go. So Huerta went.

Today he is the guest of these United States—that is the way he put it himself—and lives at Forrest Hills, where his large family enjoys the quiet of suburban life. He has joined the colony of well-to-do Long Island commuters and leased himself a fine country home. If you want to see Huerta and talk to him it is no good going there, however. You will probably find him mowing his lawn, pottering about the flower beds or—in the evenings—studying the heavens through a large telescope, for the erstwhile dictator is an astronomer of no mean repute.

The place to meet Huerta is in the financial district. Down in lower Broadway, where men have to have a clear head and quick judgment, the big bankers and brokers will tell you that the "new recruit" can hold his own with the best business brains in the country, that he shows a rare combination of boldness and shrewdness, of imagination and determination, in all his business deals. They will tell you further that he takes his winnings without boasting and his losses with a smile. Wall street likes big men, and it likes Huerta.

In one of the tallest of the downtown skyscrapers there is a big office which both in equipment and personnel compares favorably with the headquarters of any of America's great captains of finance. Heavy dark green carpets cover all the floors, the walls are painted dead white, the furniture is of the finest mahogany, on every desk there is a telephone, and the ticker service for stock quotations and general news is the best that can be obtained. Every aid that science can give to business from the microphone to the newest device in filing systems, has been installed. Last but not least, even the office boys are of the "message to Garcia" type.

Acts and Dresses Like a Big Corporation Executive

HUERTA comes down town every morning, and the way he has adapted himself to the manners and customs of downtown New York is simply wonderful. There is not a trace of swagger or bluster about him; he acts and dresses just like an executive of some big American corporation. He likes brown clothes, and usually wears a brown business suit, with a brown hat, a brown tie, brown socks and shoes and brown gloves. As his complexion is very swarthy, it is becoming to him. He stands about 5 feet 7 or less, and his well-knit frame is very supple and strong.

A glance reveals Huerta's Indian descent. The cheek bones are high, the forehead slants, the jaw is long and the ears are small and set low. The mouth is firm and the chin square and determined. It is a very unflinching face, but not devoid of kindness, and the black, piercing eyes are soft and velvety at times. When Huerta smiles—and he always has a winning smile for strangers—one gets a glimpse of a very charming but very unbending personality. In repose the face is stern and intellectual, but there is nothing about it to bear out the stories of dissipation and drunkenness of which one has heard so much.

The first time I met Huerta was at the Ansonia, shortly after his arrival in New York. I needed certain information in connection with a legal matter and he listened attentively as I explained my reasons for coming to him. When he answered my questions he did so in a very clear, direct manner that convinced me that he was telling the truth and showed him to be possessed of an exceptionally good and well trained memory. Since then I have seen a good deal of Huerta and without ever sitting down to a stated newspaper interview—a thing which he abhors—I have talked with him on Mexico and Mexican affairs. It is impossible to be with Huerta for any length of time without talking Mexico, for Mexico is very near to Huerta's heart and he does not take kindly to political exile.

"15,900,000 in Mexico Want Peace; Other 100,000 Bandits"

BUT I have never heard him utter a single word in criticism of President Wilson or of the United States. Whenever he is led to the troubled waters of international politics bearing upon the past of Mexico and the United States Huerta smiles his deep smile and says, "While I am enjoying the hospitality of this great country I am not free to express myself as I might perhaps do if I were abroad.

But here are some things I have heard Huerta say and they reflect very accurately his state of mind.

"Out of some 16,000,000 people in Mexico today there are 15,900,000 who ask nothing better than to be let alone. They want peace. The remaining 100,000 are bandits who are fighting for the spoils of one of the richest countries on earth; they are men who live by plunder and who would rather fight than work.

But the disproportion between the numbers of those who want peace and those who are keeping the country in turmoil is so great that the decent element must triumph over the other. One of the great troubles is that the real conditions in Mexico are not known outside of the country because not a letter nor a cable leaves the country without being censored.

"When the war began in Mexico it is possible that Madero had the very best of intentions, but it is not only good intentions that are needed to establish a representative Government. After he had risen to power, even Madero saw that revolutionary methods were inapplicable to Mexico. There are thousands of his followers and of other people in Mexico who were formerly in favor of the revolution, but who now that it has lasted so long are heartily sick of it and want peace, and I do not believe that peace can be very far off.

"Some day in the near future someone will take hold of the situation and treat the 100,000 bandits who are now terrorizing the country in just the way they deserve to be treated and would be treated if they were in the United States. They are criminals and ought to be treated as such and there will be no lasting peace till someone stretches forth the iron hand of unbending authority over them and crushes them. Ten years ago any woman could travel unmolested from one end of Mexico to the other, now no woman between the ages of 12 and 60 is safe where these bandits are. What is wanted in Mexico is a man who can make wild beasts behave themselves as if they were human. And it cannot be done with pleasing words or soft speech; and it cannot be done from the outside."

Law Exempting Uncultivated Land From Taxation Cause of Trouble

ONE day I was talking to him about peons and the land problem of Mexico and he said:

"I was a peon myself and I know that the peons of Mexico want peace. They form more than 75 per cent of the total population of the country and to them is made the principal appeal in the platform of each political party in Mexico. The peons are downtrodden and have been left in ignorance, but their very numbers give them an element of strength. And so every revolution has made promises to the peons.

"Also the peons have been made an argument to enlist the sympathies of the United States and the suggestion is always being put forward by revolutionary leaders that they will help the peons and divide up the land among them. Now how long do you suppose the peons would keep the land if it was distributed to them? In less than a year they would have sold it as they did before when it was given to them. Besides, it would not be fair to take away the land from the rich simply to give it

Advises Lime for Tuberculosis

According to the Journal of the American Medical Association (July 27, 1912, Page 308), Dr. C. F. Disen of Minneapolis holds that a "deficiency of calcium" (lime) is responsible for the physical conditions which lead to tuberculosis, "and the therapy he advocates rests on this basis."

One of the reasons for the wide-spread success of Eckman's Alterative in the treatment of tuberculosis and chronic throat and bronchial troubles is its ability to supply this deficiency.

It contains a lime salt in such form and so combined with other remedial agents as to be easily assimilated by the average person. There are on record many cases in which it seems to have effected complete and lasting betterment.

However, we make no exaggerated claims for Eckman's Alterative. We prefer that it be tried on the same basis one tries any other prescription, and we believe it will help, for IT HAS HELPED in many cases.

It contains no opiates, narcotics or habit-forming drugs. Therefore, it is safe to take. If your druggist is out of it he will order, or you can get it direct.

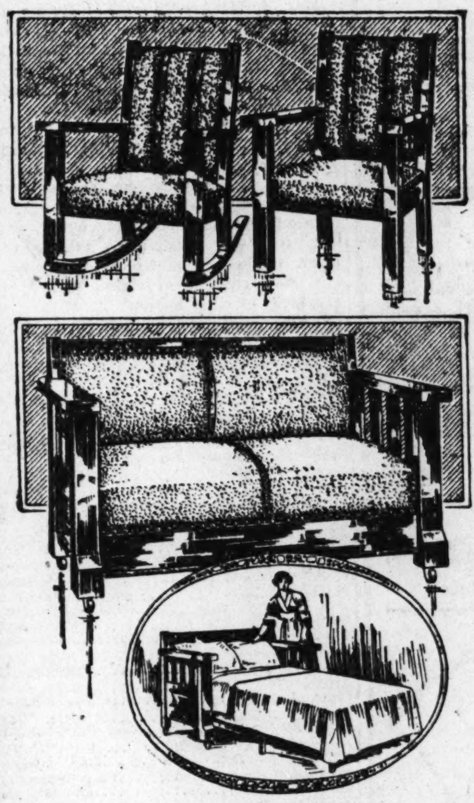
"William and Mary" Dining-Room Suite

$97.75

DO NOT measure this value by the price. Do not let this low price confuse you—for the construction of this Suite represents the finest workmanship of its kind. We have startled all St. Louis with our new selling policy—quick sales, many sales, small profits, but many profits—and this value is a splendid example of what you can expect here. We positively dare not mention the price for which almost identical Suites are sold elsewhere—for it would seem unbelievable. We have opened the eyes of many St. Louisans. Let us acquaint YOU. Exactly as illustrated, in the quaint William and Mary Period style. This complete Suite, with 6 chairs instead of 5, complete, now. $97.50 (or each piece separately)—Serving Table, $7.25; China Closet, $18.75; 54-in. Table, $17.75; 5 Chairs, each, $3.50; Arm Chair, $5.75; 60-in. Buffet, $30.75



This Elegant 3-Piece Davenette Suite

$34.50

The price, the illustration, this type, can't possibly do this suite justice.

It is highly upholstered with fine Spanish imperial leather, solid fumed oak finish, and the most remarkable value at $34.50.

We invite a liberal comparison.

June brides, be sure to see this value especially.

WOMAN REFUSES TO PROSECUTE HUSBAND, MISSING 6 YEARS

Expresses Desire to Forgive and Forget When Told He Is Married Again.

KANSAS CITY, Mo., June 12.—Mrs. Bessie Binckmeyer's eyes filled with tears when she was told that her husband, who has been missing six years, had been reported to be living in Colorado Springs, Colo., with another wife.

"I don't want to say anything about him," she replied, and she wouldn't. She added that she had no desire to prosecute Binckmeyer, but only to forgive and forget him.

When he disappeared, without leaving behind any word, Mrs. Binckmeyer sought work. She found it and not only has kept her two children together, but has paid debts left by the husband. Last week she sued for divorce. She said she had heard her husband was dead, and subsequently heard he had been seen in Colorado Springs.

Under the name of Meyers the missing man is reported to have married Miss Agnes Stueda of Salida, Colo., in 1912. She also is quoted as refusing to prosecute in a bigamy charge.

Huerta Winner in Wall St. by His Gameness

to the poor. That may sound very nice, but no one will say that it would be honorable.

"But there is one very simple reform that can be carried out, and ought to be insisted upon. It is this: Under existing laws the proprietor of land that is uncultivated pays no taxes on it, and there are many men of great wealth who keep enormous landed estates uncultivated purposely so as to avoid paying taxes. The Government ought to tax uncultivated land high enough to force the owners to cultivate or to sell. I will even go so far as to say that the Government ought to buy the land that the owner refuses to cultivate, and that through an agricultural bank the land should be parcelled out into homesteads and allotted to the peons on long-time payments, even as long as 25 years if necessary, with the proviso that in case the land was not successfully cultivated it should revert to the Government, and that until the full term had elapsed the peons could not transfer the title or sell to anyone, so as to prevent the wealthy from buying up the land.

"There can be no doubt that if the land in Mexico is cultivated the public revenues will be greatly increased, and work would be more plentiful for the poor people. If the peons have work they will be contented with small returns because they will be occupied and will accumulate enough to keep themselves and raise their families. That is a very important point, because the education of the children of Mexico has been grossly neglected in the past and there can be no real democracy in a country where so large a proportion of the people can neither read nor write."

Not Ashamed Because He Started Life as Lowly Peon

HUERTA is not ashamed of the fact that he started life at the bottom of the ladder. He rose from a penniless peon to be President of Mexico. Of nearly pure Indian blood, Huerta was born 58 years ago in the Colotlan district of the State of Jalisco, not far from the Pacific coast of Central Mexico. Before he was fifteen he had made his way to Mexico City and started to fight life's battle all alone. He had neither money nor friends. One day he picked up a paper and saw a notice that young men who wanted to become soldiers could get their military education free at the military college. That was the turning point of Huerta's life. He went to the military school and created such an excellent impression that, although he failed to pass the entrance examination, they took him in. The regular course of study covered eight years, but in five years Huerta went through, but he worked night and day to do it and in the first four years never once left the bounds of the college. Huerta especially distinguished himself in mathematics and graduated as a military engineer. His first work was on the national survey and it was so excellent that it attracted the attention of President Diaz. It may be noted in passing that Huerta has always kept up with his mathematical studies, that he is an astronomer of wide experience and is the author of the best military map of Mexico in existence.

When Diaz was in power it was no very easy matter for a man to rise in Mexico, but Huerta forged to the top. Step by step and always fighting, he made his way up. He took part in suppressing every one of the revolutions that broke out during the Diaz regime and he was held in such high esteem by his chief that when the dictator abdicated he turned to Huerta to insure his safety as he left Mexican soil.

When De La Barra became President he sent Huerta to suppress the Zapata revolution and if he had been allowed to have his way he would have wiped out the peon movement in the State of Morales there and then, but Madero intervened and Huerta was called off. After Madero's ascension to the presidency Huerta was sent off to put down the most menacing of all the revolutionary movements, backed by 25,000 or 30,000 men under Orozco. Huerta beat Orozco and restored a semblance of peace to Mexico.

Madero, who, with all his good intentions, was a dreamer, although glad enough to have Huerta to put down revolt, did not believe in force and was for peace by persuasion. Just as soon as he got rid of the plain, hard-hitting old soldier whose whole life had been in keeping order in Mexico, fresh revolutions broke out on all sides. They culminated in the disastrous outbreaks in Mexico City itself, when the capital was bombarded, hundreds of people were killed and the streets were drenched in blood. The diplomatic corps called on Madero to resign, and after his own soldiers had placed him under arrest, Huerta came into power.

Huerta points with insistency to the fact that he succeeded to the presidency under the terms of the Constitution and that the Mexican Congress, Senate and Supreme Court all recognized the fact. He also will quietly remind you—and he does it with just a trace of sarcasm—that so long as he was President of Mexico the lives and property of foreigners were safe in the states controlled by him. As safe, he says, as his own life and property is in New York today.

WOMAN FORFEITS $200 BOND

A $200 bond given by Mrs. Susan Lawrence Davis, the so-called "water-cure doctor," who was fined $50 in Judge Falkenhainer's court in October, 1912, for holding herself out as a physician, was declared forfeited by Judge Clark yesterday. The bond was signed by Chris Schawaker, a professional bondsman.

Mrs. Davis was fined on complaint of Mrs. Paul Bakewell Jr., who testified she visited Mrs. Davis at the Planters Hotel to receive treatment. She said Mrs. Davis told her she was suffering from nervousness and that hot water taken at regular intervals would cure her. Mrs. Davis took the case to the St. Louis Court of Appeals, which recently upheld the fine. The bond was forfeited because she did not appear in court to pay the fine.

Wabash Club's Annual Meeting.

The Wabash Club will hold its annual banquet and election at the American Hotel Annex next Saturday. C. S. Coulter, chief clerk to the superintendent of terminals, and G. A. NEWBRO'S HERPICIDE IN SUMMER

HERPICIDE CO.

Whether you spend the summer months in the city, or country, at the lake mountain or seashore, the season brings added responsibility in the extra care to be devoted to the toilet.

The hair in particular needs more attention than at any other time. The perspiration that exudes in increased quantities carries with it waste and poisonous matter, which unless removed promptly, clogs the pores and irritates the scalp. This makes it doubly difficult to keep the hair and scalp sweet and clean, and renders the frequent and intelligent use of Newbro's Herpicide almost a necessity.

ADDS TO YOUR COMFORT

It is refreshing. Regular applications give a sense of coolness and cleanliness besides keeping the hair and scalp healthy. Herpicide adds gloss and beauty to the hair and thus increases one's personal charm and attractiveness.

If the hair be wet from bathing, whether in fresh or salt water, Herpicide quickly restores the natural fluffiness and softness. It stops itching of the scalp, due to dandruff almost instantly.

Possessing a dainty, exquisite odor, Newbro's Herpicide is an ideal hot weather hair dressing. When you start away on your summer outing have a bottle in your grip.

Send 10 cents for sample bottle to the HERPICIDE CO., Dept. 126-B, DETROIT, MICH. Applications at the better barber shops. Sold and Guaranteed at all toilet goods counters.

Why Suffer With Impure Blood

An Effective Remedy That Can Be Relied Upon.

You can step into almost any drug store in the U. S. and get a bottle of S. S. S., the famous blood purifier. So there is no need to struggle or suffer with any blood disorder. It doesn't make any difference how severe is the outbreak, S. S. S. will overcome it. This famous remedy gets into your blood at once; it works with a will, it just simply annihilates disease germs, it drives them out, converts them into a harmless substance for quick elimination. Get a bottle today and you will quickly realize that S. S. S. is just as essential to blood health as are the meats, fats, grains and sugars of our daily food. And if yours is a stubborn case, write at once to the Medical Adviser, The Swift Specific Co., 112 Swift Bldg., Atlanta, Ga. We will put you right. This department has been of incalculable service to a host of men and women. It has enabled them to understand their true condition, to take care of themselves in the right way, to so use S. S. S. in conjunction with health helps as to obtain the desired results without mistakes. Do not accept any of the horde of substitutes so often displayed for those who are easily misled. S. S. S. has been the standard for half a century and is unquestionably the safest medicine you can use. —ADV.

St. Louis Woman Suffers 15 Years

Mrs. Rosa Bennett Escapes Operation After Taking Wonderful Remedy.

Mrs. Rosa B. Bennett of 2606B Olive Street, St. Louis, Mo., was ill with stomach troubles for nearly fifteen years. She had a great deal of medical attention and took many treatments. She was advised to undergo an operation by one specialist.

Instead she took Mayr's Wonderful remedy and found swift relief. She wrote:

"I was a sufferer for about fifteen years and I tried everything. I doctored with different doctors and each one would give my trouble a different name. One said that I would never be any better until I was operated, on and another one said I had ulcers of the stomach. I could get no relief.

Mayr's Wonderful Remedy gives permanent results for stomach, liver and intestinal ailments. Eat as much and whatever you like. No more distress after eating, pressure of gas in the stomach and around the heart. Get one bottle of your druggist now and try it on an absolute guarantee—if not satisfactory money will be returned.—ADV.

WOMAN WITNESS SAYS 3 BROTHERS TRIED TO BRIBE HER

Mrs. Allie Creus Causes Arrest of Raymond Carl and Earl Shelton.

Raymond, Carl and Earl Shelton, brothers, were arrested yesteday at 2032 Wash street on the charge of attempting to intimidate and bribe Mrs. Allie Creus, wife of Frank Creus, of 2340 Wash street, to keep her from testifying against them at Fairfield, Ill., on June 21, when they are to be tried on the charge of conspiracy.

Earl Shelton was arrested at Fairfield in February on the charge of highway robbery. It was alleged that he and another man, who escaped, held up and robbed Claud Wilson of Marion. He was released on bond and came to St. Louis and has been living with his brothers.

Mr. and Mrs. Creus formerly lived at the same address as the Sheltons. Mrs. Creus reported to Sheriff Weaver at Fairfield that she heard the brothers planning for two of them to go to Fairfield and represent themselves as business men and get Wilson into the country, where they would attack him and then turn him over to the authorities and tell them that he had attempted to rob them.

The two went to Fairfield and registered at a hotel. The Sheriff arrested them and charged them with conspiracy. After they were released on bond they returned to St. Louis and Mrs. Creus and her husband told the police that they threatened her and offered her $50 and a railroad ticket to Philadelphia.

C. Frank Yewell, son of Policeman Frank Yewell, also was arrested. Creus says Yewell and Carl Shelton drove an automobile away from Broadway and Olive street and afterward told him that they had abandoned it in Marion, Ill.

The men were locked up at the Dayton Street Station. They deny the statements of Mr. and Mrs. Creus.

ITALIAN ARMY HAS STRANGE PATH FROM GRADO TO TRIESTE

Broad and Deep Funnel-Shaped Depressions Among Difficulties to Be Overcome.

WASHINGTON, June 12.—"The way between Grado and Trieste lies through a remarkable country," says a National Geographic Society war primer, which describes the strange paths before the invading Italians to the richest Austrian seaport. "Many chapter of fascinating history are associated with this coastal strip at the head of the Adriatic, and its legendary lore is as rich as that of Granada.

"In peace times a small steamer, besides the railway, furnished communication between Grado and Trieste. From the plain of the Isonzo, the way rises steadily to Nabresina, and from Nabresina falls as steadily to the plain of Trieste. In the uplands, the viaducts wind in giant coils over the ragged slopes. The gray limestone breaks through the vegetation in great masses, and the way is liberally sprinkled with stone quarries. Water-worn holes in the porous rock, and mysterious grottoes and mouths to the underworld, characteristic of the Istriam region, are found here. Added to the difficulties of the way are many funnel-shaped depressions, which occur in the midst of regular slopes, often several hundred feet across and 200 feet deep."

GIRL ARRESTED IN CANADA ADMITS SHE IS GERMAN SPY

Says All She Needed to Cross Border With Reservists Was to Ask for Tickets to Buffalo and Return.

TORONTO, Ont., June 12.—Louisa Marksfeldt, 19, who has been under arrest here since May 26, has admitted to the police that she is a German spy. She refused, however, to give the names of her confederates. She has been remanded to jail for a week, when it is expected application will be made for her internment.

The girl, who claims acquaintance with five or six European languages, states she was born in Alsace, came to the United States two years ago, and when the war began was living in Buffalo. She crossed over to Niagara Falls, Ont., and made that place her headquarters in assisting German reservists to cross over to Buffalo.

"It was only necessary," she is said to have told the police, "to ask in good English at Niagara Falls for two tickets to Buffalo and return and I with a companion could reach Buffalo at any time I wished."

NEW SAFETY ZONE MARKERS

Director Talbert to Install Standard Used in Detroit Traffic.

A new type of standard to mark safety zones from traffic on downtown streets, which eliminates the disks that some have objected to as dangerous to pedestrians, will be installed by Director of Streets and Sewers Talbert shortly.

Director Talbert saw markers in use at Detroit, on a recent visit, that have no sharp edges against which pedestrians might fall and cut themselves. He will prepare a similar standard for his own use.

NOTE SOFTENED AFTER HE RESIGNED, BRYAN DECLARES

But Change Was Not Material Enough to Cause Him to Withdraw Resignation—Lansing Refuses to Discuss Alterations.

Former Secretary, in Another Statement, Tells Why He Signed First Note and Refused to Sign Second.

Likens First to a Plaintiff's Presentation of Case, Explaining It Was a Mere Statement of Facts.

WASHINGTON, June 12.—Former Secretary of State Bryan, who resigned his portfolio rather than sign the second note to Germany, issued another statement late today declaring that the note was materially revised following the presentation of his resignation. The revision, Bryan averred, softened the note, but was not sufficient to justify him in withdrawing his resignation.

"As Germany had suggested arbitration I felt that we could not do less than reply to this offer by expressing a willingness to apply the principle of the peace treaties to the case," he said.

Bryan refused to discuss the change in the note as did also Secretary of State Lansing.

Regarding the revisin of the note, Mr. Bryan was asked:

"What was the change?"

"I cannot discuss that," he replied.

It was suggested that the clause added to the note was that saying the United States would entertain any evidence Germany might have that officials of this government had not thoroughly performed their duty in examining the Lusitania before her departure to see that she was not armed for offensive action. Mr. Bryan only smiled at the suggestion. The clause referred to follows:

"If the Imperial German Government should deem itself to be in possession of convincing evidence that the officials of the government of the United States did not perform their duties with thoroughness the Government of the United States sincerely hopes that it will transmit that evidence for consideration."

"Irrespective of whether that clause was inserted or not," Mr. Bryan was asked, "does it not open the way for further negotiations with Germany?"

"I can only reiterate what I have said, that the note was softened," Mr. Bryan replied, "but not sufficiently to justify me in asking permission to withdraw my resignation."

In his statement tonight, Bryan replied to published charges of inconsistency because he signed the first note following the Lusitania incident and refused to sign the second.

Text of Bryan's Statement

Former Secretary Bryan's statement is as follows:

My attention has been called to a number of newspaper editorials and articles which, in varying language, ask the question: 'Why did Mr. Bryan sign the first note to Germany and then refuse to sign the second?'

The argument presented in the questions is based upon the supposition that the two notes were substantially the same. The second reiterates the demands contained in the first. They then declare it inconsistent to sign one and refuse to sign the other. The difference between the two cases would seem obvious enough to make an answer unnecessary, but, lest silence on the subject be taken as an admission of inconsistency the following explanation is given:

The notes must be considered in connection with the conditions under which they were sent. The first note presented the case of this government upon such evidence as we then had.

I did not agree entirely with the language of the first note, but the difference was not so material as to justify a refusal to sign it. Then, too, I was at that time hoping that certain things would be done which would make it easier for Germany to acquiesce in our demands.

Hoped for Three Things.

The three things which I had in mind which, in my judgment, would have helped the situation were, first, an announcement of a willingness upon our part to employ the principle of investigation embodied in our 30 peace treaties; second, action which would prevent American citizens from traveling on belligerent ships or on American ships carrying contraband, especially if that contraband consisted of ammunition; and, third, further insistence upon our protest against interference of our trade with neutrals.

I thought that these three things were within the range of possibilities and that two or at least one was probable. Some weeks have elapsed since the first note was sent, and Yesterday qualified as the second day of the summer, last Sunday having been the first. On both days the humidity was the chief factor in public discomfort, the temperature not reaching 90 degrees either day. Yesterday the highest point reached was 89 at 3 o'clock. Last Sunday the maximum was one degree lower.

Fairly warm weather today, if it comes, will indicate that the spinal column of the cold period is fractured or at least severely sprained.

Official forecast for St. Louis and vicinity: Partly cloudy today and tomorrow; somewhat cooler tomorrow.

HITHERTO DIGNIFIED ENGLISH NOW 'TOTE' HOME OWN BUNDLES

War Cripples Shop Delivery Service; Society Folk Lug Parcels Through Piccadilly.

LONDON, June 12.—The war is exercising a decidedly democratic influence on the manners, customs and habits of English folk who are commonly regarded as belonging to the big "S" section of society. Before the war it was considered most undignified for anybody with any pretensions to gentility to be seen carrying a parcel in public. But now even Dukes and Duchesses, to say nothing of "honorables" and untitled respectabilities, may be seen openly and unashamed carrying parcels in Piccadilly or Regent street which implies the proud consciousness that they are setting a good example.

They are, in fact, responding to an appeal to shoppers which has been issued by the Home Office through its Distributing Trade Committee. The shoppers were requested:

"To shop early;

"Not to expect immediate service;

"To carry home parcels;

"To give more time for the execution of orders."

The reason for this appeal is that that so many assistants have abandoned service behind the counter to serve their country in the field that all the big shops are short-handed and have had to take on a lot of untrained help.

EVEN RHEUMATISM COST MORE BECAUSE OF THE WAR

Price of Sodium Salicylate, a Favorite Remedy, Eight Times What It Was a Year Ago.

Sodium salicylate, the old family doctor's favorite prescription for "roomatiz," now costs eight times as much as it did before the European war began, and those who use it in considerable quantities will do well to lay in their stock now before it goes still higher.

Salicylate of sodium is made from carbolic acid, which used to come from abroad in large quantities, but which does not come at all any more because Europe is keeping it at home and using it in the manufacture of explosives.

Carbolic acid has gone from 7 cents to $1.50 a pound and salicylate in the last year from 30 cents to $2.40 a pound.

Another increase resulting from the war is in the price of engraver's zinc, which brings 35 cents a pound, nearly four times its normal price. This is because Germany and Belgium, which sent this country 70 per cent of its zinc, have ceased exporting it.

GERMANY TO BAR SCHNAPPS TO SOLDIERS IN THE FIELD

Chief of Private Marine Cabinet Quotes Kaiser in Warning Against Misuse of Spirituous Liquors.

BERLIN, June 12.—Admiral von Mueller, chief of the Private Marine Cabinet, has sent to the President of the German association, the following open letter against the misuse of spirituous beverages:

"I have recently had an opportunity to hear the Emperor speak on the alcohol question in the present war. His Majesty on this occasion asserted that he thoroughly maintained the opinion expressed by him in his Muerwick speech to the marine cadets, but that, on the other hand, in war, a more extended use of lighter alcoholic drinks must be permitted. Thus, for instance, light native wine or beer was preferable to water for troops, if the water available was of an objectionable quality. Strong drinks, such as schnapps of every sort, may under no circumstances be given to the troops."

Admiral von Mueller says that measures have been taken to hinder the sending of schnapps (strong liquors) of every kind to troops in the field.

ZINC ORE GOES UP $10 A TON

Price Is $23 Higher Than Week Before—Lead Now $72.

JOPLIN, Mo., June 12.—Another increase of $10 a ton in zinc ore prices was recorded here today, making the top figure for that product this week $125, an increase of $23 a ton over last week.

The week's output valuation was more than $335,000, which is the largest ever recorded in the Joplin district by more than $120,000. Lead prices also increased $10 over last week, that ore selling for $72 a ton.

GEN. DUPONT BUYS MORGAN'S CONTROL OF THE EQUITABLE

Assurance Society Has Assets of $536,000,000; Price Said to Exceed $3,500,000.

MUTUALIZATION PLANNED

New Owner Says He Will Co-operate With Officers in Carrying Out Movement.

NEW YORK, June 12.—Gen. T. Coleman Dupont has bought the 501 shares of the Equitable Life Assurance Society stock held by J. P. Morgan Jr., acquiring control of the Equitable and its $536,000,000 and more of admitted assets.

Gen. Dupont said that it is his intention to co-operate with the officers of the society in a plan for its complete mutualization.

The amount paid for the stock was not made public. Hugh McAtamney, personal representative in New York of the Duponts, said that $3,500,000 would not be "less" than Gen. Dupont gave for the control of the Equitable.

The total stock issue of this insurance company is 1000 shares of a par value of $100 a share. By law the dividends are limited to seven per cent. The big value of the stock, however, is the opportunity to handle its huge assets, especially cash on hand.

From his investment of over $3,500,000 or more, the former powder company head will receive annual returns of $3507, less than one-tenth of 1 per cent.

J. P. Morgan Sr. paid to Mrs. E. H. Harriman and Thomas F. Ryan approximately $3,000,000 for the same stock in 1909, so it is understood that the present J. P. Morgan will get his father's money back plus 6 per cent yearly interest on it and possibly something will be added for appreciation of the Equitable.

Figuring on this basis the price paid by Gen. Dupont would be nearer $4,000,000 than $3,500,000.

One Man Control Possible.

The outstanding fact about the deal is that Gen. Dupont is now in position to exercise one man control of the Equitable Life Assurance Society. The present trust agreement will expire soon.

Assuming that the sale agreement contains a legally binding provision which will force the present purchasers to offer the stock to the policy holders under a mutualization arrangement, Gen Dupont has tacked on a time limit in which such an offer will hold good and Mr. Morgan has accepted this time limit in making the sale.

While the Legislature passed a bill drawn especially to permit the mutualization of the Equitable in 1911 mutualization for the Equitable has never been accomplished.

The announcement was made by William A. Day, president of the society. Day's statement read, in part, as follows:

"It is fitting in making this announcement to state that the directors and officers of the equitable society appreciate highly the public spirited attitude of the late Mr. Morgan and of his son during the period that the technical ownership of the stock has rested in their hands.

Officers Enjoyed Freedom.

"During this entire period, the directors and officers of the society have enjoyed the fullest freedom in the administration of its affairs, without so much as a suggestion from the owners of the stock or trustees with respect to the management or conduct of the society. The three trustees, whose sole duty has been to elect the directors, have selected men of integrity and known standing for these high positions, with a full sense of responsibility for the trust imposed upon them. The directors so selected have administered the affairs of the society free from any influence or control of the beneficial owners of the stock.

"It is eminently appropriate that in the change in the ownership of the stock the interest in the majority of the society's capital has now been acquired by a stanch friend of the Equitable, who states that his sole object is to protect the interests of the policyholders of the society whose home is in the building of which he is the principal owner—a building which bears the Equitable name, and which has been erected in large part for the benefit of the Equitable and to facilitate the efficient transaction of its business."

GIRL RUN DOWN BY AUTO AFTER ALIGHTING FROM CAR

Driver Says Brakes Failed to Work When He Tried to Pass Car On Left Side.

Miss Victoria Devlin, a stenographer, 2607A Castleman avenue, was run down at Grand and Park avenues at about 5 o'clock yesterday afternoon by an automobile driven by Holly Rooney, who said he was a typesetter living at the West End Hotel.

Miss Devlin dismounted from a southbound Grand car and started across the street to take a westbound Park car. Rooney, who was following another southbound car, said that when it stopped at the crossing his brakes would not work and that he turned to pass it on the left-hand side to avoid passengers who were leaving it on the right. He could not stop, he said, when the girl appeared in his path.

Other passengers escorted Miss Devlin to her home, where a physician said she was suffering from severe bruises. Rooney was arrested for careless driving and released on bond to appear in police court tomorrow.

FIVE NEW FRAUD CHARGES AGAINST MISSOURI LAWYER

Chillicothe Man's Operations in Forged Deeds of Trust May Reach $100,000.

LIVED UNOSTENTATIOUSLY

Authorities Investigate Report That Oscar L. Smith Speculated in St. Louis.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

CHILLICOTHE, Mo., June 12.—Five other persons appeared before Prosecuting Attorney Marshall here late today and signed complaints against Oscar L. Smith, Chillicothe lawyer, who is under arrest in Philadelphia on a charge of embezzling $60,000 from clients. The complainants were Thomas Starr, Misses Anna and Mary Broaddus, Miss Mary Wall and Mrs. Luther Broaddus. Each charges the lawyer with fraud.

What Smith has done with the money he is alleged to have obtained from clients is a mystery to officials investigating his operations. It was said, tonight, however, that a report that he had speculated on the Board of Trade through a St. Louis concern was being investigated. It was declared today by a detective who has been investigating the case that the lawyer's illegal operations might total $100,000.

Smith owned a comfortable home here, which he sold a week ago, but never lived ostentatiously. His personal habits were excellent and his expenditures were believed always to have been conservative. He had a good law practice. Those closely associated with the family declare the cost of the upkeep of the home would not exceed $75 a month. Smith had no automobile, and two years ago disposed of his horse and surrey, which he had used for years. He was not identified with any church or lodges.

Wife and Daughter Prominent.

Mrs. Smith and the daughter, Miss Lenora, were prominent in church and social circles. The son, Don, had been employed in the local water office for the past six years.

The warrant upon which Smith was arrested was obtained by Miss Sadie Ulmer, a client, who charges that Smith defrauded her of $3000 by forged deeds of trust. At the death of the father of Miss Ulmer, Smith took charge of the estate and since has looked after its affairs. The money entrusted to Smith was supposed to have been secured by deeds of trust on Livingston County farms.

The period of time over which the alleged thefts continued has not been ascertained, but it is said that they began a number of years ago.

Smith's system, according to the detective who investigated his affairs, was similar to the system frequently adopted by men who have resorted to forging deeds of trust.

Conducted Loan Business.

In addition to his law practice, Smith conducted an extensive loan business, handling much money in that way. It is alleged that when a client left money with Smith to loan, he would forge a deed of trust on property near Chillicothe, owned by some person residing at a great distance. The client was given the instrument and Smith kept the money, according to the detective.

Smith Says He Will Fight Extradition.

PHILADELPHIA, June 12.—Fear of a possible attempt to commit suicide has caused detectives to keep close surveillance over Oscar L. Smith, 60 years old, who is held here for the Missouri authorities.

When detectives arrested Smith in a Broad street hotel, the prisoner reached down to a suitcase. The detectives had been warned that the lawyer had threatened suicide, so they grabbed him. When the suitcase was opened the detectives found a revolver.

"It was a question of whether I should stay in Chillicothe and kill myself," Smith said, "or go away with my family and try to forget my troubles. I decided upon the latter. I got into trouble by placing too much trust and confidence in my clients. I indorsed their notes whenever they were brought to me and got mixed up in a couple of forgeries."

CHILD DIES UNDER ANAESTHETIC ON OPERATING TABLE

Hermann Harold Meyer, 5-year-old son of Hermann J. Meyer of 2333A Warren street, died under an anesthetic yesterday evening on an operating table in the office of Dr. John F. Clark at 1717 North Jefferson avenue, after the boy was injured by a fall of five feet at his home.

At about 5 o'clock the child was playing in a back room of the house, near a door which opened upon the alley, five feet above its level. There were no steps. He lost his balance and fell into the alley. His father picked him up and carried him to Dr. Clark's office. The boy was in a sort of stupor, the physician said, but as his left arm was broken at the left elbow he determined it would be necessary to administer chloroform in order to reset the bones.

Given Two Grams of Chloroform.

The anesthetic was given by Dr. Clark's nurse, Miss Estelle Jones, who administered two grams of the drug by the usual cone method. The physician reset the fracture and the child seemed on the verge of recovering consciousness, according to his father, who was present. Suddenly he collapsed and was found to be dead.

Dr. Clark worked two hours in an effort to restore life, and then notified Coroner Padberg, requesting that an inquest be held to determine the cause of death. According to the police, Dr. Clark told the Coroner that the boy had eaten a hearty meal just prior to the accident, and that this might have led to the fatal effect of the anesthetic.

Why Anaesthetic Was Given.

In a statement made through an attorney, Dr. Clark said that he noted in the boy symptoms which would point to an injury to the medulla oblongata, near the sight center of the brain, and that he was almost unconscious, although, he thought, susceptible to pain to a degree which would make an anesthetic necessary in setting the fracture.

There was also a possibility of internal injuries, the physician said. He was of the opiniono that the inquest would show these factors to have been the cause of death.

Mrs. Louise Meyer, mother of the boy, said she had made a complaint to the Building Commissioner, asking him to compel the owner of the premises to have the door barred up, but that no steps had been taken to remedy the danger.

GERMAN AVIATOR BEING HELD FOR LUSITANIA INQUIRY

Cincinnati Prisoner Hurried to Washington to Be Questioned on Ship Affidavit.

CINCINNATI, June 12.—Heine Hardenberg, said to be a member of the aviation corps of the German imperial army and who is believed to be wanted in connection with the investigation into the Lusitania disaster by the special Federal grand jury in New York City, was taken into custody here today by special agents of the Department of Justice.

Hardenberg was taken in custody by Special Agent John S. Menefee of Cincinnati, when the former, in company with his employer, Paul Haase, a soap and perfume manufacturer of Norwood, a suburbs of this city, called at the general delivery window at the postoffice to inquire for mail.

The affair was managed very quietly and within an hour Menefee left with Hardenberg for Washington, where the latter will be turned over to the officials of the State Department and the Department of Justice.

It was not known by Menefee whether the Departments at Washington want Hardenberg as a witness, or otherwise to question him.

Immediately after being taken into custody, Hardenberg was taken to Menefee's private office in the Federal building, where an attempt was made to question him as to his knowledge of Gustav Stahl of New York, one of the men now before the Federal grand jury in New York on the charge of having sworn to a false affidavit lodged with the German embassy and later transmitted to the State Department at Washington to the effect that the Lusitania was a warship and that it had four guns on its deck when it sailed from New York on the fatal voyage.

Menefee, it is said, learned that Hardenberg was acquainted with Gustav Stahl, and that the two men met in New York shortly after Hardenberg arrived in this country five weeks ago. Hardenberg also told Menefee that Stahl had told him that he (Stahl) was at work on the day designated by Stahl in his affidavit filed with the State Department as the day upon which he visited the Lusitania and saw the cannon on board.

TWO GAS WELLS IN 10 DAYS FOUND BY ILLINOIS BUTCHER

Staunton Man Had Sunk All His Money in Hunt for Oil When Fortune Smiled.

STAUNTON, Ill., June 12.—Fortune, wooed in vain for 20 years by Louis H. Miller, a butcher in this city, this afternoon tossed into his lap her second gift in 10 days, when his drillers struck a pocket of natural gas at a depth of 450 feet on the Daniel Grove farm, a half-mile northwest of Staunton.

On Thursday of last week, at a point about a quarter of a mile from the new well, Miller's workers found natural gas in such volume that the capacity of the well was estimated, after tests with instruments, to be six and one-half million cubic feet a day. The well opened today was calculated, by similar tests, to have an equal volume. These, according to experts who hastened to Staunton on the news of Miller's first find, are the largest natural gas wells in Illinois.

Miller, who is 48 years old, says he has had the "oil bug" since he was 28 years old. He toiled early and late in his butcher shop for 13 years and accumulated $10,000, with which he hoped to wrest a fortune from the earth. In 1908 he set drillers to work on land which he leased near Staunton. At the end of the year his money was all gone, and he had nothing to his credit but a number of holes in the ground, ending in "dry" wells or "oil sand."

He went back to the butcher shop for seven years more of labor and saving. Last February he had saved enough money to begin operations again. He also enlisted his seven brothers and sisters, one of whom is Mrs. Emma Gotsch of 3629 Iowa avenue, St. Louis. He obtained leases on 12,000 acres of land near Staunton.

Miller's fortune has thrown Staunton and the neighboring towns into an epidemic of "oil fever." Agents from Carlinville, Gillespie and other towns have been scouring the vicinity for land leases. Miller has refused all offers to sell his leases, although one offer was reported to have been in the neighborhood of $100,000.

While continuing his quest for oil, Miller is making plans to pipe natural gas to Staunton and then to other towns in a radius of 20 miles, including Edwardsville, Worden, Mount Olive, Carlinville and Gillespie.

WOMAN WITH CHILD IN HER ARMS IS STRUCK BY AN AUTO

Mrs. James McGrory, 42 years old, of 2502 Ridge avenue, East St. Louis, was hit by an automobile at 8:30 o'clock last night as she was crossing Collinsville avenue, just north of St. Louis avenue, with her two-year-old daughter in her arms. Mrs. McGrory's left leg was fractured above the knee, and she had many bruises on her body. Gertrude, her daughter, was thrown to the street, and received a cut on the head and severe bruises on her body.

The automobile was driven by Edwin N. Fletcher, a commission merchant, of 568 North Eighteenth street.

BERLIN THINKS NOTE OFFERS WAY FOR SETTLEMENT

Tone of Document Said to Be Friendly and to Make Compromise of Differences Between the Two Countries Possible.

Heads of State, Army and Naval Departments to Confer on Reply—Kaiser to Give Final Decision.

Washington Officials Optimistic—Reply Not Expected Until Meyer Gerhard Reports.

By Associated Press.

BERLIN, June 12 (via London, June 13.)—The text of the American note was published today in the Berlin afternoon newspapers. Definite statements as to the attitude of the German Government with respect to the note are not yet available, but in circles which, while themselves not officially responsible are often good barometers of the sentiment in responsible quarters the note seems to have made a distinctly favorable impression and is believed to offer the possibility of negotiations on which a satisfactory settlement might be reached.

The conciliatory tone of the note apparently has evoked a responsive attitude here. Individuals who in the earlier stages of the negotiations displayed stiff-necked adherence to their own views, which made discussion almost impossible are now willing to talk of compromises in which the compromise should not be all on one side.

An official viewpoint probably can be correctly appraised after conferences between the Imperial Chancellor, Dr. von Bethmann-Hollweg; the Foreign Secretary, Herr von Jagow and representatives of the army and admiralty, the naval and general staff.

The Emperor it is believed will speak the final word. It is understood that these conferences will begin immediately. The answer will certainly not be drafted, and the lines of the German policy probably will not be definitely decided upon, before Dr. Anton Meier-Gerhard, the special envoy from Count von Bernstorff, the German Ambassador at Washington has arrived and made his report.

Both the Lokal Anzeiger and the Vossische Zeitung hail the second American note as opening the way for further negotiations between Germany and the United States which both profess to believe will straighten out the situation. The papers admit that the note contains little that is new, but they rejoice at its friendly tone. The Vossische Zeitung says: "There is no difference of opinion about the desirability of saving lives. The note opens the way for negotiations between Germany and America regarding what Germany can do and what America must do to protect life in the future."

The Lokal Anzeiger says: "From the wording of the note as it is now published one sees that the announcement sent out broadcast by the enemy that the note will be an ultimatum—nothing else was to be expected—were wholly baseless. The form is friendly and it contains no asperity, as had been announced. The new note is really a roundabout expression by President Wilson of his original standpoint, and it will be a matter of further negotiations, during which the German arguments will be repeated and their justification proved.

"It would be premature to go into details, especially of a technical nature, now. It is enough to be satisfied that the Wilson note is so constructed as to admit the possibility of additional negotiations. He himself shows a desire for such negotiations. He suggested the claims regarding the Lusitania, and declares himself ready to act as an intermediary between Germany and Great Britain regarding mutual concessors so far as submarine warfare is concerned.

"True, this offer would have been of considerable more value if the President had explained that he was willing to make such preparations, whereas he intimated that Germany and Great Britain should initiate the suggestions.

"However that may be, the U. S. will see from further negotiations that Germany has an honorable desire to treat a friendly suggestion in a friendly spirit.

"At all events, the situation created by the publication of the note is such that the hypothesis heralded throughout the world that America also was in the ranks of our enemies is now shown to be once more the old case of the wish father to the thoughts."

"A harmonising of views is possible and the Washington Government shows a sincere disposition to reach an understanding. That is the keynote of the American note; there is no saber rattling."

Capt. Perseus assumes that the German answer will remove the last obstacle in the way of eliminating all difficulties. As he understands the American note it by no means takes the view that the German Admiralty must order a suspension of submarine warfare before negotiations can proceed. He regrets that the United States "has failed duly to appreciate Germany's previous offer to place restrictions upon the activity of the submarine provided the British abandon their efforts to starve Germany," and he adds that it is certain that no satisfactory solution is possible unless Great Britain makes this concession, as Great Britain "was the first to break the international law." He concludes:

"We have firm confidence that the friendly relations between Germany and the United States will smooth the way to a complete understanding and thus give victory to justice and humanity."

WASHINGTON NOT EXPECTING REPLY FOR TEN DAYS

WASHINGTON, June 12.—Official announcement of the delivery of the American note to the German Government, reiterating insistence that submarine warfare conform to the laws of humanity and international law, was received today from Ambassador Gerard at Berlin. The message came at the close of a day marked by a more optimistic feeling in official quarters that the German answer would forestall any possibility of war between the nations and also avoid a breach of diplomatic relations.

Apparently there was a general relaxation of tension in the international situation. No answer to the American rejoinder is expected for ten days at least and there is conviction here that the Berlin authorities will await the arrival there of Meyer Gerhard, official representative of Ambassador Bernstorff, before their answer is framed.

The President golfed in the morning and motored this afternoon. He probably will go to his summer home at Cornish, N. H., toward the end of the month, to remain for a week or ten days; but will, of course, be in close touch with affairs at Washington.

Count von Bernstorff left Washington today to take up his summer residence at Cedarhurst, N. Y., which probably will be the seat of other embassies and legations in the future, because of the convenience to New York. He will not return to Washington for some time, unless circumstances that he does not anticipate require.

Acting Secretary of State Lansing, with his hands full of details regarding the Mexican situation and the assembling of material to be used in the note which is to go forward to Great Britain following the expected peaceful adjustment of the controversy with Germany, was about the only official of the first rank who put in a full day's work today.

The acting secretary would not give any information regarding the character of the note that is to go to Great Britain, beyond saying that the work now in hand was of a preliminary character, and would be fully considered before the scope or form of it was decided.

He was equally non-communicative (for departmental reasons) in declining to state whether American Minister Gerard had sent any word regarding the impression created at Berlin by the President's note.

President Referred in Note to Germany's Naval Instructions.

WASHINGTON, June 12.—The reference made by President Wilson in his second note to the German Government regarding the sinking of the Lusitania to the "humane and enlightened attitude hitherto assumed by the Imperial German Government in matters of international right and particularly with regard to the freedom of the seas" was based, it was learned to-day, upon the instructions of Aug. 3, 1914, which the German Government sent to its naval commanders. The President's purpose was to show the complete change of the German attitude in regard to the treatment of neutral shipping during the progress of the war.

The German prize rules are now in the possession of the State Department and perhaps will figure specifically in further diplomatic correspondence on the subject of the Lusitania, should there be no breach of relations.

While no mention is made in the rules of submarine warfare, the extent and method of the exercise of the right of search and the stoppage of ships is prescribed with great nicety and provision is made for the safety of passengers and crew.

After outlining the purposes of visiting and searching vessels the regulations add:

"All measures are to be carried out in a form whose observance, even against the enemy, will comport with the dignity of the German Empire, and with a regarded for neutrals conformable to the usages of international law and the German interest."

The method of signaling ships to be halted is prescribed and it is directed that "two successive blank charges are to be fired and if necessary a shotted charge over the ship" if the signals are not obeyed. "If the ship does not then stop or make resistance, the captain will compel her to stop," the instructions continue. After specifying what ships may be captured and destroyed the regulations continue:

"Before destruction all persons on board, if possible with their personal effects, are to be placed in safety and all the ship's papers and other articles of evidence which in the opinion of the interested parties are of value for the judgment of the prize court are to be taken over by the captain."

Obviously Germany's rejoinder might be that she departed from these rules as governing submarines in her subsequent "war zone" declaration and gave warning at that time to all nations of the departure.

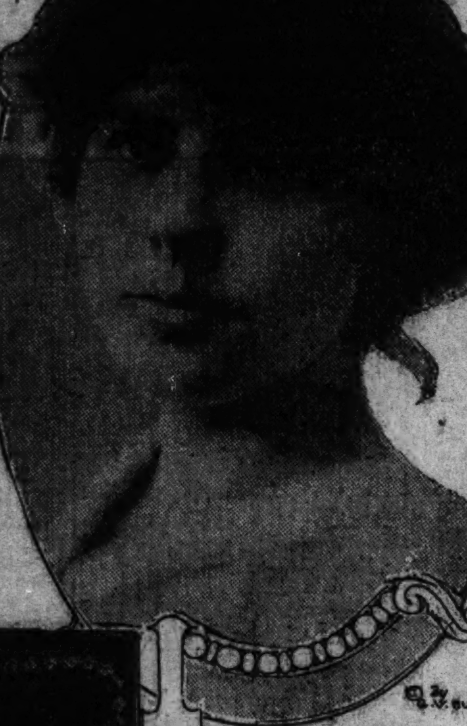
85 Diamonds in Wedding Gift for Miss Clark

WASHINGTON, June 12.

MISS GENEVIEVE CLARK, daughter of the Speaker of the House, who is to be married June 30 to James M. Thompson of New Orleans, is to be presented with a diamond necklace as the wedding gift of the members of the House.

The aggregate weight of the necklace is 17 karats. The necklace, which is considered as separate from the pendant, consists of 85 diamonds, which are set in a way to express the quality of simplicity.

The inspiration of the designer is elaborately expressed in the pendant, a large pear-shaped diamond immediately surrounded by a Greek key pattern of almost microscopic minuteness.



MISS GENEVIEVE CLARK.

Bryan Tells Why He Signed First Note and Not Second

we have not only failed to do any of these things hoped for, but Germany has, in the meantime, answered, and in her answer has not only presented a number of alleged facts, which, in her judgment, justified the deviation which she has made from the ordinary rules applicable to prize cases, but she has suggested arbitration.

A rejection of the arguments, which she presented, and of the allegations made, together with a reiteration of the original demands, creates a very different situation from that which existed when the first demand was made.

War to Be Avoided.

I am sure that the President does not want war and I am confident that our people do not want war; I have no reason to believe that either the German Government or the German people desire war. But war, a calamity at any time, is especially to be avoided now because our nation is relied upon by both neutrals and belligerents as the one nation which can exert most influence toward bringing this war to an end. If we were, by accident, to be drawn into the conflict, we would not only surrender the opportunity to act as a mediator, but we might become responsible for drawing other nations into this contest.

No one will be happier than I if the President's plan results in a peaceful settlement, but no one was in a position to say what effect that the note would have upon Germany or what results would follow if she in anger broke off diplomatic relations.

I have no doubt that the country will unanimously support the President during the war, if so great a misfortune should overtake us, but I believe that the chances of war will be lessened in proportion as the country expresses itself in favor of peace, not peace at any price.

I would contend as earnestly for the application of the treaty principle to the allies as I contend for in the case of Germany.

Note Contained Change.

If the principle is sound it ought to be applied to every country with which we have a difference, and if it ought to be applied at all, I think it is better to suggest it in the beginning than to accept it later, after a seeming reluctance to apply it.

I understand that Secretary Lansing has already given out a statement correcting an inaccuracy which appeared in this morning's papers. I appreciate his kindness. It is true that I saw the final draft of the note just before my resignation took effect, but it contained an important change. I had no knowledge of this change at the time my resignation was tendered and accepted.

This change, while very much softening the note, was not, however, sufficient, in my judgment, to justify me in asking permission to withdraw my resignation.

The former secretary with Mrs. Bryan left tonight for Point Comfort to remain until Tuesday. Upon his return Bryan expects to announce his plans for the immediate future.

In administration circles, while Bryan's activities are viewed with interest, there is a tendency to regard his resignation and the causes leading up to it as a closed incident.

A member of the Cabinet is authority for the statement that "We were all sorry for the astonishing effect that the only policy open to the Government exercised Mr. Bryan until he found it necessary publicly to discuss matters of policy which the administration did not regard as being in such shape as to justify public consideration of them."

The statement Bryan made this afternoon was the sixth he has sponsored since he retired from office.

Berlin Paper Says Lansing Wrote He Was "Tired of Being England's Messenger Boy."

BERLIN, June 12.—Vossische Zeitung comments favorably on the note and says:

"The line of thought and the tone of the note do not make it easily understandable that it brought about the break between President Wilson and Mr. Bryan.

"As for Mr. Wilson, he seems to hope to play the role of arbiter between Germany and England and through his great success in foreign politics to strengthen his position at home."

Referring to Robert Lansing, the Secretary of State ad interim, the Vossische Zeitung says:

"This gentleman cannot be regarded as an unconditional Anglophile; he once wrote in a letter that he was tired of being England's messenger boy."

WASHINGTON, June 12.—Secretary Lansing tonight declined to comment on a report printed in the Berlin Vossische Zeitung to the effect that "he was tired of being England's messenger boy."

54 VESSELS SUNK BY SUBMARINES IN LAST SEVEN DAYS

British Lost 40, Neutrals 7, French 2, Belgians 2 and the Russians 3.

LONDON, June 12.—Today's report of German submarine activity shows that one steamer and three trawlers were sunk.

Since Saturday last German submarines have sunk 54 vessels, of which seven were neutral. The others comprised two French, two Belgian, three Russian and 40 British. Of the British vessels, 32 were fishing craft.

In addition two fishing vessels were sunk by a Zeppelin.

Turkey announces the sinking of a Russian torpedo boat in the Black Sea on Friday. The warship was destroyed by the Ottoman cruiser Midulla, formerly the German cruiser Breslau, which returned safely to port.

Russians Say Turkish Ship Was Damaged in Fight.

PETROGRAD, June 12, 2:53 a. m.—The Turkish cruiser Midullu, formerly the German cruiser Breslau, was damaged, just how severely, is not known, in an artillery duel with two Russian torpedo boat destroyers, near the Bosphorus, Friday night, according to a Russian official statement. It is stated that the cruiser was struck by several shots, that an explosion was heard aboard and that fire was seen at her bow.

ANOTHER BATTLE RAGING ON BANKS OF THE DNIESTER

Russians and Germans Struggling to Gain Advantage for an Offensive.

Respirators to Protect the London Police From Zeppelin Gas Bombs

LONDON, June 12.

ALL police stations in London have been equipped with respirators, which will be served out to patrolmen and special constables as a protection against gas bombs in case of a Zeppelin raid on the metropolis.

By Associated Press.

LONDON, June 12.—Another big battle is being fought along the line of the Dniester River in Galicia, in which the forces of Russia are pitted against those of Austria and Germany. Those German troops which had crossed the Dniester at Zurawna having been driven back, and the Russians in Eastern Galicia and Bukowina also having been forced to withdraw to the river, the two armies now face one another across the wide and crooked stream, each making thrusts in an effort to gain initiative for an offensive.

The Austrians in their official report claim to have succeeded in crossing the river to the east of Horodenka, a movement which, in view of their recent experience near Zurawna, might prove dangerous.

The Austro-Germans still have Lemberg as their objective and they are not likely to allow any reverses they have suffered near Zurawna and east of Przemysl to put them off, so that fighting as severe as any witnessed in recent weeks may be expected during the next few days.

Heavy Fighting in Baltic Region.

Heavy fighting also continues in the Baltic provinces and on the east Prussian frontier, in which both sides claim advantages. With the view, doubtless, of preventing the Russians sending reinforcements to either of their wings, the Germans yesterday delivered an attack along the Rawka River between Bolimow and Zochazew, the scene of important battles last winter when the Germans tried to reach Warsaw by the direct route from the west. In yesterday's attack, the Germans claim to have broken into the Russian positions and to have taken 5000 prisoners.

At various points between Rheims and north of Arras the French continue their attacks, which they report to have been successful, but which the Germans, on the other hand, invariably state have been repulsed.

Although no big forward movement has been made, the fighting is almost continuous along the line from the sea to Champagne and in the Woevre district. The British and Belgians, although they are not doing much attacking, are playing an important role in these operations, for to them falls the task of holding German forces on their front by threatening an offensive and thus preventing the Germans' sending relief to those troops which the French are assailing.

The Italians have scored another success on the Isonzo River by the capture of the town of Gradisca, and it is reported that they are carrying out a strong offensive all along the river as far up as Tolmino, which they are endeavoring to outflank.

A dispatch from Verona, Italy, says the Italian advance on Roverets in Tyrol, 15 miles southwest of Trent, and Mori, 18 miles southwest of Trent, has pushed so close to both towns that either they have already been taken or are about to be occupied, according to reports from the front.

Franco-British forces are reported on advices from Athens to have joined battle with the Turks for possession of the town of Gallipoli at the entrance to the Sea of Marmora. Fierce fighting also is reported near Maidos, which is about half way through the Dardanells straits, on the northern side.

Italian Regiment Under Fire Four Days; Colonel Wounded.

UDINE, Italy, June 12.—The twelfth regiment of Bersaglieri, who virtually fought four days continuously against the Austrians defending Tolmino, had the heaviest losses of any Italian detachment since the beginning of the war.

Col. de Rossi was twice wounded, but he refused to be removed from the fighting line until he saw that all his men were safe. The second officer in command, Col. Negrotto, was killed, having suffered many wounds.

Col. de Rossi was promoted to the rank of General before the war broke out, but he asked that the War Office postpone his promotion as he desired to lead his regiment under fire. When King Victor Emmanuel visited him at the hospital to confer a medal, Col. de Rossi said he was proud of his bersaglieri. Although outnumbered, he told the King, his men had succeeded in repulsing the Austrians and none was taken prisoner.

Servians Account for Two Aeroplanes

NISH, Servia, via London, June 12, 10:55 p. m.—Three Austrian aeroplanes yesterday dropped bombs on Kragojevats, killing or wounding 12 persons. Servian aeroplanes pursued the hostile machines, bringing one down. Another aeroplane with two German officers was captured at Agripalanka.

Druids to Celebrate Anniversary.

SAN FRANCISCO, June 12.—More than 10,000 Druids and Druidesses of the United States will celebrate the fiftieth anniversary of the founding of the grand cove of the order in California, at the Panama-Pacific Exposition, from June 21 to 28. A feature of the celebration procession will be a number of allegorical floats representing different stages of Druidism dating back to the early Christian era.

GERMAN-AMERICAN LEADERS DENOUNCE APPEAL OF BRYAN

Former Secretary of State Called a "Muddlehead"—"Neither Open Nor Honest."

WILLIAM J. BRYAN'S appeal to German-Americans brought out the following comment from representative German-Americans and their newspapers in this country:

KANSAS CITY, Mo., June 12.—"The German Government is well aware that the preservation of amicable relations between both nations is of momentous concern to all of German birth or descent. Our influence is passive or psychologicalin character. Grant's policy during the Franco-Prussian war of 1870, declaring an embargo on all war materials would nearly remove all friction. Our alliance is patriotically pledged to peace and we hope it may yet prove to be a valuable international asset.

A. P. SCHEURMAN,
Vice-President of the Central West German-American Alliance."

PITTSBURG, June 12.—Prof. Frederick Lohstoeter, head of the department of German languages in Pittsburg High School said:

"Of course we are grateful for the certificate of our loyalty which has been furnished by Mr. Bryan, but Mr. Bryan knows very well that neither the German people nor their government have any wish to convert the friendship of 100 years into enmity and war."

CINCINNATI, June 12.—Dr. Louis Schwab, former Republican Mayor, said:

"Mr. Bryan attempts to counsel the German-Americans to stand for peace. Why, bless your soul, they have always stood for this and nothing else, and this has always been the stand of our great and noble President whom I, although of different political faith, admire and support second to no man of his millions of countrymen. However, I really feel sorry for Mr. Bryan, for he clearly has put his foot in it."

BUFFALO, N. Y., June 12.—The Buffalo Democrat says:

"Instead of sending his pronouncement to German-Americans, Mr. Bryan should have addressed it to the jingo press and to the mob, high or low; to the Wall street clique and to the ammunition and powder combine. Does Mr. Bryan think German-Americans are a flock of sheep, who can expect to shelter at this time, behind meaningless phrases, 'humanity, freedom of the seas and neutrality?' Mr. Bryan may have meant his declaration for German-Americans, but he sent it to the wrong address."

DENVER, June 12.—The Colorado Herald says:

"Bryan's appeal, while it may be classed as patriotic, was unnecessary. Bryan's well-known prohibition tendencies, however, preclude the idea that he was bidding for German-American votes."

Adolph Coors, capitalist, said:

"Bryan is ethically wrong in appealing to either the American people or to German-Americans. If any harm results to American interests it will largely be due to Mr. Bryan."

SAN FRANCISCO, June 12.—The California Democrat will say:

"It cannot be denied that Bryan's resignation from the office of Secretary of State is a blessing for our country, for he was absolutely not the man for this position of the dignity of which he lacked all understanding.

CHICAGO, June 12.—The Chicago Abend Post says:

"While appreciating Mr. Bryan's belief in the loyalty of German-Americans, the citizens of German descent will consider his appeal uncalled for. His suggestion that they endeavor to use their influence with the German Government to secure acceptance of President Wilson's demands in the interests of peace they will dismiss with a smile and a shrug of the shoulders.

The Chicago Fier Press says:

"William Jennings Bryan has been cheated out of his just indignation by President Wilson. The President has absolutely no intention of engaging in a war with Germany."

LOUISVILLE, Ky., June 12.—The Louisville Anzeiger will say:

"Mr. Bryan tries to induce German-Americans to exert their influence on the German Government for preservation of peace between Germany and the United States. This request is not only inappropriate, but also very clumsy."

HOG BOOM AIDS A BANK

Deposits Pile Up When Porkers Bought on Loans Are Sold.

TEMPLE, Tex., June 12.—During a recent campaign for diversification of crops in Bell County, it developed that, notwithstanding its unusual advantages for hog raising, the county last year sent away $613,157 for meat. H. C. Poe, president of the Temple State Bank, communicated with breeders of fine hogs and then announced in a newspaper that he would distribute 100 hogs among the boys of the county, taking their personal unindorsed notes payable out of the net profits from the pigs.

Before the newspaper was off the press, the printer's devil made an application for a hog. After that the applications piled in on Poe until he was fairly swamped. Poe says that the deposits in his bank have increased $300,000 within 90 days, or coincident with the hog distribution.

Meat Prices Climb at Vienna.

VIENNA, June 12.—The retail price of meat here advanced 4 cents to 8 cents a pound, owing to steady decrease in the arrival of cattle and the constantly increasing demands of the army.

AMERICA IS SAID TO HAVE LOST CHANCE TO INITIATE PEACE

Neutral Nations in Europe Have Agreed to Sign Call for Preliminary Conference, but Do Not Look to United States as Leader.

By Karl H. von Wiegand,

(Copyright, 1915, by Press Pub. Co.)

BERLIN, June 11 (via The Hague, June 12).—The great role of peacemaker of the world has slipped from the hands of President Wilson and will pass into the hands of some neutral nation in Europe.

This neutral nation will take the initiative toward peace—that is, will take the preliminary steps at least to restore the peace of the world. America will play but a secondary role.

Such is the opinion held in neutral European countries, I am informed by parties who have just finished a tour of these neutral countries, sounding their diplomats on the neutrals' view of calling a conference in the endeavor to bring the war to a close.

These persons claim they have received encouragement and support everywhere except in Washington.

Consequently, the European neutrals have about decided that Europe will have to look to herself to make the move toward peace, and they contemplate taking steps in that direction without President Wilson.

Greatest Mission in History.

I cannot vouch for the correctness of the information given me, but from such personal investigation as I could make of the statements made to me and from the character of my informants, who had been quietly visiting the European capitals and also were at Washington, there seems no reason to doubt it. According to these persons not only all the European neutrals, but even the belligerents have, from the beginning of the war, looked upon President Wilson as the man and upon America as the country which would take up what is characterized as "the greatest mission in the history of the world since Christ." That of bringing peace to a warring world.

As far back as last November one of the Scandinavian countries, it is alleged, let President Wilson know that it would support him if he would take the initiative in calling a conference of the neutrals. In Holland, in December it was considered that the moment had arrived to take some step toward peace and to let Washington know Holland was ready to support the movement if Washington would take the initiative.

Henry Van Dyke, American Minister at The Hague, under the plea that his eyes needed treatment, went to Washington to take this information to President Wilson and to talk over the situation with him.

A denial was issued at the time that the American minister's trip had anything to do with peace, but I am assured, on what appears to be good authority that Dr. Van Dyke was to inform President Wilson of the Dutch Government's view on a conference of the neutrals with the view of attempting to approach the belligerents in the possibility of ending the war.

Pope's Message Added Conviction.

The Pope's Easter mesage to America, through the Post-Dispatch, in which the Holy Father called upon America to take the initiative and promised to support President Wilson in any step toward peace which the President might consider wise to make, adding he had already let Mr. Wilson know of this through a certain distinguished person, is alleged to have added conviction to the neutrals on this side of the Atlantic that it was useless any longer to hope that the salvation of Europe and the world will come from America.

But it is said that the neutrals of Europe have not lost faith in President Wilson, but hope that he will be the great prophet and father of the world's peace.

I am informed that so far three of the European neutrals have agreed to sign a call for a conference to discuss ways and means of sounding the belligerents as to the possibility of bringing about peace speedily. This plan originated with President Wilson, it appears; he initiated the idea of calling a conference of the neutrals.

But Mr. Wilson has failed to act, and it is also being appreciated that since the Lusitania was torpedoed he is not in the position to be the prophet of peace.

So it is planned that the five European neutrals jointly sign a call or invitation, instead of giving one of the neutrals the leading initiative role. Whether America be invited now is said to be under consideration, some of the European neutrals being more or less indifferent whether she be invited or not, while one or two urge that she be included in the conference. I understand those working on the conference plan, who have been sounding the neutral government, will meet either in Holland or Switzerland within the next ten days to decide on the next steps.

The conference will not be called until assurance can be brought that such a move will not be regarded as unfriendly in London, or in Berlin especially.

William Jennings Bryan, lately American Secretary of State was extremely anxious, I am informed, that such a conference be held in America, although it would be nothing more than preliminary; a possible opportunity for the exchange of views between the belligerents who may not regard the idea of peace with an unfriendly eye.

For various reasons the idea of holding the conference in Washington is not being entertained. There is also opposition to holding it at The Hague because of conditions connected with that capital. Most probably, if the conference be held at all, it will be in Christiana or Stockholm.

Further Exchange of Views Expected.

"We believe the note leaves the door open to a further exchange of views. There appears to be no ground for looking pessimistically into the future."

This statement made to me late tonight in responsible quarters may be taken as reflecting the impression made in governmental circles by President Wilson's note; based, however, upon what was, perhaps, a somewhat cursory examination of its contents soon after its delivery. Perahps just a little anxiety created by press dispatches following Bryan's resignation was relieved by the note.

It was admitted that the note had a friendly tone and that President Wilson had placed the question of safety of non-combatants upon a high humanitarian basis. That the note was not as sharp and abrupt as there had been some fear from London dispatches was evident from the remark made to me by one of the officials when he said:

"I can hardly see why Bryan should have resigned on account of the note unless it was only to be consistent with his principles of having advocated arbitration settlement of all international disputes."

Answer Is Two Weeks Away.

The note was received in a dignified manner, and it can be said it has made an earnest impression. But if press dispatches are a criterion, there appears to be much more excitement in the United States about it than here. I understand that in all probability it will be two weeks before the answer can be prepared.

Anton Meyer-Gerhard, personal representative of Ambassador von Bernstorff, who is en route, is not expected before next week. He will then have to go to the Kaiser in the field and make a report before consideration of the answer will be taken up.

Washington Surprised at Report of Failure to Get U. S. Aid in Peace Move.

WASHINGTON, June 12.—Reports received from peace advocates in neutral European countries to the effect that they have been unable to get assistance from Washington in their endeavors to bring about an end of the war were received in official circles tonight with surprise. These reports were in addition to the Von Wiegand cablegram to the New York World concerning European peace plans.

President Wilson has told friends recently that the United States is ready to use its good offices whenever it is called upon to do so but this government does not purpose to attempt to force itself upon any of the belligerents. Persons close to the President have stated lately that he sees nothing in the present situation to form the basis for a belief that the time is ripe for peace negotiations. It is known that he has been somewhat irritated by efforts which misguided persons have made from time to time to get him to take some action along peace lines.

It is well understood here that the President does not purpose to take the initiative because he is satisfied that when any of the belligerents desire this country to take a hand he will be advised to this effect without delay.

It is generally believed here that the President does not desire to have this country officially in any movements of any sort that are started in Europe.

COCAINE USER DIES ON WAY TO HOSPITAL IN AMBULANCE

Mother of Clerk Tells Police Associate of Son Supplied Him With Fatal Drug.

John Jackson, 30 years old, a clerk, of 2912 Washington avenue, died at 8:30 last night in an ambulance which was taking him to the city hospital. The hospital records report he had been suffering from the use of cocaine.

His wife, Maggie Jackson, told the police that he became ill at 3 o'clock yesterday afternoon and that he had acted strangely, throwing himself about their room.

Jackson's mother, Mrs. Minnie Young, of 821 Fountain avenue, gave the police a number of tin boxes which, she said, had contained drugs used by him, and placed the blame for his having the drugs upon a man with whom, she said, he associated.

ALUMNI PARADE AT PRINCETON

PRINCETON, N. J., June 12.—The alumni dress parade to the baseball game with Yale was the main feature of Princeton's commencement festivities today. In the front rank walked an alumnus of the class of 1850, who was celebrating his sixty-fifth reunion all by himself. Both '90 and '95 had an unusually large per centage of members in line, the former having 17 out of 24 and the latter 18 out of 24.

Factory Superintendent Falls Dead.

CHILLICOTHE, Mo., June 12.—Paul Blessing, 32 years old, superintendent of the W. B. Hamilton glove factory of this city, dropped dead in his office at the factory this afternoon of heart trouble. He is survived by his mother.

GERMAN MINISTRY SAID TO BE SPLIT ON AMERICAN NOTE

Von Tirpitz Opposes, While Chancellor Hollweg Favors Making Concessions.

(Copyright, 1915, by Press Pub. Co.)

LONDON, June 12.—"Admiral von Tirpitz will not consent to stop submarine warfare against merchant ships, but Chancellor von Bethmann-Hollweg would do so if necessary to keep peace with the United States."

This was the statement made to the Post-Dispatch correspondent today by an American who has spent almost the whole of the last six months in Germany, and expects to return there next week unless the relations between the two countries are severed. It would be impossible for him to return if his name were disclosed, especially should he be suspected of having made the revelations which he was able to give to Post-Dispatch.

He left Germany just previous to the arrival of the last American note and says that Americans there were extremely nervous. Many have gone already into neutral countries, and others are ready to do so. It would not be surprising if a considerable proportion of them should reach London within a few days.

"Germany faces a serious ministerial crisis," he said. "On the way in which it turns will probably depend the attitude adopted toward the United States. Chancellor von Bethmann-Hollweg favors abandonment of the submarine warfare if its continuance would mean war with America, but Admiral von Tirpitz heads a strong following, which believes that the submarine will win the war, and that everything entering the war zone should be torpedoed, even if such a policy should draw America into the conflict. They reason that America already is such a storehouse of supplies for the allies that she is practically an enemy anyway, and that the submarines could eventually thwart any active assistance from that quarter.

"It now remains to be seen w[illegible] policy will receive the Kaiser's support. If peace be maintained with America, it will mean, probably, Admiral von Tirpitz's finish, and the Chancellor, at the head of the more reasonable element, will control the situation. It is this element which favors giving up Belgium.

Another feature of the situation is the growing belief among the Social Democrats that a severe German defeat will result in the downfall of the Hohenzollern family, and that Germany will become a republic. This element, therefore, would welcome the entry of America into the conflict in the belief that they could thus be more certain of disaster to the Hohenzollerns.

Referring to Germany's ability to support herself, this American said:

"She is fully able to stand another tw[illegible] years' war. Her next war loan will b[illegible] for $5,000,000,000."

He asserted that almost constant [illegible] forts had been made to gain a separ[illegible] peace with Russia, but these had bee[illegible] unavailing. The Post-Dispatch's informant said:

"Germany is willing to sacrifice Turkey to that end if she thought Russia would make terms. I have reason to believe that Austria proper will beco[illegible] a part of Germany, even if the w[illegible] should end in a draw."

American opinion in Germany, he said, strongly sides with President Wilson's firmness.

COVENANT AMONG ALL AMERICAN NATIONS URGED BY COLOMBIAN

BOSTON, June 12.—A covenant among all American nations to supplement the Monroe Doctrine and preserve the integrity of the Western Hemisphere was proposed tonight by Senor Santiago Perez Triana, delegate from the republic of Colombia to the recent Pan-American financial conference at a banquet given tonight in honor of those delegates by the Boston Chamber of Commerce. Among the other speakers were President Lowell of Harvard University and Senor Gonzalo Vergara Bulnes of Chile.

"In order to secure the whole-souled support of the Monroe Doctrine throughout the length and breadth of the continent," said Senor Peres, "that doctrine must be carried to the extreme length of its logical development. The Monroe Doctrine has closed effectively the continent to European conquest, but it has not prevented the exercise of conquest in both sections of the continent. I am formulating no indictment, my contention is purely analytical. It should be enacted and covenanted among all [illegible] tions of the continent that the territ[illegible] of the American nations is no longer subject for conquest, either from withi[illegible] or from without the hemisphere.

"Such a declaration, so far as the United States are concerned, has already been made by the President. It is not to be supposed that any other American republic should be less explicit."

Senor Vergara declared that the recent financial conferences showed clearly that there were many vast problems confronting the two Americas, which might not hold out any prospect of actual and immediate profit, but which must be solved by men of heart and intelligence.

The delegates will leave Boston tomorrow late in the day for New York where the party disbands.

CARRANZA PLEADS FOR RECOGNITION BY UNITED STATES

General Issues "Proclamation to the People" in Reply to President's Warning.

VILLA ALSO ANSWERS

Constitutionalist Chief Claims to Be in Control of Seven-Eighths of Territory.

WASHINGTON, June 12.—President Wilson had before him tonight the first reply to his recent statement regarding Mexico. It was a lengthy "proclamation to the People" issued yesterday by General Carranza asserting the right of the Constitutionalist Government to recognition by the United States and other foreign Governments. Lack of recognition is declared to be the only difficulty remaining in the way of restoring constitutional government in Mexico. The statement asserts:

"At this time we believe ourselves to be in a position to overcome this last difficulty because the Constitutionalist Government is now actually in definite possession of sovereignty and the legitimate exercise of sovereignty is the essential condition which should be taken into account when deciding upon recognition of a government."

Gen. Villa's answer also reached Washington today, but was not delivered at the State Department. Until it is presented the Villa agency declined to make public the text.

Officials of the department refused to comment on the abstract of the Villa statement carried in press dispatches or upon a copy of a letter from Villa to Carranza, also received at the agency, which urges that differences be forgotten and suggests a personal meeting between the leaders to arrange for co-operation and the restoration of peace.

Recites History of Revolution.

Gen. Carranza's proclamation was formally handed to Consul Silliman at Vera Cruz yesterday for transmission to Washington. It was promptly laid before President Wilson, and State Department officials would not discuss it. The document recites the history of the revolution through five years, beginning with the Madero uprising against Porfirio Diaz and what is termed the economic and social inequality of the colonial epoch. The length of the revolution, it asserts, is due to attempt at compromise with the elements of the old regime at Ciudad Juarez.

President Madero's failure the document attributes to the opposition from Orozco, Reyes and Felix Diaz of the old regime, and Zapata, instigated by their adherents. Gen. Huerta, it explains, consummated the movement with the co-operation of a group of foreigners, favored by the old regime who surrounded Henry Lane Wilson, former American Ambassador to Mexico, and under the pretext of saving Mexico City from war.

Controls Seven-Eights of Territory.

Although it was thought the Constitutionalist element had lost the support of the people when they withdrew from Mexico City, the statements asserts, it now has control of over seven-eighths of the national territory. Administrations, it is claimed, are being organized in 20 out of 27 states of the republic and the Vera Cruz government controls all the ports of the gulf and Pacific Ocean with the exception of Guaymas, and all ports of entry on the northern and southern frontiers with the exception of Piedras Negras, Ciudad Juarez and Nogales; that more than 13,000,000 of the 15,000,000 population of Mexico are subject to Constitutionalist authority.

Opposition to the Carranza forces, it is asserted, is day by day decreasing and the offensive of the enemy is limited to acts of brigandage.

Has Cared for the Poor.

The Constitutionalist Government has done all in its power, it is stated, for the people, especially the poor, by forbidding the export of necessities and has punished abuses and protected the lives of those within its territory.

In regard to foreign relations Gen. Carranza asserts that one of his initial acts as First Chief was to apprise the United States of his attitude, facing rebellion and usurpation. He feels that his labors have been retarded by lack of understanding in the United States and other nations as well. The press, under the Cientifico influence, it is claimed, prejudiced foreign nations against him and this he was unable to combat, lacking the ordinary means offered when diplomatic relations exist between different countries.

Effect of Recognition.

"If, as we hope and wish," Gen. Carranza's proclamation continues, "for the benefit of the Mexican people and of the foreigners resident in the country, the governments of other nations recognize the Constitutionalist Government, they will lend by this act of justice an effective moral support which will not only strengthen the friendly relations which Mexico has always cultivated with these nations, and enable them to discuss their common affairs, thus reconciling their mutual interests, but also will more rapidly consolidate peace and establish the constructive Constitutionalist Government thus sustained in its reform and in the program of the revolution whose object is the greatest good for the greatest number."

Gen. Carranza then asserts that he thinks it his duty to call to the attention of the factions persisting in resistance of the Constitutionalist Government of the futility of their attitude and inform the nation of the political course which the Constitutionalist Government will observe in the execution of the program of social reform contained in the decree of the twelfth of December, 1914."

Guarantees to Foreigners.

This course is set forth as follows:

"First: The Constitutionalist Government will grant ... foreigners resident in Mexico the guarantees to which they are entitled according to our laws and will amply protect their lives and guarantee their liberty and the enjoyment of their legal property rights, granting them indemnity for damages which the revolution may have caused them in so far as such indemnity may be just. These will be liquidated by a procedure which will be instituted in due time. The Government will likewise assume the responsibility of such financial obligations as may be considered legitimate.

Law and Order Promised.

Second. The first care of the Constitutionalist Government will be to re-establish peace under a regime of law and order so that all inhabitants of Mexico, nationals as well as foreigners, may equally enjoy the benefits of real justice and may take an interest in co-operating towards the support of a Government which springs from the revolution. The commission of crime will not go unpunished. In due time a law of amnesty will be issued which will respond to the needs of the country and the necessities of the situation, and which will in no sense exempt those granted amnesty from the civil responsibility which they may have incurred.

"Third: The constitutional laws of Mexico, called the reform laws, which established the separation of church and state and which guarantee to the individual the right of worship according to the dictates of his own conscience without disturbing public order will be strictly observed. Consequently no one will suffer in his person, liberty or property on account of his religious beliefs. The church buildings will continue to be the property of the nation according to existing laws and the Constitutionalist Government will grant anew for worship these structures that may be needed.

No Confiscation of Land.

"Fourth: In the settlement of the agarian problem there will be no confiscation. This problem will be resolved by the equitable distribution of land which the government still possesses, by the restoration of these tracts of which communities of individuals have been illegally dispossessed, by the purchase and expropriation of large tracts whenever necessary and by other means of acquisition authorized by the laws of the country. The constitution of Mexico prohibits special privileges, therefore, all kinds of property, whoever may be the owner and whether in actual use or not will, in the future, be subject to a proportional payment of taxes, according to a just and equitable revaluation.

"Fifth: All property which has been from legal government and which does not constitute a special privilege or monopoly will be respected.

"Sixth: The peace and security of a nation depends upon the intelligence of its citizens. Therefore the Government will take pains in developing public education, extending it to all parts of the country and will utilize for this purpose all co-operation conducted in good faith, permitting the establishment of private schools in conformity with our laws."

Election for President.

The declaration further asserts that the proposed government would carry out provisions of the decree of December, 1914, stipulating that upon triumph of the revolution the first chief would convoke elections for a national Congress, to which would be reported an account of the revolution and its reforms for ratification and amendment and which would call an election for Parliament.

The constitutionalist agency reported tonight that the Carranza army advancing on Mexico City was within 60 miles of the capital. Gen. Gonzales, in command, has issued a proclamation urging merchants to restrict profits on necessities, giving assurances that no new taxes would be levied, guaranteeing protection of all persons, native or foreign, and that no supplies would be taken for the army without payment. It asked co-operation of all classes in re-establishing civil government.

MILLIONAIRE KEPT TWO HOMES, SAYS DIVORCED WIFE

Mrs. Nello Boyd of Denver Says She Never Knew She Was Divorced in 1911.

LITTLETON, Colo., June 12.—Joseph W. Boyd of Denver, president of the Kansas City Home State Bank, and reputed to be a millionaire, who obtained a divorce from his first wife, Mrs. Nello May Boyd, Sept. 7, 1911, without her knowledge, as she contends in a suit now being heard in the Arapahoe County Court to set aside the divorce, maintained two homes with two wives at, the same time, Mrs. Boyd said to-day.

Neither Mrs. Nello May Boyd nor Mrs. Josephine Elliott Boyd, wife No. 2, knew that the head of their respective households was leading a double life, Mrs. Boyd asserted.

Since Boyd was granted his divorce in the Arapahoe County Court in 1911 he has continued to live with her, and when away from Idaho Springs, where she makes her home, he corresponded with her regularly, she says.

In support of her contention that she never knew she had been divorced by Boyd, she introduced in evidence today, through Attorney E. M. Sabin, 32 letters which Boyd wrote to her between the time he obtained the alleged fraudulent divorce and her discovery of it a month ago.

He Admits Writing Them.

These letters were shown to Boyd and he denied the authorship of them. He said he did not write them or authorize them to be written, but afterwards when his attorneys threatened to withdraw from the case, he admitted he did write them.

Boyd explained to Judge Ashbaugh, who is hearing the case, that he was so "flabbergasted" when the 32 letters were shown him that he became excited and did not know what answers to give to the questions hurled at him by his former wife's attorney.

Several of the letters from Boyd to Nello May Boyd were read in evidence. In one, under date of Dec. 17, 1913, two years after his divorce, Boyd wrote of having undergone an operation for cancer and told of the suffering he was forced to endure. Then he says:

"I have broken every commandment but murder, and I doubt if some of my acts have not led to that also. And I am paid by a higher power when the world did not catch me at it, that is all.

"Reaping as I Have Sown."

"This may be an awful shock to you. It is what I deserve and I am reaping my crop for the wrongs I have done and have been doing all my life.

"I can't complain, for I am reaping as I have sown and it may be some comfort to you to know I am suffering more than all the world put together for it now.

"Times have come and gone and I will be one next December for Elks to reckon among the 'absent brothers.'"

JAPANESE DIVER ASKS FOR CHANCE TO RAISE THE EMDEN

KOBE, Japan, June 12.—Teisuke Shimizu, a veteran Japanese diver, has petitioned the British authorities for permission to refloat the famous German cruiser Emden, destroyed by the Australian cruiser Sydney off Cocos Island in November, 1914.

The diver won laurels in 1883 while engaged in salvage operations on the sunken ship Anzenmaru on the coast of Japan. A great storm arose and the British merchantman Carnarvanshire was wrecked nearby. Single handed, Shimizu rescued the crew against fearful odds.

In recognition of his bravery the British Government presented him a watch.

FAIRGROUND POOL OPENS; LIFE SAVING EXHIBITION STAGED

Director of Public Welfare Goes to Rescue of Athletic Director in Water.

The public swimming pool in Fairground Park was opened yesterday afternoon by an exhibition of lifesaving by Director of Public Welfare Tolkacz, who went to the rescue of Rodowe Abeken, Director of Athletics in the Park Department, who Tolkacz thought was drowning.

After various swimming teams had given fancy aquatic exhibitions, the pool was cleared, Abeken being the only one remaining in. Park Commissioner Nelson Cunliff stood ready to give the signal to allow the swimmers t oenter the pool when the clock pointed to 3.

Suddenly there was a cry of "Help, Help!" from the center of the pool. "Abeken's drowning," someone shouted. The Welfare Commissioner, who was standing nearest, attired in a bathing suit, plunged in, followed by several life guards. With long, quick strokes Tolkacz reached Abeken just as the latter went down.

Tolkacz Gets Ducking.

Tolkacz plunged after him, and then was grappled by Abeken, and pulled further into the water and given a first-class ducking, for Abeken was only crying, "wolf." Then the two swam back to shore together 'mid the applause of the crowd.

A moment later the Park Commissioner raised a hand, and the big gong rang three times. The gates to the dressing rooms were flung open, and half a thousand men, women and children plunged into the water.

Every variety of bathing suit was seen except the unit, skin-tight affair which srves as "costume de rigueur" for the feminine sex at the fashionable English beaches. Being America, and St. Louis in particular, this was strictly barred.

Some of Suits Novel.

Some of the girls, who brought their own costumes, showed a conception of latter-day fashions marvelous in their beauty. There was one dainty gown slit at either side, giving fleeting glimpses of the nether limbs, only partly protected from alien gaze by semi-tights beneath the skirt; also there was a tight-fitting suit which gave the wearer the appearance of being very tightly laced.

The suits were of various colors, mostly of the darker shades, with beribboned caps or all the rainbow hues. Of hosiery there was plenty with some suits and with others none, depending largely upon the age of the wearer.

Park officials estimated that 2400 persons took a plunge during the afternoon, which is 1000 more than appeared on opening day last year. Mayor Kiel was represented by Acting Mayor Julius Haller.

The pool in Mullanphy Park was officially opened by the Commissioner an hour earlier than the Fairground.

Dr. E. Voerster of 405 Walnut street became exhausted in the Mullanphy pool and had to be pulled out by life guards, the officials said. This was the only case of the kind reported at either place during the afternoon.

Tuesdays and Fridays, from 9 a. m. until 1 p. m. the pools will be for women only.

Man Wins $18,000 by Marriage.

LOS ANGELES, Cal., June 12.—Arthur L. Vissers was married here today to Miss Myrtle Bush, thereby complying with the terms of a will by which he is to inherit $18,000. The will was made by Vissers' grandfather and required that Vissers be married by Sept. 1.

HIGHBALL EXPERTS DECLARE DRINKING IMPROVED LAWYER

By Leased Wire From the New York Bureau of the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, June 12.—Illuminating testimony concerning the amount of spirituous liquors consumed by certain members of the District Attorney's staff and the stimulating effect on the young prosecutors, was given before Supreme Court Justice Blanchard in the separation suit of Mrs. Frances Busby McCormick against Deputy Assistant District Attorney Robert C. McCormick.

Mrs. McCormick asserts her husband was a steady and heavy drinker, and abused her.

The assistant district attorney freely admits he has consumed large quantities of liquor for 20 years, but denies he abused his young wife as the result of drinking. In fact, his defense runs, the more he dallied with the exhilarating cup the more cheerful and agreeable he became.

Sort of Congress of Drinkers.

To prove his contention McCormick called to the stand three members of District Attoney Perkins's staff besides Clifford Boese, an elderly and dignified clerk of Part I Supreme Court; a cotton broker, Alfred Hoye, who has set up many nights sipping highballs with McCormick, and other persons who were willing to tell of their own bibulous habits as well as of his. As a congress of drinkers they made an impression.

Incidentally, Mrs. McCormick herself testified to an incident which would seem to support her husband's assertion that liquor made him joyous. Under the guidance of Mirabeau L. Towns, her counsel, she told of a dance in which McCormick was the chief figure.

When the couple were living in a flat on West Eighty-third street McCormick complained of feeling ill and telephoned the District Attorney he would not work that day, his wife testified. About 11 o'clock she heard sounds of hilarity coming from the parlor.

Danced Jig With Servants.

"When I opened the door I saw a strange sight," she said. "There was Jennie Kiely, the maid, whom my husband had dubbed 'Jennie McCormick' singing an Irish jig tune. Alongside her was Caterine Davis, the colored washer woman, called 'Catherine McCormick," by my husband, clapping her hands to keep time. In the middle of the floor was my husband, waving his legs in the air and executing the jig. He appeared to have wholly recovered from whatever ailed him."

Assistant District Attorney Thomas C. Press said beer was his favorite beverage, except when he was out with McCormick. He then drank highballs.

"They improve the mentality," he volunteered.

"How many highballs can you stand?" asked Mr. Towns.

"I never kept track," answered the witness, "but I've drunk five or six."

"Didn't they make you sleepy?"

High Balls an Inspiration.

"Not at all. They inspired me to better work. I improved intellectually. Really."

"Indeed?"

"Yes. Don't you remember the case you won against me, Mr. Towne? Well, if I had known a couple of highballs that day it would have been a different story."

The witness was certain that McCormick never showed the slightest ill nature when drinking.

Another character witness was Assistant District Attorney Robert S. Johnstone, who has been assigned to the Thaw case recently. He informed the Court that he was a teetotaler but had been about a great deal with McCormick and could qualify as an expert on intoxication. He did not know how much the defendant was in the habit of drinking, but he did know that "Bob" was one of the salt of the earth and most steady in temper.

Stanley Richter, in charge of the habeas corpus department of the District Attorney's office, said he had seen McCormick drink at the staff dinners given annually by the employes of the office, but he never knew him to be the worse for liquor.

Not That Kind of Staff.

"Weren't they called 'staff' dinners because the guests left the place on crutches?" aksed Town.

"Not at all," answered the witness. "They were given in honor of our chief, the District Attorney."

The testimony of Clifford Boess, clerk of Part 1, was largely confined to telling how much whisky McCormick could drink and still keep his feet. He said he had known him many years, and, though he had accompanied him home many nights, had never seen him under the influence of liquor.

"How many drinks did you use to have?" inquired Mr. Town. "Oh, that varied," responded the witness. "Sometimes we had as high as eight or nine."

"And he was always cheerful and pleasant?" "He certainly was."

"How many times did you take him home?" "I never took him home; he went."

Town wanted to know if eight Scotch highballs was not a good deal of liquor for one man to consume.

Knows a 2-Quart Man.

"That depends on the man," the witness answered. "Why, I know a gentleman who drinks two quarts of Scotch whisky every day of his life and he is brighter and more agreeable after the performance than before."

"You needn't tell his name," instructed Justice Blanchard.

"Do you know anyone else like him?" asked the attorney. "No," said the witness. "He stands in a class by himself."

What About England?

How Is She Meeting the Test?

THE cables have necessarily not been equal to the telling. To find out, the Post-Dispatch sent a trained investigator to England. This man spend several weeks in getting information for America. He has returned and the Post-Dispatch will begin the publication of an illuminating and important articles tomorrow.

Some of the Subjects:

The shortage of war munitions and the reasons—the scarcity of labor—the great drink problem—the increased cost of living—what the war is doing and will do for woman—the prospects for conscription—the preparations for using gas as a weapon against the Germans—running down the enemy's spies, etc., etc.

DERNBURG SAILS, TREATED BADLY ONCE, HE SAYS

Kaiser's Spokesman Regrets Unfortunate Occurrence in Connection With Lusitania.

NEW YORK, June 12.—"My feelings toward the American people are unchanged. I have been treated nicely except on one unfortunate occasion, to which I do not wish to refer. I hope the struggle in Europe will soon end honorably to all."

This was the farewell of Dr. Bernhard Dernburg to the people whose opinion he came here to influence in behalf of Kaiser Wilhelm and his policies. Dr. Dernburg sailed for Bergen, Norway, this afternoon aboard the Norwegian-American liner Bergensfjord.

When pressed to explain what unfortunate incident he meant Dr. Dernburg replied: "I refer to the incident the night the Lusitania sank. That I resent."

It was on the night when the news of the Lusitania disaster came that Dr. Dernburg made a speech in Cleveland attempting to justify the sinking of a ship bearing noncombatants. His remarks aroused such a storm of indignation that he received orders from somewhere that resulted in his speechmaking being brought to an abrupt halt.

Dernburg Carried Letter From U. S. Certifying His Identity.

WASHINGTON, June 12.—Dr. Bernhard Dernburg, who sailed today from New York for Bergen, Sweden, en route to Germany, carried with him a letter from the State Department certifying his identify. Assurances from the allied Governments at war with Germany that he would not be molested had been given, but it was thought best to provide him with papers declaring his identity in order that there might be no mistake, and the State Department complied with the request of German officials here.

BUTTON DAY FOR BABIES RAISES $2800 FOR HOME

Women and girls to the number of 400, collecting funds in office buildings and on street corners yesterday for the Mothers' and Babies' Home, 3047 North Taylor avenue, raised about $2800. Each contributor received a button bearing a baby's picture and the words, "Help the Babies!"

Mrs. T. R. Ayars, president of the Christian Woman's National Benevolent Association, was in charge of the collections. The largest collections were made by Mrs. E. M. Barnett and her assistants at the Pierce Building, $60.62, and the second largest was that of Mrs. Harry Ladd and assistants at the Mercantile Library, $56.22. Miss Edna Kiel, in the city hall corridor, got $9.70.

Collections will be made tomorrow at some establishments which were not open yesterday, and nearly 100 boxes, sent out to factories and other places are still to come in. Last year's total receipts were $3800.

REFORM BODIES TO BE ASKED TO CARE FOR CONVICTED WOMEN

Judge Hogan of the Municipal Police Court, said yesterday that he would send letters tomorrow to J. Lionberger Davis, president of the Committee of One Hundred, and to Mrs. John W. Day, president of the Neighborhood Association, asking whether members of those organizations would consent to have paroled to them personally women of the former segregated district who are convicted in court. He will also ask whether the members will undertake to find work at a living wage for women placed in their charge.

The Committee of One Hundred will be requested, Judge Hogan continued, to supply him with data concerning the women, if any, which that body has been able to reform, in accordance with promises made by the committee, the Judge said, when at the committee's request the Lucas avenue district was closed several months ago.

Miss Mary E. Bulkley of the Neighborhood Association, when told of the proposed inquiry said it would be impossible to find positions for the women, because most of them are mental deficients and would require treatment in some institution before they could reach the normal standard demanded by employers. Mrs. Day declined to discuss the matter. Davis is out of the city.

NUMBER RECEIVING POISONED QUININE INCREASED TO 25

Three New Names in Spencer (Ind.) Mystery Are Reported to the Prosecutor.

SPENCER, Ind., June 12.—Deputy Prosecutor Duncan learned today of three more persons who had received bottles of poisoned quinine, bringing the number of persons known to have received poison in this way to 25. These three additional persons are Jacob Bosspoen of Clay City, who received a bottle early in the spring, and George B. Scott and William Spies of Freedom, who each received a bottle about six weeks ago.

Another development of the day was the discovery that the register kept by the late F. E. Drescher, as Coroner, has apparently disappeared. This followed an inquiry from the postal inspectors for a record from the register. Prosecutor Duncan could not find the register at Drescher's house and it was not in the safe of the County Clerk, where the county and township health records are kept.

Expects Postal Report Tomorrow.

The prosecutor received a telephone message late this afternoon from Indianapolis, informing him that he would receive a report by Monday bearing upon some features of the work done by the postoffice inspectors.

The testimony taken by the present Coroner which led to the verdict that Drescher's death was probably caused by poison self-administered, was filed today. This shows that three physicians testified that one of the marked evidences of strychnine poisoning is early and excessive rigor mortis and that this was most pronounced in Drescher's case.

The prosecutor believes one or possibly two arrests will follow the deposition of Mrs. M. E. Strauss of Freedom taken by one of the prosecutor's clerks. Mrs. Strauss stated that her husband died last fall and that the late F. E. Drescher, then Coroner and undertaker, conducted the funeral. Shortly after Jan. 1, she said, she met Drescher in Spencer. He asked if the insurance was all right and if she were living alone. She said she was. About one week later she received a sample package of quinine.

Took a Dose From the Bottle.

Early in the spring, she said, she took a dose from the bottle, about enough to cover the point of a carving knife. She said she became ill within 10 minutes and shortly afterward became unconscious. Her condition was discovered by neighbors, who took care of her. She had been ill ever since with her muscles slowly stiffening.

The bottle she had received with what contents still remained in it, was then sent to the State Board of Health for examination. The board replied that the contents consisted of a large quantity of strychnine.

An examination by a Post-Dispatch reporter of the official reports of Dr. C. F. Pectol, Health Commissioner of the township, and Dr. George Cox, Health Commissioner of the County, shows that Drescher as undertaker officiated in 48 funerals since June 20, 1913. In the year preceeding he conducted 10, and nine during the year before that. In addition to the 48 known funerals there are six records left blank in the record of Dr. Pectol. He told the reporter that these represented funerals in which the undertaker failed to file a report and said that he recalled that some of them had been conducted by Drescher.

How His Business Increased.

The reports show that his business was exceedingly slack between September, 1913, and February, 1914, there being but four funerals in the five months. Then business became brisk, according to the reports, and among the cases during the next year were seven of the nine deaths now under investigation.

In five of the cases Drescher acted as Coroner as well as undertaker. His verdicts were generally organic heart failure, mitral insufficiency or cerebral hemorrhage, and were rendered without an autopsy.

WARRANT ISSUED FOR EXPRESS DRIVER; $5000 IS MISSING

MACON, Mo., June 12.—A warrant for the arrest of George Cundiff, 18 years old, driver for an express company, was issued today in connection with the loss of an express package containing $5000 in currency. Search is being made for Cundiff.

The money, part of a shipment of cash and currency, was consigned to the Ruby Trust Co. from its St. Louis agent. The silver was delivered to the bank, but the currency and shipping bill was not received. The following morning, it is alleged, Cundiff did not report for work.

POLICE SALARIES ASSIGNED TO HELP ELECT CHAMBERLIN

East St. Louis Patrolmen Protest When Amounts Are Withheld.

Gifts by East St. Louis policemen of parts of their future salaries, in amounts of $10 to $25, to aid in the campaign of John M. Chamberlin for re-election as Mayor last April, became a matter of record yesterday, when the policemen drew the pay due them for three months Chamberlin was defeated. Several of the men said they made the "gifts" for fear they would lose their jobs if they refused.

City employees were paid yesterday for the months of March, April and May. Some of the policemen who appeared at the Comptroller's window learned that part of their salaries for March and April had been assigned, principally to Rudolph Huschle, a coal and ice dealer and former Alderman, and Charles Anstedt, a saloonkeeper. Huschle and Anstedt were Chamberlin supporters.

Patrolman Robinson who found part of his March pay had been assigned denied that he had signed it over. Sergt. Healy and ten patrolmen said they signed pieces of paper without knowing what they were signing.

Sergt. Healy and Patrolmen Fred Mertz, C. D. Grogan, Thomas Robinson, Fred Otto, J. J. McGovern, J. T. Tiernan, William Walsh, James Walsh and William Moore, said they were called into the office of Fred Moore, secretary to the Chief, the Sunday morning before the election on April 6, as they went off night duty, and asked by Huschle to contribute to the campaign fund.

Agreed to Contribute $10.

Robinson said Huschle asked him to put down his name for $15. Robinson said he demurred, but agreed to contribute $10. He said he told Huschle to write his name down, as he, Robinson, had left his spectacles at home.

Robinson is 70 years old and has been in the service 27 years. He told Chief of Police Payne and a Post-Dispatch reporter that he did not want to contribute anything as he needed the money. A policeman's salary is $80 a month.

Patrolman Mertz said Huschle asked him for $15 or $20. Mertz said he told Huschle his wife was sick, and he could not spare that much. Then Huschle "let him down easy" with a donation of $10, he said. Mertz and the other policemen said they signed a slip of paper without reading it. They expected the sums they agreed to give would be subtracted from their March salaries, they said.

Says He Was Asked for $20.

Moynihan said he was called into Moore's office the morning before the election and asked to contribute $20. He agreed and signed a slip of paper without reading it, he said.

All of the men except Moynihan and Moore are married, and most of them support families. They all said they needed the money and would not have agreed to contribute had they not believed they would be discharged for failure to do so.

Sergt. Healy said Huschle told him that on account of his position he would have to give more than the patrolmen. He was asked for $25, he said. Healy said he told Huschle he could not spare that much at one time as he had to meet his household expenses, and Huschle agreed to let him pay it in two installments—$12.50 in each March and April, he said.

McGovern signed for $15, he said; Otto, $10; Tiernan, $10; William Walsh, $15; James Walsh, $10, and Moore, $15, they said. They said that Huschle was the only man in the office at the time except themselves.

Ransom Payne, then a detective, now chief of the department, resigned from the force three weeks before the election because he was asked to contribute to Chamberlin's campaign fund. He was given to believe that he would be discharged if he refused, he said.

Comptroller James Kelly told a Post-Dispatch reporter last night that he would refuse to honor any assignm that there was any dispute about. P sons holding assignments have b notified to appear tomorrow with employe making the assignment, to collect. If the policemen protest because of the circumstances under whi they signed, the assignments will not be honored until the dispute is settled.

Kelly said he presumed the "slips of paper" signed by the men were assignments.

At Huschle's residence last night it was said he was in Chicago. Chamberlin declared he knew nothing about the contributions further than that all of them were made voluntarily.

Chamberlin made a campaign argument two years ago of the fact that other Mayors had "shaken down" the Fire and Police Departments, and promised that he would not allow it during his administration.

Mayor Fred Mollman saw several of the policemen last night and personally advised them to protest against their wages being assigned. He said he was shocked to learn of such a condition, and promised the men that he would aid them in every way possible to collect their salaries in full for March

AUSTRIA ISSUES REPLY TO ITALY ON THE CAUSES LEADING UP TO WAR

RED BOOK DECLARES ROME HAD NO REAL DESIRE FOR PEACE

Virtually All of Territorial Demands Were Agreed to, but Italy's Duplicity Was Shown When She Insisted That Cession Take Place Immediately, Dual Monarchy Asserts.

Special Cable to the Post-Dispatch.
Copyright, 1915, by the International News Service.

THE HAGUE, June 12.—The Austrian Red Book, in reply to Italy's Green Book, which gave the causes leading up to the declaration of war by the Government of King Victor, has been translated, and was made public today. It is as follows:

"When Servia's many years of intrigues became known to all he world in the most cruel manner, through the Sarajevo murler, and Austria-Hungary decided to demand solid guarantees of Serbia against a continuation of the mischief on the monarchy, this was recognized as an action fully justified.

"No European Power might be expected to suffer from a small neighboring state the vicious provocations, the deliberate encouragement of secession of frontier districts and unscrupulous complicity in criminal plots and conspiracies against her security and integrity without using the most energetic means for prevention. No more light objections could be made against he form of Austria's complaint. It was difference in the mutual relations of he dual monarchy and an independent ate.

"Despite the statement that the case as one of local conflict, Austria did ot attack Servia's sovereignty and tertorial integrity or use the welcome retext to execute the long-desired plan f offensive war.

"The alliances and ententes proved beorehand that Russia, through unjustied intervention in the controversy ervia, saw the heaviest consequences etween the dual monarchy and hich would provoke a general conict, for no doubt was possible that ervia, would keep her promised word, d assist her many years ally with all r power against Russian attack. hereby France also would be drawn in fter decades of waiting for opportunity to execute her plans of revenge, and it might also be expected that England, though recently denying the existence of binding agreements with the two other entente Powers, would take part in the war against her envied and feared rival, the rapidly rising German empire.

"Finally, also, it might be expected that Turkey, though feeling the after effects of the recent Balkan war and recognizing that Russian victory must mean the end of her independence, would take side with the central Powers.

Article 3 of Treaty Cited.

"What was Italy's position toward this threatening European war on the central powers, whom she had to thank for three decades of security, peace, undisturbed development of economic power and gain of two extensive trans-Mediterranean provinces almost without an effort. One might expect she would assist her two allies in the war they had not provoked against two or more powers, Article 3 of the Triple Alliance saying: 'If one or two of the allied powers, without direct provocation be attacked by two or more powers non-signatory to this treaty and becomes involved in war, this must be considered a casus foederis to all parties to the treaty.'

"It was evident that Austria's intervention which must follow after years of unexampled love, peace and patience, was in no wise provocative of the attack that came from Russia deciding to use Servia as a serving board against the Dual Monarchy and execute her extensive plans. Nevertheless, indications were that Italy did not intend to keep her promise in word or in spirit, but enter the war on the allies' side. Though absolute fulfillment of her duties was not to be expected from Italy, Austria and Germany might at least suppose that Italy would keep benevolent neutrality and not assist the allies.

"The enormous war evolutions and events justified at first this supposition. Nothing at the war's beginning gave reason to suspect the atrocious treachery and breach of faith that Italy was later to commit. According to the Italian Premier, after utterances by the Marquis San Giuliano, in August it was decided that Italy would remain neutfal. The reasons given were that the Dual Monarchy's action against Servia constituted an aggressive act against Russia.

"Italy particularly complained that Austria had omitted to consult Italy in accordance with article 7 of the alliance. Austria accepted Italian neutrality without protest, though maintaining that article 7 was not applicable.

Change in Policy Apparent.

"The change in Italy's policy became clear when the Ministry of Foreign Affairs, after Giuliano's death, passed into Sonnino's hands. Beginning with November, events in Italy showed the dominant idea, without considering treaty obligations or moral scruples. Italy was sure of her opportunity when both allies were engaged in a gigantic struggle with mighty adversaries, to force Austria to cede her southern districts populated by Italians, and if necessary compel her to do so.

"The first step in this direction was taken by the Roman Cabinet when on Dec. 11, openly referring to national aspirations, it instructed Italy's Ambassador to state our military operations in Servia, according to article 7 of the triple alliance, entitled her to demand compensations for military operations in foreign territory.

"It is evident that compensations only could be looked for where the advantages lie, which must be equalized, that is, in the Balkan Peninsula. Nobody, when the alliance was formed, thought of the possibility to consider other districts. Moreover, on Feb. 9, Austria made a counter demand, because Italy occupied the Aegean Islands and Valona.

"Italy declared that after long and fruitless negotiations at the end of February she would consider reopening our operation against Servia without any agreement and compensation. The breach of the alliance treaty was leading to the most serious consequences. Such demeanor was the only possible basis for the demand of the cession of Austro-Hungarian territories.

The situation was now clear. Austria now found difficulty to familiarize herself with the idea of surrender without a fight the districts which for centuries had been under the Hapsburg sceptre, and forming a natural wall of protection, while their sons had given many proofs of devotion and loyalty.

"The extraordinary situation demanded an extraordinary solution. Baron Burian could therefore march with his Monarch's consent and both governments' approval to inform the Italian Minister that Austria-Hungary would accept the principle of cession of part of the territory as a basis of negotiations. But before they began the Roman Cabinet demanded the cession to come into force immediately. The demand which was made in itself shed grave light up the insincerity of Italy's intention to reach a solution.

Demands Termed Monstrous

"Aside from the political difficulties, Austria might justly not be expected to cede districts of greatest strategic importance before the conclusion of peace, when Italy's counter obligation of neutrality would be fulfilled. There truly was no reason for such extraordinary faith in Italian loyalty.

"Austria showed the impossibility to accept these conditions, but was ready to give the strongest guarantees that the ceded district would be turned over immediately after the conclusion of peace. Interruption of the negotiations would have followed had the parties not agreed temporarily to leave this question open. The progress of the discussion of the matter itself, the outlines of the district to be ceded and other concessions Austria made in her suggestions which on March 25 were handed to the Italian Ambassador at Vienna. These in reality offered the cession of almost the entire Italian speaking part of South Tyrol, while Italy should guarantee absolute benevolent neutrality and give Austria full freedom in the Balkans in the duration of the war.

"The Italian Cabinet made objections to the general nature, was apparently not interested in the progress of the negotiations, and only when urgently requested brought forward counter propositions on April 10 in Vienna. These were so exorbitant as to give the impression that the Salandra Cabinet had no earnest desire for peaceful arrangements with Austria. Italy's demands were really monstrous, including the cession of the entire Italian speaking Tyrol, the purely German district of Bosen, the lower as well as the Slav upper Isonzo Valley, the Goerz-Gaost Districts to the Nabresina strip, Carinthia, the thoroughly Slav islands of Lissa, Lessina and others, Trieste and district to be made an independent state, recognition of Italian sovereignty in Valona, disintressment of Albania and the immediate carrying into effect of the cession of the territories.

Inclined to Make Concessions.

"The structure of this program proves the ideas underlying it. It was not national motive, but strategical viewpoints of even aggressive character that decide [illegible] outline of the territories to [illegible]d. The fact alone that Italy [illegible] series of demands, vitally affecting the dual monarchy's most vital interest, gives reason to suppose that Rome secretly determined in any case to break with the central Powers, whether the solution be peaceable or not, and join the entente.

"Austria at all points was inclined to make concessions, and virtually conceded, to reach a compromise, many points intrinsically opposed to the dual monarchy's vital interests. No compromise was possible, the more so as the Roman Cabinet characteristically upheld particularly these demands. While negotiations continued with the greatest readiness for concession on Austria's part, Salandra, without even replying to our submitted proposition on May 4, declared in Vienna that he considered the alliance treaty broken by us, therefore Italy was entitled to withdraw all her propositions and again be in possession of full freedom of action.

"Austria did not consider it proper to act at this surprising step immediately, but continued her efforts to reach a friendly understanding with Italy, going as far as possible when considering the dual monarchy's most vital interests. The last offer, which was submitted in writing to the Italian Government by the Imperial Ambassador, as well as by Von Buelow, included the following points: The cession of the Italian part of Southern Tyrol; the cession of the district west of Isonzo, inhabited by Italians; founding a university in Trieste and making the city an imperial free city; revision of the statutes giving it autonomy and guaranteeing the city's Italian character and maintenance, and eventually the enlargement of the free port of the district; the readiness to recognize Italy's absolute sovereignty in Valona and the surrounding district, and the political disinteressment of Austro-Hungary in Albania.

Final Note on May 4.

"When the proceedings of the Italian Parliament excited the populace, it clearly proved Italy's firm decision to entirely break off from her allies of so many years by treacherously attacking them in the back.

"The Austria-Hungarian Government on May 21 considered the moment had come to reply to the Italian Government's latest note of May 4, prove the absolute emptiness of the Italian pretexts, and decline the responsibility for all consequences resulting from Italy's breach of the alliance.

"A few days later the Italian Ambassador at Vienna handed the Imperial Government a declaration of war, whose lack of foundation sounds as a confession of weakness to its own cause.

Documents Are Included.

Documents and letters in support of Austria's position are included in the Red Book. They follow:

"Article four of the triple alliance treaty reads verbatim: 'If a great power not signatory to this treaty should threaten the political security of one of the high contracting parties and the latter is thereby obliged to declare war, the other two signatories bind themselves to observe benevolent neutrality towards his ally, each reserving the right to enter the war when he considers it desirable in order to make common cause with his ally.' Article seven reads: 'Austria-Hungary and Italy having in view merely to preserve as far as possible the territorial status quo in the near East bind themselves to use their influence to prevent any territorial change prejudicial to one or the other signatories. For this purpose they will mutually give all information tending to enlighten their own intentions and those of each of the Powers.

" 'Should, however, the case ocur that in the course of events the maintenance of the status quo in the Balkans or Ottoman coasts, the islands in the Adriatic or the Aegaen, be impossible, and, through the action of a third power or otherwise, Austria or Italy be obliged themselves to alter the status quo by temporary or permanent occupation, this must take place only after previous arrangement between both Powers, based on the principle of mutual compensation for all advantages, territorial or otherwise, accruing to each beyond the present status quo and satisfying the interests and just demands of both parties.' "

"I have received your Majesty's telegram. I need not assure your Majesty that Italy, which has made every possible effort to maintain peace and which will do everything within its power to assist the earliest possible re-establishment of peace, will preserve cordial, friendly feeling toward her ally in accordance with the triple alliance and with sincere feelings that great interests are to be safeguarded.

Vittorio Emanuele.

Count Berchtold to Herr von Merey:

"Vienna, Aug. 4, 1914.

"Analogous with Marquis San Giuliano's statements to your Excellency, the Italian Ambassador by order today informed me that Italy regarding Albania, would remain loyal to her agreements with Austria-Hungary and decisions of the London conference. Italy will in no manner take advantage of the fact that Austria-Hungary is new required elsewhere. Italy also on every point, no matter what may happen later, will preserve this position. The Italian Minister Durazzo has received the order to issue very stern warnings in this respect to the consuls under him.

"I beg your Excellency to so inform Marquis San Giuliano. I note this action with special satisfaction, however, convinced that Italy will respect our agreement as we, on our part, did during the Libyan campaign."

Telegram to Von Macchio.

"Vienna, Aug. 25, 1914

"I authorize your Excellency, simultaneously with your German colleague, to inform the Roman cabinet we accept the Italian interpretation regarding 'expression Dans les regions des Balcons.'

"We accept article seven without reservation not only during the present crisis, but for the entire duration of the alliance treaty.

"This statement means we are prepared to enter pourparlers with Italy regarding the question of compensation in case of temporary seizure of any district in the Balkans."

Statement from the Imperial Royal Government to the Royal Italian Government through the Imperial Royal Foreign Minister to the Royal Italian Ambassador:

"Vienna, May 21, 1915.—The Austro-Hungarian Minister of Foreign Affairs has the honor to receive a statement concerning the abnegation of the Triple Alliance, which the Italian Ambassador made to him on behalf of the Royal Italian Government, May 4, and with painful surprise the Imperial Royal Government has received the announcement of the Italian Government's decision abruptly to terminate a treaty founded on our mutually most important interests which for so many years have given our states security and peace, and has rendered Italy noteworthy services.

"The surprise is the more justified as the facts on which the Royal Government bases its decision go back over the nine months, and as the Royal Government has since then repeatedly expressed its wish to maintain the treaty relations between our countries and even strengthen them; a wish which has always met favorable and cordial response in Austria-Hungary.

"The reasons compelling the Imperial Royal Government to send its ultimatum to Servia in July last are too well known to repeat here.

"Austria-Hungary's aim was solely to protect the monarchy from Servia's revolutionary machinations and prevent a continuation of an agitation aiming at the dismemberment of Austria-Hungary and resulting in the serious attempts ending with the horrible deed at Serajewo. It could in no wise affect Italy's interests. The Imperial Royal Government never supposed that Italy's interests might be associated with the criminal activities directed against Austria-Hungary's safety and territorial integrity, but which unfortunately was connived at and encouraged by the Belgrade Government.

"The Italian Government, besides, had been informed and knew that Austria-Hungary has no intentions of conquest of new territory. It was expressly stated to Rome that Austria-Hungary, if the war remained local, had no intention to assail Servia's territorial integrity or sovereignty.

"When, as the result of Russia's intervention, a mere local conflict between Austria and Servia against our wishes became European and Austria-Hungary and Germany found themselves attacked by several great Powers, the Royal Government announced Italy's neutrality, with, however, not the slightest indication that this war, long-prepared-for by Russia, might be convenient to its existence.

Italy's Interests Not Threatened.

"It is sufficient to refer to the declarations made by Marquis San Gioullano and the telegram sent Aug. 2, 1914, by His Majesty the King of Italy to His Majesty the Emperor and King, to prove that the Royal Government then saw nothing in Austria-Hungary's actions contrary to the obligations of our alliance. Attacked by the Powers of the Triple Entente, Austria-Hungary and Germany must defend their territories, but this defensive war has nothing to do with a program opposed to a realization of Italy's most vital interests.

Who Men Mentioned in the Red Book Are

Harr von Merey, Austrian Ambassador to Italy.

Baron von Macchio, special Austrian Ambassador to Italy.

"These vital interests, or what we know of them, were in no manner threatened. If Italy, however, felt worried in this respect, she ought to have complained to Vienna and Berlin. Both undoubtedly were ready and inclined to safeguard these interests.

"The Royal Government then held the opinion that their allies, as matters were, had no right to revoke treaty obligations, but she made to us a statement justifying the belief that she considered Austria-Hungary's action 'an open breach of the word and spirit of the alliance treaty.'

"The cabinets at Vienna and Berlin loyally accepted Italy's view, though it regretted a difference which, according to our opinion, was not in accordance with the alliance's spirit. The expressing of opinions which then took place confirmed the full continuance of the Triple Alliance. Invoking this alliance, however, particularly article seven, the Royal Government made demands for certain compensions in case Austria-Hungary derived advantages, territorial or otherwise, in the Balkan Peninsula from the war.

"The Imperial Royal Government accepted this standpoint and declared itself ready to submit the question to discussion, simultaneously asserting the difficulty of deciding compensations as long as it was uncertain what advantage Austria-Hungary might derive from the war.

"The Royal Government shared this opinion, a fact evident as well from the late Marquis San Guiliano's statement Aug. 25, 1914, saying: 'It is not premature to speak of compensations, as from the Duke of Avara's remark after our retreat from Servia. Now is no season for compensations.'

"The Imperial Royal Government has always been ready to enter pourparlors for this purpose. The Imperial Royal Government, attributing the greatest importance to the maintenance of friendly relations with Italy, accepted negotiations when the Italian Government again brought forward certain demands concerning the cession of integral parts of the monarchy as compensations to Italy, though in our opinion article 7 never referred to territories forming part of the contracting powers, but merely to the Balkan peninsula.

Desired to Reach Agreement.

"During these pourparlors on this question the Imperial Royal Government has always been guided by a sincere wish to reach an agreement with Italy. When for ethical, political and military reasons, Rome made it impossiole to accede to all the demands of the Royal Government, still the Imperial Royal Government was ready to make sacrifices so important that they were only justified by the wish to continue the alliance which existed for many years, to the mutual advantage of both countries.

"The Royal Government points to the fact that Austrian concessions were only to become effective at an uncertain time, to wit, the end of the war, thus apparently indicating thereby they had lost all value. Though the Imperial Government emphasized the material impossibility of immediate surrender of ceded territories it still declared herself willing to offer all the necessary guarantees to prepare for the surrender within the shortest time.

"The Imperial Royal Government's apparent good will and spirit of conciliation is shown throughout the negotiations. It has no wish to justify the Italian Government's views that all hope of agreement is excluded. Such an agreement, however, is possible only when both sides are sincere and wish harmony.

"The Imperial Royal Government cannot accept the Italian Government's declaration that it wishes full freedom of action and of its intention to consider the treaty with Austria-Hungary null and void, as this declaration is plainly in contradiction of solemn obligations accepted byaItaly Dec. 5, 1912, stipulating the duration of the alliance to July 8, 1920, after one year's previous notice. No provision is made for the cancellation of the treaty before that time.

"Now when the Royal Italian Government arbitrarily cuts loose from all obligations, the Imperial Royal Government refuses to take the responsibility for all consequences arising from this."

THE CRIME OF THE AGE

Is the selling of Spectacles and Eyeglasses by incompetent doctors in Department, Jewelry and Drug Stores. None of these men are physicians. Ask them for their licenses to practice medicine in Missouri.

NOTHING IS MORE PRECIOUS THAN EYESIGHT

I AM a physician, oculist and optician and have practiced for many years in St. Louis; that I have been successful is attested by more than 50,000 unsolicited references. If your eyes are diseased I will cure for them, and should Glasses be needed, I will prescribe and make them correctly and the total cost for treatment and glasses will not exceed the price of a pair of glasses that may do irreparable injury to your eyes. SATISFACTION GUARANTEED. I am both the oculist and the optician.

$1.50 a pair BI-FOCAL LENSES $1.50 a pair

For far and near seeing—two pair of Glasses in one. The usual price is from $3.00 to $8.00 per pair.

Ready—the 1916 Hudson

Yacht-Line Body—Ever-Lustre Finish—$200 Less

This new-type Hudson has won a remarkable following. It has brought to all men new ideas of a class car, changing the entire vogue. It has trebled our output, forced immense factory additions, compelled 31 makers to follow our footsteps. Within 20 months, this lightweight Hudson has been adopted by 15,000 motorists.

Now comes another $200 reduction. Now comes the Yacht-Line Body, with new grace, new luxury, new roominess and comfort. Now comes the fulfillment of your dreams—a finish of lasting lustre. Today this favorite class car starts a brilliant new career.

Remember Its History

Two seasons ago this new-type Hudson came out at $1750. Its announcement startled Motordom. Its price was pronounced impossible in a high-grade Six. Its lightness—under 3000 pounds—was scoffed at as incompatible with strength.

But the car was a Hudson, and Hudson standards are high. Howard E. Coffin was its designer, and he stands foremost in his field. He and his whole corps had spent two years in testing and perfecting it. And men were waiting for a class car which would cut down operative cost.

So our first month's output was sold before anyone saw the car. When the car appeared men flocked by thousands to it. And for one whole year thereafter Hudson buyers waited weeks for cars.

Then a $200 Reduction

The next season the price—which seemed so impossible—was reduced to $1550, because of multiplied output. Thirty-one improvements were made in the car, including still lighter weight. Another year's work by our engineering corps showed in its refinement.

This model was soon 4000 cars oversold. We shipped 1000 cars by express. It became at once the largest-selling car in the world with a price above $1200.

That changed the whole trend in motor car designing. It became evident to all that the day of overtax was ended. Men would not stand for excess in weight, price, size or operative cost. All cars were built lighter, most prices were reduced. And in 31 factories this new-type Hudson became the pattern car.

Now Come Graceful Yacht Lines

Now our designers have spent another year on this car. There was no way to improve the chassis. Fifteen thousand cars, covering millions of miles, had failed to develop one fault. Every part and detail had been refined to the limit.

So in this third model they gave their time to the body. They worked out this stately body, with its graceful, sweeping yacht lines.

Every broken line is eliminated. The top-line of the body and the doors is leather bound.

And they created this luxurious tonneau. The sides are higher than before, the rear seat is much wider, so it doesn't crowd three adults. The car seats seven, with all the room that anybody wants. And the extra tonneau seats disappear when not wanted, doubling the tonneau room.

You have never seen a body so impressive and graceful as this Yacht-Line Hudson body.

Now Comes the Ever-Lustre Finish

And now comes for the first time what you have dreamed of—a lustrous finish which stays new. It is the greatest innovation of the year.

In our new factory addition we have built mammoth ovens, with capacity for hundreds of bodies. Now our body finish is baked on in many separate coats. Each coat of finish is now applied under pressure which fixes it as never before. After each coat the body goes to an oven where it is baked for hours, then rubbed. This is done with every coat—an exclusive Hudson process.

The result is a body that stays new. The finish is smooth and brilliant. It resists sun and rain, washing, rubbing, mud. Experienced motorists who have seen bodies grow old and dull will consider this Ever-Lustre finish the most welcome improvement in years.

We combine it with enameled leather upholstery—better than has ever appeared in a car at this price. And with deep, hair-filled cushions, which means enduring luxury as well. This year's new body features mean much added cost. But it means a revolution in finish, in comfort and appearance.

Now Comes the $1350 Prices

And now comes another big reduction. We have built additions which will double our capacity. We have worked out countless new ideas in efficiency.

We are building here now, under ideal conditions, more high-grade cars than were ever built in one shop. As a result, we are giving you now the greatest value ever known in a class car.

Last year we reduced this car $200. This year we reduce it $200 more. We are selling this model 23% below its startling initial price—$400 below it. Yet a hundred makers, when they saw the car, pronounced our first price impossible.

Why This New-Day Type

This Hudson was the pioneer of an entirely new type of car. The type was conceived four years ago by Howard E. Coffin, our famous chief designer. It took him two years, aided by our whole force, to work out his conception.

The idea was refinement—the elimination of crudity—to result in a light, staunch car. The first step was a new-type motor, small bore, high speed. By reducing piston shocks that made it possible to lighten a hundred engine parts.

The next step was aluminum in place of cast iron. The next was special steels. In the next, a thousand parts were re-designed to combine lightness with strength.

The final result was a 7-passenger Six weighing under 3000 pounds. Old-time Sixes averaged 4500 pounds. That difference—the weight of 11 adults—cut tire and fuel cost in two.

The Vogue of Simplicity

Howard E. Coffin saw years ago that the trend was toward simplicity. Now everybody knows it. Excess and waste are unpopular. Good taste now calls for satisfaction without show.

Thus Hudson has become the class car. Its owners, in large part, are men who have paid two and three times its price. Hudson typifies the ideals of the times. This fact is conspicuous, wherever you look about.

All questions regarding this new-type car have been answered on the road. There are 15,000 Hudsons of this type in use. In two years men have driven them many million miles. And every owner vouches that the car is staunch, enduring, faultless, as well as economical.

Hudson now embodies all that any man can want. It is the fine car of the modern type. Only those men who still take pride in some form of excess will find any car more appealing.

Like No OtherCar

Bear in mind that Hudson is like no other car. There are many models of this type, but there are scores of ways—important ways—in which Hudson is unlike them. Let us point them out. This is a Howard E. Coffin creation, a finished product, unique and unapproached.

PEACE LEAGUE ORGANIZER ON WAY TO SEE HENRY FORD

Fred L. Bailey of Wichita, Kan., organizer of the International Peace and Equity League, which purposes the disarmament of nations, the creation of an international tribunal to settle international difficulties, with power to enforce its decrees, stopped in St. Louis yesterday on his way to Detroit to visit Henry Ford and try to enlist him in the cause. While here he conferred with Dr. William Preston Hill, the local member of the organization committee.

The league was organized last September and has spread over Kansas and into Missouri, Colorado, Oklahoma and Texas. The plan is to interest the people and take the matter of world peace out of the hands of the Governments.

After this country has been organized it is planned to organize all the countries of the world, then have an international meeting and formulate a definite plan for disarmament and the creation of an international tribunal.

Anybody may become a member by signing an application blank and making a voluntary contribution, from one cent up. There are no dues.

When Bailey left Kansas he intended to go to Washington and see Bryan. Now that Bryan is out of the Cabinet he does not know whether or not to go on to Washington.

Benton School Defeats Shaw, Winning Title and Post-Dispatch Trophy

Score Is 23 to 13 in Poorly Played Game—Both Pitchers Hit Hard and Give Many Passes, While Teammates Are Guilty of Errors.

The Benton School baseball team yesterday morning won the Public School Athletic Association championship and the Post-Dispatch trophy by defeating Shaw in the final clash, 23 to 13, at High School Campus, formerly St. Louis U. Park. About 3000 public school followers were on hand to cheer their favorites. The trophy award will be officially made after the Board of Education disposes of all protests.

Yesterday's clash was the windup of the season, which started the latter part of April with 48 teams. There were eight groups and in each of them, with the exception of Group E, five games were played for the division championship and then the semi-finals.

Benton tamed the Clark team in the clash, which put them into yesterday's final, while Shaw eliminated Garfield in a well-played contest. The Shaw tossers did not put up anything near the game they exhibited against Garfield earlier in the week.

George Uhl, the Benton pitcher, and Frank Daveggia for Shaw went into the game owning great records. Both had a clean slate for the campaign. Although he was hit hard and rather wild at times, Uhl was bracketed, because his mates had patience enough to wait out the Shaw flinger at the start of the contest.

Shaw Takes 3-Run Lead.

At the outset of the contest, things did not look any too roseate for Benton. Uhl was plainly nervous, while his mates were kicking the ball around, and before the round was over, Shaw had a lead of three runs.

This was short lived, though, as Daveggia after getting off to a good start in the opening session "blew" badly in the second. In this inning he passed five batters and did almost everything else to help his own downfall. Several times he became peeved as he did in the Garfield game and threw his hat to the ground, but it failed to work the same way it did in the semi-final clash.

There was a vast difference between the two teams after the contest was over. The Benton boys were all smiles as the victors should be. It was not that way with Shaw. The lads walked around with their heads hanging on their chests. They did not congratulate the victors, but instead started riding the umpire, who, they claimed, robbed them of the game.

Umpire Cahill had a hard time getting away from the crowd. Players of Shaw and spectators swarmed around him after he had called the last man out—on a close play at the plate. It looked for a while as though a free-for-all would be started, but the crowd quieted down and Cahill got out of the park safely.

Bottle Thrown at Umpire.

Shaw followers followed Cahill out of the park and one rude fan threw a bottle at him as he was about to step on a car. The missile missed him.

On the toss-up Shaw won and chose to bat first. Massot was the first batter to face Uhl and he drew four wide ones without a strike and walked. Horton also waited around for a pass. May went out, but English was safe on Lehman's boot, Massot scoring. Devoto forced English and Horton counted. Daveggia got a life on Weitzel's fumble and Devoto counted.

That ended the scoring until Benton's half of the second. Then the fireworks started for fair. Rather it should be said that Daveggia was the cause of his own downfall.

Williams, Walters and McClurg drew passes, filling the bases. The Colonna was safe on Daveggia's fumble, Williams scoring. Uhl also coaxed a pass and Walters crossed the plate. Lehman's bingle scored McClurg and Colonna. Lehman pilfered second, then he and Uhl counted on Weitzel's bingle. A wild pitch allowed Weitzel to cross the pan. That made seven runs for Benton and a lead which was never lost.

Benton Starts Again in Third.

Benton started again in the third. McClurg walked for a starter and counted all the way from first, when English threw to the stand on Uhl's bounder. Lehman walked. Weitzel's second hit counted Uhl and Lehman.

Shaw grabbed one in the fourth on Lodja's walk and steal and Schroeder's single. Benton, though, came right back with five. Williams singled and Walters walked. A fielder's choice on McClurg filled the bases. Colonna's out let Williams score. Uhl's swat put over Walters and McClurg. Lehman beat out an infield hit and on Daveggia's wide throw Uhl scored, when the batter made third. Powers walked and Devoto went to the hill for Shaw. The first thing he did was to uncork a balk and Lehman was waved home from third.

The losers made it interesting in the fifth, getting three counts on a pass, three hits, an error and a wild pitch. Benton was not to be left, though, and put over seven. With two gone, the fireworks started.

Double With Three On.

McClurg singled, scored on Colonna's double, while Uhl's hit brought in Colonna. Lehman and Powers walked. Then English booted Weitzel's bounder and Uhl crossed the plate. A single by Wightman put Lehman over. With the bases full, Williams pounded out a double, sending a trio over.

After this Shaw showed little interest. The score was 22 to 7 against them and they took matters as they came. They put one over in the seventh, four in the eighth and one in the ninth, when Uhl was letting up. Benton's last marker came in the eighth.

Shaw School Patrons to Protest Against Umpiring in Game

MEMBERS of the Shaw School Patrons' Association announced last night that they had prepared a protest signed by the members of the team, Principal L. P. Dougan of the Shaw School, and August May, Dr. W. A. Steinmann and other patrons of the institution, against the umpiring during the championship game, won by the Benton School team, yesterday.

The protest will be submitted to the Board of Education baseball officials, who are asked to pass on the points raised and to order the game replayed, if the grounds of protest seem well taken.

It is charged that both umpires were repeatedly at fault in calling balls, strikes and plays, and instances are cited in the protest.

Eczema On Feet So Bad Had To Be Bandaged

C. I. Swinhart, born and raised here, tells how he got complete relief.

"ST. LOUIS, MO.

"I had eczema on both feet so bad that I had to wear bandages. I could not go two days without scratching the skin off. The first bottle of D. D. D. I used I thought it was like all the rest of cures I had used. But by the time I had used 3 bottles almost all trace of the eczema had disappeared.

"I have used just four bottles and am positively cured. So you see four bottles has cured an extra chronic case of extra long standing.

"I was born and raised in St. Louis and am quite well known.

PLANK GETS 4-1 DECISION OVER "NO-HIT" ALLEN

Victory Puts Terriers Back in Fifth Place—Crowd of 5000 Sees Game.

MILLER HITS IN PINCH

His Single Scores Kirby With Run That Proves Decisive for Jones' Men.

Several weeks ago Frank Allen, the southpaw, for Rebel Oakes' Pittsfeds, twirled a no-hit game against the Terriers. Yesterday he tried to repeat, but failed miserably in his attempt. Fielder Jones' charges chased him from the hill in four innings and won, 4—1. The victory put the Terriers back in fifth place. President Rickart of the Feds announced that 5000 persons were present. There were about 200 in the bleachers and 75 in the pavilion. The rest were in the grandstand.

In the four sessions he worked, Allen was hit safely eight times, good for the four counts. Eddie Plank, the 40-year old southpaw, labored against Pittsburg. After the first session, the Gettysburg hero was at his best. The seven singles off him were scattered, no two coming in one round.

Mowrey's Timely Hit.

Rebel Oakes' outfit, which had not played a game since last Sunday, counted its only run in the first round. With one gone Berghammer walked and counted when Mowrey poled a double to the left field fence. After that they never even came close, so effective was Plank's pitching.

Jones' charges went into the lead in the third. Tobin walked and was sacrificed to second. Kirby's hit scored St. Louis Johnny, while Larue hiked to second on the throw-in. A single by Miller sent Kirby over.

In the next round, the two final counters of the game were scored. Hartley doubled and was sacrificed to third. Johnson's hit counted Hartley, while the shortstop went to second on Plank's out. Tobin's hit sent Johnson over. After that Barger went to the hill and the Terriers were stopped dead.

Two Games Today.

Outfielder Wickland, late of the Chicago club, is scheduled to join Oakes' men here today. Wickland has been purchased by Pittsburg to strengthen the outfield.

The Terriers and Pittsburg play a double bill today, the first game starting at 2 o'clock. Davenport and Groom will pitch for Jones and Hearn and Rogge for Oakes.

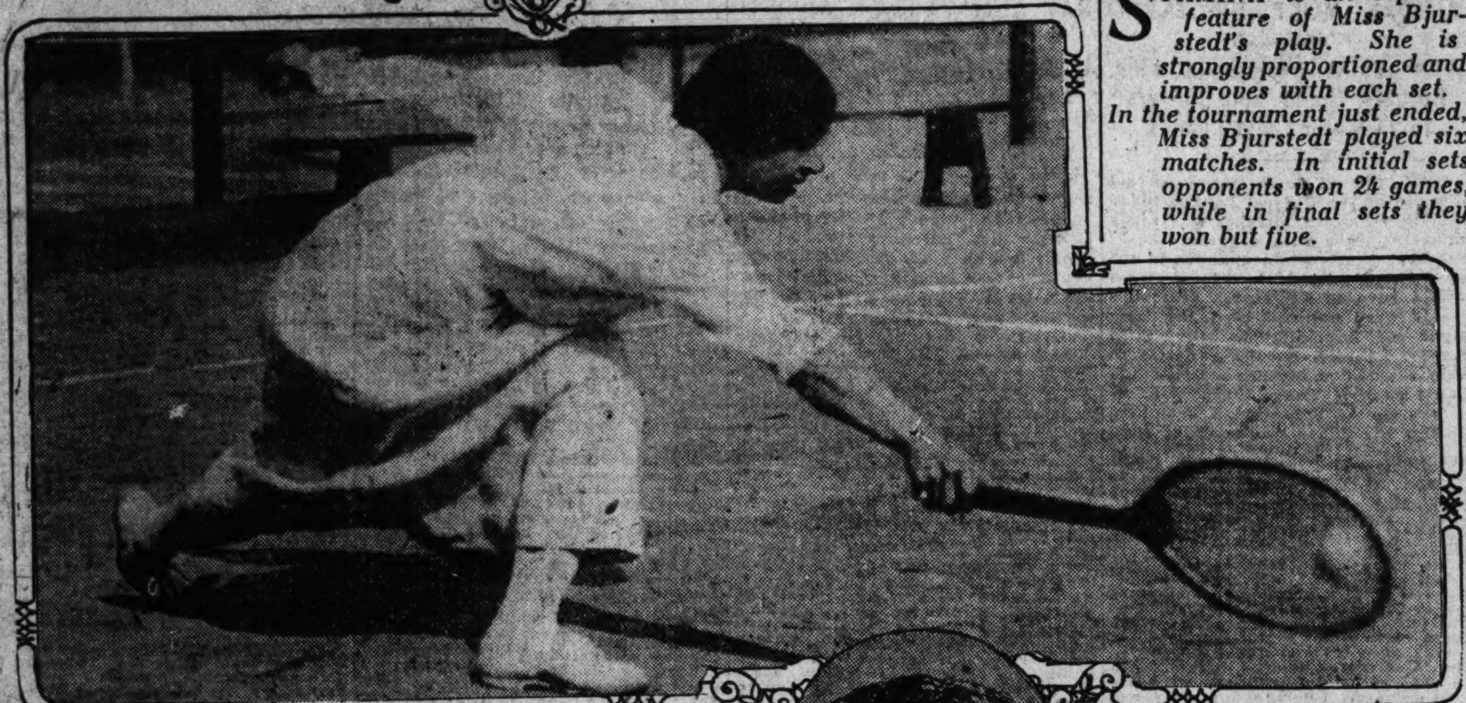
Norse Girl Who Won Her Second U. S. Championship, Yesterday



MISS MOLLA BJURSTEDT....

STAMINA is an especial feature of Miss Bjurstedt's play. She is strongly proportioned and improves with each set. In the tournament just ended, Miss Bjurstedt played six matches. In initial sets opponents won 24 games, while in final sets they won but five.

Miss Bjurstedt Wins National Tennis Title, Her Third in America

Norse Star Defeats Mrs. George Wightman of Boston Two in Three Sets in Philadelphia Finals of Women's National Championships.

PHILADELPHIA, June 12.

MISS MOLLA BJURSTEDT of Norway, won her third tennis title since landing in America a few months ago, by defeating Mrs. George Wightman of Boston, in the final round of the women's national championship here this afternoon. The score by sets was 4-6, 6-2, 6-0.

The wonderful endurance which the young Norse woman has shown throughout her play in the tourney came to her rescue today. Losing the first set, she made the pace hotter the further the match went and won the second set handily. In the last she had her opponent practically exhausted and beat here a love set.

The victory of Miss Bjurstedt marks the first time in the history of the championship that the title has gone to a foreign player. Her victory was generously applauded as she played a remarkable game. Her defeated opponent, who was Hazel Hotchkiss of Pasadena, Cal., befrore her marriage, held the national title three times, having won it in 1909, 1910 and 1911.

Cup Remains in U. S. A.

The championship was won last year by Miss Mary Browne of California, who did not come East to defend her title.

In the tournament Miss Bjurstedt represented the West Side Tennis Club of New York, therefore the Wissahickon cup, at least, does not leave the United States. After winning premier honors in singles, Miss Bjurstedt, paired with Irving C. Wright of Boston, assayed to win the national championship in doubles but went down to defeat before Mrs. Wightman and Harry C. Johnson, also of Boston, 6—0, 6—1.

Mrs. Wightman's usual court craft was very much in evidence in the first set, and time and again she forced the play to Miss Bjurstedt. That the set was exceptionally well contended, is proven by the points scored, 37 for Mrs. Wightman and 36 for Miss Bjurstedt. In the second and third sets Miss Bjurstedt played the side lines. That was nothing short of remarkable. Always she placed the ball an inch or two inside, usually finding Mrs. Wightman far away, with not a chance to make the "get." With the score four games to one against her in the second set, Mrs. Wightman made a gallant but despairing effort to capture the match. The seven-minute rest between the second and third sets did not revive Mrs. Wightman's failing in energy, for Miss Bjurstedt took the decider without the loss of a game. Summary championship round, sets: First set:

Mrs. Wightman	463	704	501	7—37—6

Second set:

Miss Bjurstedt	424	441	64—29—6
Mrs. Wightman	142	224	42—21—2

Third set:

Miss Bjurstedt	446	454	27—6
Mrs. Wightman	023	230	10—0

Scandinavian Woman Has Won Three Championships Since Coming to America

ALTHOUGH she has only been in this country a few months, Miss Molla Bjurstedt, winner of the United States women's tennis championship, yesterday, at Philadelphia, has won three titles. Recently she won the Metropolitan championship. A few weeks before she had captured national indoor honors. Yesterday she proved her laurels were honestly earned by defeating a three-time title holder.

A peculiar feature is shown by an analysis of her play, in the six matches she won. For example, the scores point out that she:

Was beaten 24 games in first sets, and only five games in last sets.

Was beaten twice out of six times, in opening sets.

Won only one opening set by a "love" score; but wound up three matches with love sets.

Required only 36 games to win the final set of each of her six matches, but took 28 games to win four opening sets.

All of which indicates Miss Bjurstedt is a strong finisher.

Swift Defeats Legg in Final of T-M Tourney

Former Missouri Champion Is 5 Up on Minneapolis Star in Memphis Meeting.

MEMPHIS, Tenn., June 12.—Alden B. Swift of the St. Joseph Mo., Country Club today won the championship of the Transmississippi Golf Association, defeating Harry G. Legg of the Minikahda Golf Club, Minneapolis, 5 up and 3 to play.

W. D. Mallory of Memphis won the championship consolation cup by defeating John D. Cady of Rock Island, Ill., who last year won the Transmississippi championship 1 up, in today's final match.

Swift won his victory over Legg, four times winner of the championship and five times medalist, in the afternoon round. At the end of the morning 18-hole play the match was square. Swift gained an advantage of two holes on the out journey of the afternoon, and after he had added two other holes to his card Legg conceded him the thirty-third hole, four strokes to five, with Swift's ball lying four feet from the cup, ending the match and the tournament.

Games Too Long, Players Plan to Inform Magnates

Two Hours a Day Too Much Work for a Mere Bank President's Salary, It Seems.

NEW YORK, June 12.—In an endeavor to speed up baseball games in the big leagues, President David L. Fultz of the Players' Fraternity today addressed a letter to the directors of the Fraternity asking the co-operation of all members to this end. The letter in part said:

"There has been a good deal of complaint this season regarding the length of time it is taking to play big league games, many of them consuming approximately two hours and some a great deal more. A number of players have expressed their desire to co-operate with the rest in an endeavor to lessen the playing time as much as possible.

"Opinion seems to be that by observing the following points the players could materially shorten the time consumed:

"First, by hurrying to and from positions; second, by avoiding unnecessary arguments with umpires; and third, by pitchers consuming as little time as possible in preparing for their delivery.

"The trouble could also be helped by a uniform rule requiring the umpire to throw in another ball when a foul goes any distance from the field of play, but this, of course, is not within our jurisdiction.

"This is a bad year financially for baseball; the fans are not as enthusiastic as they have been in years gone by; it is unquestionably up to the players to make the game as attractive to the public as possible, and we all know a long, drawn-out game, especially when the result is determined in the early innings, loses much of its attractiveness."

McKinley Wins From Central in Crucial Game, 7-6

Victory Carries With It I. L. Title, Won by South Siders for Third Time.

Before one of the best crowds that has attended an interscholastic baseball game this season, the McKinley High School team defeated the Central High School nine, 7—6, in 10 innings at High School Campus yesterday afternoon. By defeating Central, McKinley won the championship of the Interscholastic League for the third successive time.

The game was hard fought and its importance made it interesting from start to finish, with the result always in doubt. If Central had won another game would have been necessary as Central would have tied for the leadership of the league.

McKinley was the first to score in the third when they put over a run on a walk, an out and an error by Rehagen. In the fifth McKinley made it two, scoring on an infield single, a sacrifice and two singles.

Central's Defense Weak.

Central didn't score until the first of the sixth, when the red and black boys scored four runs and took the lead temporarily. The four runs were made on four hits—one a two-bagger—a walk, and an error by Turnbull. In McKinley's half of the sixth the South Side boys scored four runs, taking the lead again, 6—4. Rehagen again was at fault, when, after passing two batters, he let an easy pop fly fall through his hands and then allowed two singles. Result: Four runs.

In the eighth Central made one more on two singles and an error and in the ninth, with two out, two singles and an error tied the score. In the first half of the tenth Central made a desperate effort to score a run off Lefty Wallace, who relieved Menze on the hill for McKinley in the tenth, owing to an injured hand; but two hits and an error failed to produce the tally. In McKinley's half of the tenth Fries was hit by a pitched ball, Wallace fanned, but Conley got a life on Widdicomb's error. Regna then came through with a drive to center scoring Fries with the winning run and the championship.

TYPOS PLAY LERCH'S STARS

After a short "training" season, Manager Walter Borgstede of the Typos will take his charges out to Triple A in Forest Park this afternoon to play their first game of the season against Nick Lerch's Stars. The printers' team, which is a member of the National Printers' Baseball League, which holds its tournament in Philadelphia late in August, will play some of the strong amateur nines in and around St. Louis from today on until time to depart for the tourney.

CALDWELL'S HOMER, THIRD IN 3 GAMES, HELPS BEAT "HAM"

Yankee Twirler Clinches His Own Well-Pitched Effort by Hit Into Bleachers.

NEW YORK, June 12.—Ray Caldwell was largely responsible for the fact that the Browns lost their first game in New York by a score of 9 to 5. In the first place, he was exceedingly stingy with hits whe nthey helped, and not overly generous when they would have been of no better use than to make the oppositio nfeel good. Then again he turned loose a mighty swat with his bat that landed the ball in the right field stand for a homer, sending in two promenaders ahead of him.

It was Ray's third homer in three rays, and in four times at bat. His preceding two four-base wallops were made when he was sent in as a pinch-hitter.

The manner in which the Yanks played horse with the curves of Hamilton, Perryman and Wellman, who divided the hurling labors today, does not augur well for the three games to be played Monday and Tuesday. Two of them are to be played Monday in order to leave a clear field for a college game scheduled for Wednesday.

Today's game was rather interesting, despite the early stage in which the Browns were put out of it. The early runs made by the Yanks were largely contributed to by chance. In the opening inning, after the Browns had scored two, the Yanks came along with a trio. Peckinpaugh, with one down, got a pass. Maisel sent him to third with a single and took second on an unproductive throw to get Peck. Then Pipp sent a bounder to Leary who, instead of touching the bag, made a desperate and ill-judged attempt to get Peck at the plate, which failed, and all hands were safe.

The second run, Maisel's, came on what was meant to be a double steal. Pratt took a short throw from Severeid and, when he saw Maisel had made no attempt to score, made a dive for Pipp. He was not only too late to get him, but fell over him and then Maisel shot home. Then High flied out. Had Leary put out Pipp, it would have been the third out, but it was only the second and Hartzell came along with a single that sent Pipp home.

C. Walker came within a yard of winning a $1600 automobile for himself in the eight, with what was probably the longest hit of the day. In the deepest corner of left field an automobile agent has a great sign, on which he proclaims he will give a $1600 car to whoever hits the sign with a batted ball. Walker sent it straight toward the mark, but he only reached it on the first bound, and a short bound at that.

DOVER DOES FAST TIME IN DASH AT S. S. FIELD MEET

Missouri School of Mines Athlete Covers the 100 Yards in 10 1-5 Seconds.

WEST PRESBYTERIAN WINS

Four Point Margin Decides Annual Championship of St. Louis Sunday Schools.

Twenty athletes, ranging in age from 5 years to maturity, gained enough points at the second annual field meet of the local Sunday School Athletic Association at Francis Field, yesterday afternoon, to again give the highest athletic honors to the West Presbyterian Church.

It was no easy matter, however, for the West End athletes to duplicate their victory of 1914, as they tallied but four more points than their closest contenders, the athletes of the Lafayette Park Methodist Church.

The score was 46½ to 42½. These two squads were far ahead of the 20 other teams that contended. The Grace Presbyterian Church took third honors with 21 points. The remaining points were distributed as follows: Emmanuel Episcopal 17, Scruggs Memorial 16, Third Baptist 14, Cote Brilliante Presbyterian 8, St. Paul M. E. 8, Oak Hill Presbyterian 11½, First United Presbyterian 7, King's Highway Presbyterian 7, Webster Groves Baptist 12, Bethel Evangelical 7½, Cabanne M. E. 5, Bowman M. E. 4, Winnebago Presbyterian 4, Wagoner Place M. E. 1, Euclid Avenue Baptist 1, Lafayette Park Baptist 1.

The meet was divided into four classes according to the ages of the participants, the Junior A, Junior B, Intermediate and Senior. One class was also open to all contestants. Over two hundred athletes represented some 20 Sunday schools.

The cinder track was in excellent shape while a hot sun enabled the athletes to deliver their best efforts. Although no record marks were made, the performances were far better than those of last year. Albert Cox, representing the Bethel Evangelical Church, made a worthy leap of 21 feet 6 inches in the open running broad jump, while Fred Dover of the Grace Presbyterian Church negotiated the 100-yard dash in 10 1-5 seconds.

Individual and team trophies of cups, medals, ribbons and banners were presented to the winners after the meet.

Senior Events.

Royal II Wins Latonia Derby byFull Length

English Colt, Owned by Livingston, Lands Victory Over Tetan and Dortch.

CINCINNATI, June 12.—Royal II, an English-bred colt owned by Jefferson Livingston of Chicago and New York, won the thirty-second renewal of the Latonia Derby at the Latonia, Kentucky, racetrack today by a full length. Tetan, the pacemaker until the closing sixteenth, was second a length in front of Dortch, which was tiring rapidly toward the end.

The race was worth $10,125 to the winner and he paid $4.80 for a $2 ticket in the pari mutuel betting.

Royal II, bay son of Your Majesty-Lady Ethel, proved himself worthy of carrying off the premier honors that Latonia has to offer. Off to a perfect start, Jockey Ganz rated him along under a slight restraint until the first three quarters of a mile had been traversed. When straightened out on the back track Ganz let out a few raps, and Royal II responded immediately and gradually closed in on his field.

Ganz worked him into third position, passing the starting post, and at the mile and a quarter, Goose, on Tetan, noted that Royal II was on his horse's withers. Then came the real battle for supremacy. But the gameness of the English colt was not to be denied and the horses passed the final eighth pole nose and nose, with the stout hearted Dortch only a head behind. Little by little Royal II pushed forward and at the final sixteenth pole was in a commanding position. He won, hand-ridden, by a scant length from the tiring Tetan, who was the same distance ahead of Dortch.

The day was fair, the track fast and the crowd probably the largest that ever passed through the Latonia gates. Royal II was favorite in the betting.

CARDINALS SHOVE SHRUNKEN GIANTS INTO LAST PLACE

Lee Meadows Helps Hug's Men Win Third Victory in Four Games From McGraw.

NOW IN FIRST DIVISION

Spectacled Twirler Allows Only Seven Hits and Yields No Bases on Balls.

By W. J. O'Connor.

Lee Meadows pulled a McLean yesterday. That is to say, in a hyperbolic sense, Lee sneaked up behind John McGraw of New York and knocked him down—down into the bottomless depths of last place, deeper than the Reds, who are playing in the leagues made famous by Jules Verne.

The score was 8—3 ferninst the Giants, who hit the lonesome trail for Redland last night in eighth place and the seventh level of hadean disgust. The Cardinals, on the other hand, surreptitiously slipped into first division, sharing fourth place with the bounding bandits of Brooklyn, who infest these parts this day.

Yesterday's was the fifth victory for the Cardinals over the Giants this season. McGraw's minions have encompassed two wins in seven sorties with Hug's men, a record which must make McGraw feel like beating up a blind beggar.

Who Are the Giants, Anyhow?

It was a sad sight yesterday. McGraw commissioned Marquard to crossfire the Cards, figuring that the game was in when Huggins appointed Lee Meadows, a bespectacled individual who was knocked silly in four frames by the New Yorkers on Wednesday.

But Mr. Meadows adjusted his specs so as to acquire a focus that barely permitted him to see the Giants. Indeed, he was quite oblivious to their presence, yielding only seven hits and nary a walk. He fanned three, one in the pinch, and didn't ease up until he had the game securely locked in his hip pocket. This victory, incidentally, gives Meadows a record of five wins out of six accredited games, puts him at the top of the Cardinal curving staff and vindicates Hug's confidence in him, a first-year recruit from a Class D league, wearing glasses. Meadows wears the glasses, not the Class D league.

A Home Run Worth While.

However, Lee's playmates were good to him yesterday, Jack Miller, especially. Jack clipped a two-bagger with the bases filled and two out and sewed up the old game in the seventh. Prior to that Frank Snyder got a home run inside the park which is saying about as much for a home run as we can find words to express.

Snyder is the boy who opened an inning the other day with a double and rested on third after two subsequent and successive singles. That should give one a fair idea of Snyder's speed and indicate accurately how far he had to hit the ball to get a home run and score standing up. He hit it to the farthest outposts, down by the gate in center field. They didn't even make a play for him at the plate. Just conceded the run and the one that preceded it.

But enough for preliminaries. On with the story. For three innings, both hurlers released perfect reels of pitching, only nine men facing Meadows, while 10 toed the scraton against Marquard, who looked genuinely good.

In the fourth with one demise, Lobert doubled. Then Doyle slapped a hopper that caromed off Meadows' glove and went for a scratch single, Lobert thundering home from second with a tainted run.

Cards Finish Marquard.

Promptly the Cardinal gunners found their range. They poured lead into Marquard, and made him quit. Bescher opened the second portion of the fourth with a single. Miller coaxed a pass. Long hit to Brainard who had a double play if Miller hadn't blocked Doyle. As it was Miller's transgression escaped Hart's eye and only one runner was effaced, Bescher making third. Dolan's single scored Bescher and sent Long to second. Hyatt's single bounced off the right field wall and Long scored while Dolan made third. Hyatt made second. Betzel went out, Brainard to Merkle, Dolan scoring while Hyatt moved up. Then Snyder made his circuit swipe to the center field fence, scoring behind Hyatt. Meadows obligingly fanned.

The Giants came along in the sixth and picked up a pair. Murray appeared for Marquard and singled. Snodgrass flied to Dolan, but Doyle got a life on Miller's fumble. Doyle single to right, scoring Murray and putting Lobert on third. Burns' sacrifice fly to Long, let Lobert in but Robertson's best was a lift to Long.

Miller's Double Scores Three.

The Cards cinched it in the seventh. One gone, Meadows coaxed a walk from Schauer, who succeeded Marquard. Butler got an infield hit. Bescher's safe bunt filled the bases. Miller's double to left emptied them. Three runs.

Miller would have been out on a pop foul to Smith if Smith hadn't dropped it, for an error. Jack is getting an occasional break, richly deserved, these days. Bagot is happy, too, Jack. About 2500 fans were present yesterday. The score:

SUPERBAS HERE TODAY; BRITTON PROVIDES MUSIC

Brooklyn, the sensational entry in the National League marathon this season, will be today's attraction at Robison Field. This club, figured as a sure second-division member in the winter books, persists in tarrying in first division, and for that reason is the biggest upset, next to the Giants, who are last. Jack Coombs, a Mack discard, is due to work for the enemy. Sallee may officiate for Huggins, with Robinson as second choice.

President Britton will provide music for the fans, the band to begin its work at 2:30 p. m. The game starts at 3 o'clock.

DAUBERT TAKES HITTING LEAD IN NATIONAL LEAGUE

COBB LEADS THE WORLD

Georgia Peach Is Batting .416, Has Scored 56 Runs and Pilfered 31 Bases.

Jake Daubert, first sacker of the Superbas, last season batting champion in the National League, during the past week ousted his competitors for the batting lead in the Tener circuit, when he increased his mark to .374. He replaces Luderus. In the Federal, Joe Tinker has replaced Lee Magee. The Whales' manager's figure is .375.

There's no need of telling who is high in the American. The leader is still Ty Cobb, and he is 40 points ahead of his nearest competitor, Daly, of the White Sox. Cobb's mark is .416. What's more, Tyrus has counted the greatest number of runs, made the most hits, is high in total bases and has pilfered the highest number of bases. That about winds up matters, with Cobb leader in everything.

Although McGraw's Giants at present are in seventh place, just ahead of the Reds, they lead the National League in team batting, with .270. The Reds are second, with .262. Detroit and Brooklyn are high in the American and Federal.

American League Notes.

It's pretty tough on the Red Sox, when one player, Ty Cobb, steals one base less than the entire team under Carrigan's leadership. Cobb pilfered 31 and the Red Sox as a club 32.

Not a regular of the Browns, Yankees or Red Sox is hitting in the select circle. The Red Sox are represented by Mays, a pitcher, with .333. Connolly, the young outfielder with the Nationals, .306, is the only Griffman in the select circle.

Bert Shotton, with .284, is high for the Browns. Del Pratt, .268, and C. Walker and Leary, .261, are giving him the most assistance. Shotton's total of 17 steals also is high for the Browns.

Hank Severeid, obtained from Louisville as a slugger, has a swat notch that looks like a pitcher's. Hank is hitting .160 in 15 games, having made 8 hits in 50 attempts. One of these was a homer and won a game for Rickey's outfit.

National League Notes.

Ham Hyatt, with .327, is the only Card hitting in the select circle. Bob Bescher and Jack Miller both fell off during the past week. Miller's mark is .290 and Bescher's .271.

"Bruno" Betzel, who has been covering third for the Cards since Beck was injured, is clouting .267 for 15 games. Pretty good for a youngster, and a substitute at that.

Poor old Hans Wagner. He just cannot get to that .300 mark. The veteran's mark to date is .241. The old boy has scored 21 runs and pilfered nine bases.

Maybe it is true that Larry Doyle is not as good as he formerly was, but Larry is still able to hit .349 and top the Giants.

Federal League Notes.

Johnny Tobin and Babe Borton are the Terriers' hopes in the .300 class. St. Louis John has a .303 mark, while Borton owns one of .302. Tobin has swiped 11 of the [illegible] bases.

Benny Kauff's batting average suffered a [illegible] drop during the last seven days. During the week the figure for the Ty Cobb of the Federal League dropped to .333 and [illegible] Benny is in tenth place.

George Stovall, with the weakest batting team in the league and only one .300 hitter, has his club in first place. The Packers are swatting .243 as a team, while Easterly, the leading batter, has a .313 mark.

Lee Magee, boss of the Brookfeds, is running away from Kauff in base stealing. Magee has 19 to Kauff's 15.

Phillies Defeat Cubs and Again Lead the League

Mayer Pitches Great Game, Allowing Bresnahan's Men Only Two Safeties.

CHICAGO, June 12.—For the second time in the series, Philadelphia today deposed Chicago from the lead in the race, when they won the odd game in a one-sided batting bee and shut out the locals, 13 to 0.

Mayer pitched in fine form, allowing Chicago but two hits, which came in the second and ninth innings and were made by Saier and Fisher.

LEAR'S GOOD PITCHING HOLDS BROOKLYN SAFE

CINCINNATI, O., June 12.—Brooklyn's pitchers were easy today, and Cincinnati had no trouble winning 8 to 1. On the other hand, Lear had the Brooklyn batters at his mercy, especially with men on bases. Killifer's batting and fielding contributed largely to Cincinnati's victory. Score:

ONE BIG INNING GIVES BRAVES A VICTORY, 8—2

PITTSBURG, June 12.—Boston won the last game of the series today from Pittsburg, 8 to 2. The visitors scored all their runs in the seventh inning on eight hits and a hit batsman, coupled with three errors. Ragan was effective in all but the sixth inning, when three singles and a balk gave the locals their runs. Score:

Tiger Star Makes Two Hits, One Run and Steals Four Bases.

PHILADELPHIA, June 12.—Detroit and Philadelphia struggled for 13 innings today before the home team won the game, 7 to 6. The winning run was made on a muff by Crawford, Wyckoff's single and Vitt's fumble of Thompson's grounder.

Shawkey and Dubuc, who started the game, were both hit hard, the former being taken out after two innings and Dubuc being relieved during the fifth inning.

Their places were taken by Wyckoff and Steen, each of whom did excellent work.

The contest was featured by Cobb's stealing of four bases, Crawford's home run and the brilliant fielding of McInnis, Malone, Barry, Kavanaugh and Bush.

Cobb was presented with a hunting gun by local admirers.

FEDERAL LEAGUE READY FOR PEACE, PRESIDENT SAYS

Gilmore Is Willing to Listen to Terms Organized Baseball May Suggest.

MINORS MUST BE SAVED

With Third League in Line, Bushers Could Sell Players to 24 Major League Clubs.

CHICAGO, Ill., June 12.—President Gilmore of the Federal League today said that his organization was ready to make peace with organized baseball, but that certain changes in the proposition originally offered them would have to be made. Gilmore's words were not prompted by any signs of breaking in the third league, he said, but by a desire to help the minor leagues weather the bad year now before them.

"It's up to organized baseball to protect the minor leaguers," he said, "for without the minors the majors eventually are bound to be in a bad way. The Federal League stands ready to carry on peace negotiations with organized baseball, but the other fellows must make several changes in the propositin originally tendered us.

"It stands to reason that the minors would be greatly relieved, were they in a position to sell players to three major leagues instead of but two, as is now the case. Were there eight other major league clubs—making a total of 24 in the field—the minors would have little trouble in marketing the services of their best athletes, whereas now they are forced to slice salaries right and left and daily face the necessity of suspending operations.

"Should these minor league magnates be compelled to close up shop in midseason in cities boasting populations of 40,000 or 50,000, I seriously doubt if the game would be revived in those towns next season.

"I don't intend to create the impression that the present hard times in baseball are wholly due to the activities of the Federal League," declared Gilmore.

"Inclement weather, the war, an overabundance of publicity in connection with baseball litigation and the fact that the public has apparently soured on the whole matter may be cited as the real reasons why the minors are almost daily reported as planning booster meetings for the purpose of raising sufficient funds to continue their operations."

Gilmore, having studied the dope in various sections of the country since the start of this unprofitable campaign, is fearful lest several minor organizations will be forced to suspend before July 4, but declares the Federals have no intention of giving up the ghost.

HARRIS REGAINS TITLE

HARTFORD, Conn., June 12.—By defeating A. W. Merriam of New Britain in the finals of the annual New England tennis championship tournament here today, 6-3, 0-6, 6-4, 6-4, F. H. Harris of Boston regained the title, which he held in 1912. R. L. Murray of Palo Alto, Cal., winner of last year's tourney, did not come East to defend his title.

THIRTEEN AMATEUR GOLFERS SEEKING U. S. 'OPEN' TITLE

RAY AND VARDON ABSENT

England, However, Has Two and France One Representative in the Tournament.

NEW YORK, June 12.—One hundred and thirty-six entries have been received by Howard F. Whitney, secretary of the United States Golf Association for the twenty-first national open championship tournament, which will begin next Tuesday, June 15, on the links of the Baltusrol Golf Club, Short Hills, N. J.

Thirteen of these are amateurs, the most prominent being Francis Ouimet of Boston, the national champion and winner of the open title in 1913. Jerome D. Travers, Montclair, N. J., a four-time national title holder and Eben M. Byers, Pittsburg, the 1906 national champion. Walter J. Travis, the Garden City veteran, who regained the Metropolitan amateur title last week, is not entered.

The only entrants from foreign clubs are Douglass Grant, an amateur from the Richmond Golf Club, England, and two professionals, A. J. Sanderson, Boulogne, France, and C. L. Mothersele of Woodhall Spa, England. This trio, with the entry of Dan Kenny of Hamilton, Ont., attract an international interest in this year's competition.

Among the professional aspirants are the present holder of the title, Walter C. Hagen, Alec. Smith, twice open champion; Alexander Ross, and George Sargent, open champion respectively of 1907 and 1909.

The conditions governing the tourney will be the same as last year at the Midlothian Country Club, Blue Island, Ill. The players will be divided in two sections, the first half playing 36 holes on Tuesday and the remainder covering the same ground on Wednesday. Each day the lowest 32 will qualify for the 72-hole championship competition in which 64 survivors will take part on Tuesday and Friday.

The pairings for the qualifying rounds on Tuesday and Wednesday in the order of play follow:

June 15.

Harry Hampton, Lenox Golf Club, and H. E. Williams, Galien Hall, Wernersville, Pa.

SHAY SELLS MORRIS RATH

KANSAS CITY, June 12.—Manager Shay of the Kansas City American Association baseball club today sold Morris Rath, third baseman, to the Toronto club of the International League. Joe Leonard, an infielder with Columbus, has been purchased to play Rath's position. Charley Miller, the outfielder, borrowed from the St. Paul club, will be returned, according to the telegram.

Only Five St. Louis Boxers Make Noise Away From Home

Trendall and Kelly Among Them

Tom Burke, Another Who Is Coming Up, Will Take on Chicago Fighter in Next Tuesday's Feature at the Future City A. C.—Kirkwood and McGovern About Through.

By Harry S. Sharpe,

Referee of the Future City Athletic Club and the Post-Dispatch's Boxing Authority.

THE scarcity in St. Louis of first-class boxers who can be used in main events before the local clubs makes the promotion of boxing shows harder work and more expensive here than in most of the large cities of the United States. Just why St. Louis has not been able to graduate many boxers of marked ability is hard to determine, but it has always been out-classed in this particular by New York, Brooklyn, Philadelphia, Boston, Cleveland, Pittsburg, Chicago and San Francisco.

Boxing is no new thing in St. Louis. It has prevailed here in some form or another probably long before the mind of the oldest inhabitant can recall, and has continued ever since except for brief periods when something or other has happened to cause the local authorities to clamp down on it for the time being.

Amateur boxing has received some encouragement and professional boxing has been fairly well patronized, but there never has been the enthusiasm here over this sport that has prevailed in so many other places.

Few Wander From Home.

Some good boxers have been developed here, but comparatively few of them have been willing to take chances away from home. If it were undertaken to name the local boxers who have been highly successful here and elsewhere it would be found that the list would be small in comparison to the many eminent boxers claiming other cities as their home.

Right now there are very few local boxers that will draw a large attendance if featured against each other or against a boxer imported from another city. Harry Trendall, Leo Kelly and Tom Burke are about the only exceptions. George Kirkwood boxes only at long intervals, an operation for appendicitis removed Benny McGovern, at least until next winter; and Oliver Kirk, once very active, seldom takes to the ring now.

Certainly for the past 10 years Harry Trendall, Billy Grupp, George Kirkwood, Benny McGovern and Leo Kelly are the only made-in-St. Louis boxers who have gained any appreciable distinction away from home. Some few others have tried it, but not with much success.

Kelly and Trendall Popular.

Of the local boxers who are prominently identified with the professional end of the game, Harry Trendall and Leo Kelly are the only two between whom there is real rivalry for honors and the only two that can be depended upon to draw a large attendance when pitted against each other, and even this probably will disappear after their coming bout on June 29, unless their battle should be a hard one and fail to determine a winner. Barring the possibility of a knockout, it is hardly probable that one will gain a decisive victory over the other, because they appear to be too evenly matched for that.

But if Trendall should be the winner, even though by only a small margin, it is not likely he will consent to another bout with Kelly, and should the latter win from Trendall it is probable he will let well enough alone.

At any rate, it will be the fifth meeting between the two, and if one establishes his superiority over the other on this occasion it will end the public's acute interest, so far as to future matches between them are concerned.

Right now there is a great diversity of opinion owing to the fact that both men have graduated from the lightweight to the welterweight class and a general belief that Kelly has improved and that Trendall is no better than he was. This appears to give Kelly a better chance than formerly, for as lightweights Trendall held the edge, gaining two close decisions and holding Kelly to a draw on two other occasions.

Burke Meets Hirsch Next.

An interesting card has been arranged for the Future City Athletic Club's show on next Tuesday night, when Tom Burke, the local middleweight, will be sent against Mike Hirsch of Chicago. Burke is making a determined effort to establish his standing in the ring and right to challenge high-class men.

In pursuit of this he departed St. Louis about six weeks ago and went to Chicago for the purpose of gaining additional experience. He succeeded in securing a match with Hirsch, the man whom he is to box here next Tuesday night, and the bout took place at Racine, Wis. It was a hard one, and critics at the ringside disagreed in their conception of the result. Some thought Burke the winner, while others declared the bout a draw. If they are that closely matched, their bout on next Tuesday should be a good one.

For the semi-final Tommy Sullivan has matched Willie Staengel with Tommy Gerity for 8 rounds at 116 pounds. This bout should provide an exceptional good exhibition of clever boxing.

"Young Leach Cross" is matched with Pat O'Toole for six rounds at 124 pounds. "Young Leach" made a miserable mess of his bout with little Willie Staengel two weeks ago, and it remains to be seen if he can do any better.

Jack Wilker and Jimmy Billetean will provide the curtain raiser of six rounds at 122 pounds.

Hauser to Play With East Side Ball Team Today

Former Cardinal Will Get Tryout at Shortstop on Interstate Team.

Arnold Hauser, former star shortstop of the Cardinals, who has been on the sick list for the past two seasons, has recovered sufficiently to try his hand today at his old position at short for the East St. Louis Giants in the Interstate League. Billy Bascom, who was "tinned" by his boss, Ed Brock, magnate of the Alpen Braus, will serve as coach for the Giants in their game against the Donnelly Stars. Big "Jawn" Powell is down to pitch for the Donnellys.

At Belleville, Phil Kavanaugh's Maroons will play the Ben Millers in the main event. At C. B. C. Campus, the Wabadas and the C. A. C.'s will battle, while at Brock's Field, the Beyers of Belleville will oppose the Alpen Braus.

Charlie Stis, who was recently fired as manager of the Aberdeen (Northwestern League) team, will lineup with the Alpen Braus.

The regular preliminary games will be staged in advance of the big games. The perliminaries at 1:00 p. m., and the main events at 3:30 p. m.

MAHAN'S PITCHING WINS FOR HARVARD OVER PENN

CHICAGO SPEEDWAY WILL BE OPENED NEXT WEEK

CHICAGO, June 12.—Chicago will dedicate its new motor speedway next Saturday with a race of 500 miles, in which some of the fastest cars and most skillful drivers in the world are entered. Trial heats to be held Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday of next week are expected to reduce the number of competitors to the limit of 27, or one to each 400 feet of track, which the racing rules of the America Automobile Association provides.

The track is an oval course, two miles in length. The cars will run on what is technically known as an armored wooden flooring, the surface material being "two-by-fours." Thirty-foot embankments have been placed at the turns. Provision has been made for about [illegible] spectators, according to figures. A grand stand [illegible] bleachers adjoining can seat [illegible]; temporary bleachers will provide for [illegible] others.

HIGH SCHOOL BOY BREAKS WORLD'S VAULTING RECORD

Clears Bar at 12 Feet 7½ Inches in Chicago U. Track Meet.

NEW BROAD JUMP MARK

Spokane Youth Does 23 Feet 4½ Inches, Almost Foot Better Than Old Jump.

CHICAGO, June 12.—La Grange high school of Chicago won the fourteenth annual interscholastic track and field meet at the University of Chicago today, with 26 points. North Central High School of Spokane and Rock Island High School tied for second place with 13 points.

Graham of University High School set a new world's interscholastic record for the pole vault at 12 feet 7½ inches, the former record being 12 feet 6 1-6 inches.

Despite a heavy track, C. Kasper of Shattuck school of Minnesota, broke the track's half-mile record, cutting the time from 1:59 2-5 to 1:58. Kasper and Borden both tied the interscholastic record for the quarter mile, making it in 51 1-5 seconds.

Johnson, a good point winner for Lewis and Clark of Spokane, set a new track mark of 23 feet 4½ inches for the broad jump, as against the old record of 22 feet 7 inches.

The meet was the largest and Coach A. A. Stagg said the most successful ever held. Of the 125 schools entered 52 scored a place.

Summaries:

100-yard dash—Pearson, North Central High, Spokane, Wash., first; Butler, Rock Island, second; Filter, Milwaukee, East Division, third; Lock, Shaw High School, East Cleveland, O., fourth; Raush, West High School, Waterloo, Ia., fifth. Time, 10 1-5s.

High Jump—Paige, Fort Dodge, Io.; Roderick, Greeley, Colo.; Siebert, Lewis Institute, tied for first place. Johnson, Lewis and Clark High, Spokane, Wash., fourth; Adams, Mantino, Ill.; Cutrell, Central Academy, Plainfield, Ind.; Von Maurz, Davenport, Io.; Baxter, Cedar Rapids, Io., tied. Height 5 feet, 10 inches.

69 WILL COMPETE IN METROPOLITAN TENNIS

NEW YORK, June 12.—Sixty-nine competitors for the nineteenth annual Metropolitan tennis championship singles were drawn today in the tournament that began on the clay courts of the Bronxville Athletic Association.

Robert Leroy, the former national intercollegiate champion; A. D. Hammett, Arthur M. Lovibond, F. T. Frelinghuysen and Frederick C. Inman, the two-time holder of the title, playing through, were among the first and second round winners. Inman required a third final victory to make the cup his personal property. Play will be resumed Monday.

FAST RACES PROMISED FOR ST. LOUIS JUNE 20

With the big auto races at Maxwelton track just one week away, the date being Sunday afternoon, June 20, the entries already number 18 star drivers and 11 high-powered cars. The entries have been coming in steadily and from the best dirt track drivers in the country.

Should there not be another entry than these above, the meet would prove the biggest auto speed carnival ever held on the local course so far as the caliber of the drivers and the power of the cars are concerned. But there is still six more days for the drivers not yet entered to file their blanks.

A big factor leading up to the success of the meet is the entry of the world's two most famous and powerful cars which have been entered by their respective owners, namely the giant 300 h. p. "Blitzen" Benz, the fastest and most powerful car in the world, and the mammoth Jay-Eye-See, the big 290 h. p. juggernaut, which is second only to the "Blitzen" in point of size and speed. Eddie Hearne will pilot the German monster, whose record is a mile in 25 1-5 seconds, 142 miles per hour, and Disbrow will handle the steering wheel of the J-I-C.

The big 50-mile race, the last event on the program of seven races, will bring together for the first time during the meet every one of the star pilots who are entered. As this long grind carries a cash prize of $2500 it will be a real battle royal from start to finish, and without any accidents to the leaders should place a new world's record for the half-century mark.

Fred Campbell, St. Louis accessory dealer, is making an extensive trip through the East on business.

TRYOUT ON CHICAGO TRACK SHOWS IT FAST

CHICAGO, Ill., June 12.—The Chicago Motor Speedway is a reality. The big auto classic scheduled for June 19 will be held, and if the initial trip made by a King eight can be taken as a criterion, all track records will be shattered. The party that dedicated the oval in a King eight declares the race will be the most thrilling in the history of automobile contests.

Soon after the last spike was driven a 5 o'clock on June 4, C. F. Woods, president of the King Motor Car Co. of Chicago, accompanied by H. C. Bradfield of the King Motor Car Co., Detroit and Mark Hay, Annawan, Ill., King dealer, poked the nose of a new King eight on to the board track. Soon the party was speeding up to 55 miles an hour, but had to slow down in front of the grand stands on account of debris on the track.

A fast track, full of resiliency, two inclines that give one the idea of 50 per cent grades, with fine straightways on both the front and back stretches are some of the features of the course.

The audience can see the speed kings every second they are on the oval, the way it is constructed.

STANDARD TREAD ARGO ANNOUNCED AT $385

Much interest has been aroused by the announcement of the Argo Motor Co., Inc., of Jackson, Mich., of their 1916 model, the Argo Standard.

This model, which is standard tread, takes the place of the Argo 44-inch tread which has met with such marked success and is a logical step in advance.

The Argo Standard is the product of the designing and manufacturing skill of Benjamin Briscoe and his associates. The design is foreign, the original car having been built in the workshops of Briscoe Brothers near Paris, France, several years ago. American manufacturing methods are responsible for the price, which is $385 for the roadster and $435 for the touring car, both fully equipped. Complete electric lighting and starting equipment is furnished for $60 additional.

Both the roadster and touring car have beautiful streamline body, one of the features which the designers had in mind being that it was possible to combine beauty and comfort with utility and low price. The motor is 4-cylinder, developing 7¼ h. p. and the full elliptic springs and light weight of the car make it especially easy riding. These features, too mean fuel economy and wonderfully little tire wear.

MANY VIEW TWIN SIX

There is a new star on Broadway. It's a scintillating star, the Packard Twin Six.

The newest motor car design in the world made its metropolitan appearance at the Packard store in New York on Wednesday morning, June 2. At 6 o'clock in the evening 4939 persons had called to make an inspection and this number was increased by several hundred during the hours previous to the opening of the theaters.

The day following the 5000 mark was again passed, establishing what is probably a record for Broadway's motor row. Testifying to the fact that this enormous number of callers was not made up of the idly curious is a wire sent to the factory by M. J. Budlong, president of the company's branches, declaring that an error had been made in pricing the cars. Budlong is positive that every car alloted to New York City could be sold for $500 more than the list price.

FORD AVENUE IN BUFFALO

John D. Sattler of Buffalo, N. Y., one of the largest retail shoe dealers between New York and Chicago, writes to the Ford Motor Co.: "I am the owner of two Ford cars and am so much pleased with them that I am about to name a street Ford avenue, in a tract of land I am laying out in 900 building lots and 10 streets. This tract of land was formerly used as the Kenilworth race track, located at the city line and Niagara Falls boulevard. Ford avenue will run from the boulevard through the center of this tract of land."

That the efficiency and utility of a motor car should win a place for its name in the history of a great city is considered an unusual as well as significant tribute.

CADILLAC BREAKS RECORD

A Cadillac "8" touring car created a sensation in California June 4 by completing a run from Los Angeles to San Francisco in 11 hours and 10 minutes, breaking all previous records. The car started simultaneously with the Southern Pacific's fastest train and beat the train by 1 hour and 35 minutes. The distance covered was 492 miles. The car carried four passengers.

FAR AWAY DEALERS HERE TO SEE NEW BUICK SIX

The new 1916 model, 6-cylinder car, listing at $985, brought out by the Buick company has created a great deal of interest, and the Vesper-Buick Auto Co., has been busy all week entertaining visiting dealers from every section, as well as large crowds of St. Louis people, who have carefully gone over the new Buick offering.

Dealers from as far south as Meridian, Miss., and a great number from Tennessee, as well as nearby states have been here during the week, and left substantial orders for early deliveries of the new models.

All of the Vesper-Buick territory salesmen have been at headquarters all week, and expect to remain until after the dealers have all been in, after which they will immediately leave for their respective territories.

"Considerably over 200 out of town people have visited us this wek, and ridden in the new six-cylinder car," said Mr. Vesper, "and seem to approve of the new model. Besides this, several hundred local people have availed themselves of the opportunity of receiving a demonstration in this car. It is without question, the most sought after model that our company has ever produced, and we have written and have on file more orders up-to-date than we had last year up to Aug. 1. This sounds almost unbelievable, and in fact it is far above even our most sanguine expectations."

"The big Six, which is the same in general proportions as the Six-cylinder car we built in 1915, will arrive and be ready for examination about the middle of next week."

"YACHT-LINE" DESIGN FEATURE OF THE HUDSON

The Hudson slogan for its 1916 Six-40, announced by the Hudson-Phillips Motor Car Co. today, is the "yacht-line" body design and "ever-lustre" finish. And not the least interesting feature of the first information about the new "forty" is that the price is again reduced by $200, making the list price now $1350, a reduction of $400 from the original price of this car two years ago. The announcement states four innovations: yacht-line body, ever-lustre finish, roomier tonneau, $200 reduction in price. The chassis of the car is the same, with a few engineering refinements worked out during the past year.

A new carburetor control improves even the successful features of last year's model. The intake pipe has been remodeled along lines giving still smoother flow of gas. Some changes have been made in the electric system permitting greater accessibility to some parts. In the body of the car the general lines show the graceful, harmonious curves of the yacht-line. This is stated to be the culmination of the streamline. The entire top edge of the body is in a continuous line. It is luxuriously upholstered in leather around the entire edge. There are no breaks in the smooth contour of the sides. Even the customary beading around the doors has been abolished. The ever-lustre surface gives motorists what they long have desired—a baked-on finish, brilliant, deep and enduring. It resists weather, washing, rubbing and mud. The builders say it is to be found on no other car. Men who dislike to see their cars grow old and shabby will be interested in this new feature claimed by the Hudson people.

FRONT SEAT SELLS CAR

"Front seat roominess and comfort is the biggest influence in the purchase of motor cars listing at below $1000." This rather startling statement was made by W. L. Johnson, Empire distributor at St. Louis. "At first thought this may seem a far fetched statement. But it is not. The average man buying a car at less than $1000 intends to do most of the driving himself. Before he comes into your store he knows pretty well what your car has in the way of motor, axle equipment, etc. The purchase of a car is an investment for him and he has given the subject a considerable amount of thought.

"When he inspects the car, he is of course interested in the front seat, for there he must sit. If the driving compartment is roomy, it means comfort for him. So many of the cars at less than $1000 are so skimpy in front that the average sized man has to drive with his knees bumping the steering wheel. Driving such a car is not comfort. The driver cannot be taken care of by a little pedal adjustment. The roominess must be built into the car.

"To the fact that the driver's comfort has been so assiduously taken care of in the building of Empire cars, we attribute much of our success with this line.

R. & L. & BAKER ELECTRIC PLANTS CONSOLIDATED

Announcement is made of the consolidation of the Baker Motor Vehicle Co. and the Rauch & Lang Carriage Co. both of Cleveland, O. The officers of the new company will be: President, C. L. F. Wieber of the Rauch & Lang Co.; first vice-president, Fred R. White, former general manager of the Baker Motor Vehicle Co.; second vice-president, Chas. E. J. Lang, formerly with the Rauch & Lang Co.; treasurer, R. C. Norton, formerly of the Baker Co.; secretary, George H. Kelly, former secretary of the Baker Co. The new company will be known as the Baker R. and L. Co. and the capital will be increased from $1,000,000 to $2,500,000. Inventories and appraisals are now being made but for all practical purposes the business of the company was consolidated last Monday.

R. W. Leach, who has been managing the Rauch & Lang branch of St. Louis, has been in Cleveland all week arranging to take over the agency for the consolidated company. He also announces that when he returns to St. Louis he will open a large garage for the storage of electric cars which will be equipped as no other electric garage in St. Louis is. It will be fitted up with handsome sales rooms and all the latest facilities. The consolidation of these companies comes as a surprise to practically every one in the trade. The Baker electric has been handled in St. Louis for many years by the Park Automobile Co.

RACE TEAMS SUSPENDED

A letter from the Contest Board, A. A. A., June 5, 1915, says that, by reason of their participation in an unsanctioned meeting at Detroit, Mich., on May 30 and 31 the cars, drivers and mechanicians of the Moross and Sloan teams; the promoters and all officials have automatically rendered themselves ineligible, under the provisions of Rule 58 of the Contest Rules, for participation in or connection with future events sanctioned by the American Automobile Association. A definite period of suspension will be fixed at the next meeting of the Contest Board which will probably be held at the New York headquarters about June 22. The Moross team is billed to race in St. Louis, June 20, at Maxwellton Track.

THE STANDARDIZED
COLE 8
Series Twelve
1916 MODELS NOW READY

THE first quality you notice in the 1916 Cole eight, when you get it on the road, is its unusual poise—no side-swerve, no tendency for the rear wheels to leave the road or bounce about. This is due to three things—the steadiness of the motor, the car's low center of gravity, and the Cole direct spring drive suspension, which amounts to a built-in shock absorber.

The driver of a Cole Eight car enjoys the ride along with the others—he doesn't have to hold himself always ready to shift into second or to put on the brakes for the bumps. The peculiar poise of Cole Eight emancipates him from strain—mental and physical—and the other passengers from jars, jolts and jerks.

Cole Eight has full seven-passenger capacity, a wheelbase of 126 inches, weighs less than 3500 pounds, road ready, and in it all of the modern luxuries of motor car design are included.

Such as aisleway front seats, out-of-the-way auxiliary seats, tire pump operated from the driver's seat, and electric starter worked by a simple small foot button. Everything about Cole Eight is simple and get-at-able.

Cole Eight either in traffic or en route astounds you with its new delights.

These latest triumphs of Cole engineering are now being exhibited and demonstrated by all Cole dealers.

for Ford cars

With it you will control your driving entirely from the seat—just like an owner of the highest priced car.

A touch to a pedal will spin your motor unfailingly. A turn of a switch will control all lights.

In talking with owners of leading cars in every price class you will find that they, too, in large numbers can say "Yes, I've got Gray & Davis equipment, and for all 'round simplicity and sturdy service I don't believe it has an equal."

SHIPPED 125 FREIGHT CARS FULL OF AUTOS

What is probably the largest single shipment of automobiles ever made left the big Toledo factory of The Willys-Overland Co. on Friday.

The entire shipment, which has a total valuation considerably in excess of one-third of a million dollars, is consigned to the C. T. Silver Motor Co., Overland distributors for Greater New York and the metropolitan district.

The longest "through" freight train known in the history of railroading was required to carry the automobiles. It consisted of more than 125 freight cars and from end to end was more than a mile and a quarter in length. Two of the largest modern "Mogul" engines were used to haul the train.

ACCESSORY TRADE OFFICE

The first official act of Allan H. Clark, the newly-elected president of the Motor Accessory Trade Association of St. Louis, was to appoint a legislative committee consisting of E. S. Marvin, chairman; W. A. F. Uhlenhaut and W. K. Norris. Other officers elected by the association at its meeting last Tuesday night in addition to President Clark were W. E. Finney, vice president; A. C. Bauer, treasurer; Robert E. Lee, secretary; directors, L. E. Allmon, A. R. Baxter, W. K. Norris, J. P. Patterson and H. Lee Smith.

AUTO NEWS AND GOSSIP

A run to Monarch, Mo., climbing Monarch Hill on the Olive Street road, back to St. Louis and around the city streets was made by a Milburn electric car last Sunday morning on a single battery charge. The total distance covered on one charge according to the speedometer was 70.1 miles.

H. A. Mathews, sales manager of the Jackson Automobile Co., was in St. Louis last week the guest two or three days of Jos. A. Schlecht of the Mound City Buggy Co., local Jackson distributors.

Announcement is made of a reduction of $235 in the price of the Chevrolet 1916 Baby Grand touring car. This makes the price of the car $750.

W. K. Norris, president of the McQuay-Norris Mfg. Co., departed Wednesday night for a six week's tour of the Pacific Coast during which he will see the San Francisco Exposition.

D. J. Henry has joined the sales force of the St. Louis branch of the Firestone Tire and Rubber Co. in the solid tire department.

A. L. Ellwood, formerly Locomobile manager in St. Louis, has just been appointed manager of the Marmon Kansas City branch. His territory will include Kansas, Western Missouri, Oklahoma, Southern Nebraska and Southern Iowa.

W. H. Dameron has been transferred from the city sales force to the road by the St. Louis Goodyear branch house.

R. T. Hodges, assistant sales manager of the Studebaker Corporation, visited the St. Louis Studebaker branch the early part of last week.

Wm. F. Mayberry from the home office of the General Motors Truck Co., Pontiac, Mich., spent the past ten days in St. Louis with the local branch.

The Cole-Arbogast Automobile Co. reports deliveries of Cole "8's" as follows: E. W. Handlan, C. D. Johnson, S. Hasgall, J. T. Pettus of St. Louis; B. Topmeyer of Deer Plain, Ill.; A. J. Kent, Murphysboro, Ill.; W. J. Vance, Valley Park, Mo.; J. C. Scudamore, Flora, Ill.; Dr. P. C. Barnes, G. Moran and G. A. Milbradt, of St. Louis, and E. S. Lawbaugh of St. Marys, Mo.

Announcement comes from H. A. Lozier that he will shortly be back in the automobile business with a new company which he is organizing.

MANY GOING TO CHICAGO

The Chicago & Alton Railroad is planning a special train for the opening of the Chicago Board Automobile Race Track next Saturday. The first race will be a 500-mile grand and practically all of the stars of the country have entered, for the stakes are greatest ever offered. The train will leave here Friday night June 18. In addition to booking reservations the passenger department has on sale at the local ticket office over one-half of grandstand number one, which is in front of the start, so ticket purchasers may make all arrangements here.

SELL TO HOME BUYERS

"There is one exception to the old adage, 'A man is not without honor save in his own country' and the later version, 'An automobile is popular everywhere except in the city where it is made,'" says R. C. Rueschaw, salesmanager of the Reo Motor Car Co.

"If the fact that 25 per cent of the Reo cars are driven away from the factory to points in Michigan and immediately adjoining states is any indication of popularity at home then certainly Reo cars are an exception to that rule.

"Daily, an average of thirty cars are driven away from the Reo factories. Buyers in Michigan, Indiana and Ohio and even Wisconsin and Illinois, almost invariably come to the factory and drive their cars home.

"We have many cases of cars being driven over much greater distance—some even to the Pacific Coast; and it is not unusual for a buyer living in Minneapolis or Dallas, Tex., to come to the factory, see where and how his car has been built, taking as his first ride in it the long drive to his home.

"With the opening of the touring season this tendency increases and there is hardly a night that Lansing hotels are not full of families who, having wired ahead to make sure their cars will be ready, have come to the factory to take them back.

"Not only does this help to solve our shipping problems but we find it valuable in other ways. For example, we like to have buyers come and see the factory and get a grasp of the magnitude and the accuracy of the operations and the care with which we inspect and test Reos and above all to get acquainted with us Reo folk. Almost invariably such visits are followed by other visits from friends of such buyers."

MADE-IN-ST. LOUIS CAR NAMED "DE KALB"

The De Kalb Motor Car Co. of 2615-17 De Kalb street, St. Louis, has one of its first De Kalb delivery cars on the street. It is a 45-horsepower, six-cylinder car in which some of the highest class standard parts have been assembled. It sells for $2250 with choice of body at option of the purchaser. The same chasis will also be used for touring car bodies. Several long hard tests recently made with the car by Otto Larsen and M. W. Bond show it to be an unusual mud-puller and hill climber. Larsen built the first four-cylinder car in St. Louis 14 years ago for Eugene Freund, a South Broadway clothier, and several others were built immediately afterward, of which two are still running. The new car's motor is a Beaver, six cylinder, and it carries the Apple starting and lighting system, Stromberg carburetor, and Remy magneto. The rear axel is full floating Timken; semi-elliptic springs are used. The wheel base is 130 inches.

KNIGHT TO BUILD CAR TO SELL UNDER $1200

What undoubtedly will prove to be a sensational announcement in automobile circles, is promised in the near future by Charles Y. Knight, inventor of the famous Knight motor.

One of America's leading automobile manufacturers is about to produce a Knight-motored car to sell at a figure below $1200, according to Mr. Knight.

"The price of this newest creation in motor cars will serve as a complete surprise to those at all familiar with the Knight motor," says Mr. Knight. "Its price feature, together with the fact that it is to be a quality car throughout, will unquestionably open the eyes of the public. I am free to admit that so much quality at so low a price is possible only by big production methods."

RAIMEY MAKES A KILLING

John Raimey, driving his Case racer, won the $5000 Memorial day sweepstakes at Detroit, May 31, defeating a field of 15 cars of different makes. Raimey, a dark horse in the race, drove from tenth place at the start to first place on the ninety-fourth lap. More than 11,000 people saw the race. Raimey will be one of the racers at St. Louis on June 20.

WILL LOCATE IN JACKSON

The Briscoe Motor Co. announces the consummation of plans which have been under discussion some months by which the company will build extensive automobile factories on Wildwood avenue, in Jackson, Mich., and establish an industrial community west of the city.

CHARLIE CHAPLIN IS AN ARDENT MOTORIST

Charles Chaplin, the odd comedian so popular with movie fans, is an ardent motorist and passes the greater part of his leisure time enjoying the magnificence of nature from the seat of a handsome 42-Six KisselKar. Edna Purviance, the pretty girl frequently seen in the Chaplin films, is likewise a "motor bug," as are most of those who make up the big California colony of "shadow actors."

"—rides like a Pullman"

You are conscious of a "let down" in tension, of a freedom from strain—when you ride in a Chalmers New Six-40.

The new type of spring suspension is responsible for this.

And it takes corners with the free and easy swing of an aeroplane.

The new high speed, long stroke, valve-in-head motor with overhead camshaft gives this car the power of a locomotive; makes it run with a wonderful smoothness. It gets away like a racer.

Come in and let us show you this New Six and explain its new and important features.

CASE 30

MODEL R

This telegram speaks for itself. It is conclusive. There is no appeal.

If all those who were planning to buy Case Cars actually decided to buy today—with our limited output—we could not fill the demand. You know how Case has always built. Our reputation, not competition, has determined our output.

So this is our suggestion for immediate action to you who want one of these Model R's which develops over 40 horsepower.

This Is Our Advice

We urge you to make your appointment for a demonstration today—if you do not want to be compelled to buy a car less efficient than the Case. You know how sincerely this car is built—that it is as exactingly made as cars costing far more. Men everywhere have bought Case Cars for the very simple reason that they have complete faith in them and in the company behind them.

Remember, this Case 30 comes actually ready for the road—with all the necessary equipment included in the purchase price, $1350—with five per cent discount if cash—such as Extra Tire and Tube on Rim with Tire Cover, Non-Skid Tire Chains and 8-Day Clock. You have no extras to buy.

What We Fear Most

We are advised that some of the cars allotted here may be demanded by other territories. We want to take care of those who have shown their interest. We would hate to get word to ship away our few remaining cars.

Telephone or come in today. Look at the car. Learn thoroughly its vital economies. We shall be glad to demonstrate to you what this car will do. Ask other owners about it. Then make your decision. Next week may be too late.

Chandler Was Months Ahead of the "New Models"

THIS is "announcement" time, it seems. You are being told about "new models" and lower prices. Well the new models and the lower prices had to come, for the Chandler pointed the way months ago—not with a cheapened car but with a car that had made good for thousands of owners, at a price that made the industry gasp.

CHANDLER $1295

The Pioneer Light-Weight Six

The Chandler announced its New Season's car in January, at a price of only $1295. That price was hundreds of dollars under the price of any other car of really similar character.

And now, in spite of price reductions and new models rushed out in the hopes of meeting the Chandler competition, the Chandler is still under-priced.

Such a car at such a price literally stampeded the trade toward the Chandler. And it continues alone in its leadership of the high-grade light six field.

Men who are motor-wise, men who know automobiles, know this is true. If there is anyone who does not know it is true, we ask the opportunity to show him and prove it.

All over the country the Chandler demand has been tremendous. The factory has reached a production of ten thousand cars for this year but even that great number will leave hundreds disappointed. Like other Chandler dealers everywhere, we have been "snowed under" with orders. In April and May we could not fill our orders by half. This month we are catching up pretty well with the demand. Our allotments for July and August are liberal and we expect to give prompt deliveries on orders received early.

The Argo Standard

A high-grade, beautifully designed car; standard tread; 4-cylinder, water-cooled motor; semi-floating rear axle; sliding gear transmission; full elliptic springs; full streamline body.

2-passenger Roadster
f. o. b. factory, fully equipped, Electric Starting and Lighting System $60 additional.

A car that, for the first time, combines beauty and comfort with utility and low price.

5-passenger Touring Car
f. o. b. factory, fully equipped, Electric Starting and Lighting System $60 additional.

Here is a car that embodies the best and most attractive features of foreign body design—a car that you'll be proud of when you take sweetheart, wife or family Argoing.

Swung on full elliptic springs, with plenty of leg room and body room, too, you'll just skim over the road in a comfort that the highest-priced cars might envy.

Light in weight and carefully designed to reduce dead weight to the minimum, the Argo Standard is exceptionally economical of fuel and oil—marvelously easy on tires.

The sturdy motor, developing 17½ h. p. on brake test at normal speed, enables you to laugh at hills or sand or mud. All Argo cars for the 1916 season are equipped with the celebrated "Champion" spark plugs.

Back of the car is a strong company, a well-equipped factory, an efficient organization. Benjamin Briscoe and his associates, as you know, have stood in the front rank of motor car progress for years.

We can't tell you a hundredth part of the good points of the Argo Standard in this announcement. You must see it, and ride in it, and examine it thoroughly for yourself.

If you're considering any car under a thousand dollars, compare its dollar-for-dollar value with the ARGO STANDARD.

Local Dealers Wanted Everywhere

The Argo combination of beauty, sturdiness, power, comfort, economy and price sets a new standard of motor-car value. The demand is country-wide and enormous—and we want dealers in every county to take advantage of it. Write the nearest distributer, or the factory.

MANY MOTORISTS SECURING ROUTES TO SEE AMERICA

War in Europe Will Send Thousands Over Roads and Highways of the United States.

America is already feeling the effect of an enormous increase in automobile touring over previous years. The figures up to June 1 have reached a volume without precedent in any previous year's records. This information comes from the national clearing house for automobile touring, the American Automobile Association, with headquarters in Washington, D. C.

Just as straws show the direction of the wind, so do many of the unusual requests for touring routes demonstrate there are many new incentives that are bringing about this increased travel.

One of these that has become rather prominent within the last week because of the time of the year, has been the number of requests for route information between the East and the West on the part of those who planned to make the trip with sons and daughters who are attending various preparatory schools and colleges in the East. Heretofore the homegoing of the students has been by train, but this year the spirit of touring has so increased that it has brought about a desire and fulfillment to make the trip by automobile.

Another point showing the increasing interest in more general touring are the requests for data through sections that have formerly had but little attention. Many of these inquiries come from those who previously confined their summer touring to the northeast section of the country, but are now looking for variants that they may become equally familiar with other sections famed in Colonial and subsequent history. Some of this area is today travelable, but even after the roads have become settled, during the summer, there remain many miles which must be put in better condition before touring can become a really definite proposition. Much road building has been done and it must be said for the various authorities that a great deal more is now planned and will be carried out this year. One of these embraces a circuit in Virginia that will take in most of the renowned battlefields of the Civil War that heretofore were practically isolated from the tourist.

SHEEPSHEAD RACE TO BE FOR 350 MILES

Whirlwind racing from start to finish will be the keynote of the opening contest at the Sheepshead Bay Speedway, on Oct. 2. Although it has not been definitely decided by the Executive Committee, it is probable that the distance of the inaugural race will be 350 miles. Manager Everard Thompson, after talking at Indianapolis with men experienced in metropolitan long-distance racing, had his own opinion confirmed that New Yorkers do not take to long-drawn-out grinds, but rather look for snappy, hard-fought struggles, in which interest and excitement are sustained throughout. It was the consensus of opinion that a race of 350 miles would be long enough to test to a reasonable and satisfactory limit the endurance of the cars, and at the same time assure a hard battle for the lead from the crack of the pistol to the drop of the checkered flag.

MAKING GREAT STRIDES IN FOREIGN MARKETS

The Scripps-Booth Co. will soon have representatives in every country of the world if the closing of contracts continues at the present rapid rate.

Italy and the Island of Sicily are now heard from. A. Sollini & Co. at Rome, Italy, are delivering Scripps-Booth cars in this territory. This firm has contracted for 50 Scripps-Booths and will continue deliveries regularly until January.

R. Baquerizo Moreno, Guayaquil, Ecuador, has the exclusive sale of Scripps-Booths in the Republic of Ecuador and will use 35 cars during the 1915 season.

FEATS BY BABY MOTOR

INDIANAPOLIS, June 5.—American automobile engineers are unquestionably making great progress in the general effort to design cars of greater efficiency and which will make one gallon of gasoline do work which has formerly required two.

It was demonstrated beyond doubt in the fifth international sweepstakes raced on Memorial day, when cars smaller than any which had before competed in the famous 500-mile classic, showed ability both to outbrush the big, cumbersome racers of the past era and to stand up and go through with far greater consistency and tire economy.

Experts point, as an example, to the case of the baby Maxwells, which, though rated at but 25 horsepower, tore through the straights at faster than 100 miles per hour and repeatedly, in prolonged bursts, averaged better than 90 miles.

The Maxwell driven by Carlson and Hughes averaged 78.96 miles per hour for the entire 500 miles, a performance which would have won any of the Indianapolis classics prior to the race of last year. This figure surpassed both the famous marks of Dawson, the 1912 winner, and of Goux, who won the event in 1913. Goux and Dawson both drove cars immensely heavier and with motors of virtually double the horsepower rating, according to formula.

LUBRICATION IMPORTANT

Proper lubrication of the motor is probably the most essential feature which the motor engineer has to consider. It is now generally agreed that a positive force feed system is the best and that the hollow crank shaft force feed system such as used on the Marmon, and other high grade cars, gives the most perfect service of any form of lubrication.

The Marmon motor designers not only have paid particular attention to oiling of the crank shaft and its bearings and the various piston parts and cylinder walls but also have now extended this force feed system to take care of the cam shaft and the valve mechanism.

On the Marmon "41" the cam shaft is in a closed oil tight tunnel so that all the cams and bearings run in a bath of oil. This provides perfect lubrication, great quietness and minimum wear.

The tappet rollers, pins and guides all receive a forced feed of oil. The tappets are hollow with a hole in the head permitting a film of oil to cushion the contact between the valve stem and the tappet.

The Marmon is handled in St. Louis by the More Automobile Co.

The WHY of the greatest Mileage —— per Amount invested by You

• • •

Though nothing yet has been discovered which would do Tire-work so well as Rubber, it has serious limitations for that purpose.

Its Mileage depends upon its treatment quite as much as on its Cost.

A Tire made wholly of highest grade, strictly-pure, Para Rubber, costing many times as much as the best Goodrich Tire, would, for instance, not give a fraction of the latter's Mileage in actual Service.

What Rubber will do, for such purpose, therefore, depends entirely upon what is done to it, to make it best serve that purpose.

It is a fair statement then, that a Tire will give Service and Mileage, per dollar invested by the User, in exact proportion to the Maker's EXPERIENCE and the Mileage-Intention, behind it.

• • •

HARDLY a day passes in the B. F. Goodrich Co.'s Factory that we do not learn something new about the working of Rubber—something which increases its efficiency without increasing its Cost.

And the point of this article is that the B. F. Goodrich Co. has been continuously and cumulatively learning from day to day how to get the most Service out of Rubber, during the impressive period of 45 years.

What the accumulated experience of 45 years in the working of such an unique and almost "Temperamental" material as Rubber, has to do with the Mileage and Resilience of Goodrich Tires, with the evolving of ways to secure minimum Cost in producing maximum Service—has everything to do with RESULTS to Tire Users.

Observe now that the B. F. Goodrich Co. for 30 years before a Pneumatic Tire was ever made was, even then, one of the World's largest Rubber Concerns.

Observe, too, that it was the very first Concern to manufacture a Clincher Tire.

Observe likewise, that many of the best known Brands of Tires, now in competition with Goodrich Tires, had their birth in the Goodrich Factories.

Ours was the parent factory—our successful ideas and methods were the inspiration—yes, the capital that made it possible for other Tire concerns to start and exist.

Only 5% Plus,—for this Best Non-Skid Tire

Note following comparative prices. "A," "B," "C" and "D" represent four Widely-Sold Non-Skid Tires:

Size	Goodrich Safety Tread	OTHER MAKES
		"A"	"B"	"C"	"D"
30 x 3	$9.45	$10.55	$10.95	$16.35	$18.10
30 x 3½	12.20	13.35	14.20	21.70	23.60
32 x 3½	14.00	15.40	16.30	22.85	25.30
34 x 4	20.35	22.30	23.80	31.15	33.55
37 x 5	33.90	39.80	41.80	49.85	52.05

Made as always,—the same reliable Construction, the same dependable Service—without anything whatever taken out of Quality, no matter what reductions in List-Price are ever made.

But, a Following, like a Procession, is not a Race.

In manufacturing Rubber at least, there is no effective substitute for that long and practical EXPERIENCE which is the father of safe and conservative Initiative.

—The Kind of Initiative, by the way, which is careful to keep a year or more ahead of Competitors, in quality and Value, but never to market a raw Experiment in order to provide "Selling Feature" or force sales beyond norma bounds.

• • •

In its work 75 Acres of floor space are utilized, and more than 15,000 people frequently employed.

Though 15 Rubber and Companies followed it to Akron it significant that the B. Goodrich Co. pays one-six of all the Taxes in that liv and prosperous "Rub City" (which has more 100,000 population).

The Factory of th B. F. Goodrich Co. buys mor Crude Rubber every yea than any other Factory i the World, manufacturin more than 90,000,000 pound of Rubber Goods yearly ou of it.

This fact, with its Precision Policy, its War on Waste and its division of Overhead Charges over the 284 lines of Rubber Goods it manufactures, with its 45 years of EXPERIENCE results in lowest Cost for Manufacture of its Product.

• • •

THAT is why it can afford to, and does, produce the most Mileage in Tires, at the fairest Cost per Mile of Road Service rendered to Users.

This is why Consumers may implicitly rely upon Goodrich Tires being always maintained at top-notch quality (regardless of List-Price reductions) so they shall never reflect unfavorably upon the 283 other lines of Rubber Goods for which the name of "Goodrich" stands sponsor.

Why pay for Experimental Tires when you can have the Sure-thing that maximum EXPERIENCE, and greatest Stake, pledges,—at the fairest price in the Market for such Quality and Mileage?

REO

ANNOUNCEMENT!

As it seems to be the fashion to make June, or mid-season, announcements, here is Reo's. We will continue to maintain Reo Standards in every regard and in every detail of the product and we will redouble our efforts to make more good Reos in hopes some day to catch up with the demand.

IT WAS THIS POLICY of adhering to the high standards set by Reo in the beginning that placed Reo in the splendid position it occupies today—so that policy will not now, or at any time, be departed from.

REO IS ONE OF THE TWO OR THREE makes of automobiles that enjoy practical immunity from competition—one that can shape its course without regard to anything any other maker may choose, or be forced, to do.

EXPEDIENCY NEVER HAS been a controlling factor in the Reo policy because the product has always been so good that, never since the first Reo left the factory has it been possible to make enough cars to supply all who wanted Reos.

REO POLICY FROM THE FIRST was based on the one idea of permanent satisfaction to the user. And only by building cars of quality regardless of all other considerations could that Reo objective have been attained.

TODAY, PRICES of many materials that go into motor cars are higher than ever before. Leather, steel and all products into which copper enters are higher than when the present prices of the two Reo Models were established.

LOOK UP THE QUOTATIONS and you will learn that that is so.

NOW IT HAS BEEN OUR PLAN to increase the price of Reo cars whenever we felt that, by so doing we could make them better. Reo preference never was based on price but on the quality of the Reo product.

DISCRIMINATING BUYERS have always been glad to pay Reo prices for Reo standards of excellence and the backing of the Reo guarantee—financially second strongest in the world and in integrity—good intent—second to none.

SO AT THIS JUNCTURE the logical thing to do would be to increase the price of both Reo models to make up for the additional cost of manufacture—for materials average higher and cost of labor—as we make Reo cars—is not less than when the present prices were established.

THAT WOULD BE THE LOGICAL MOVE at this time did we believe that the high prices of good materials would obtain for long. But we don't. We believe it is the result of an extraordinary condition and so is only transitory.

OF COURSE THERE WOULD BE another way; namely, to cut the size of the car—wheel base, width and length and depth of seats—and to skimp the quality in countless ways that it could be skimped. Ways, too, that the average buyer could not see and would not discover for a few months.

BUT THAT IS UNTHINKABLE—such an expedient never has and never could occur to the men who make Reos—the men who set the Reo standard.

NOR WOULD REO BUYERS—that select clientele that has always shown such a preference for Reo cars—accept such a product at any price.

THEY ARE ACCUSTOMED to wearing real leather shoes—and they will not consent to wearing paper or cloth shoes now just because the price of leather has advanced.

NOR WOULD THESE ACCEPT a car so skimped in size you could get five full grown adults in only by using a shoe horn! Nor one with a "safety factor" just sufficient to "get by."

THEY HAVE BOUGHT REOS BECAUSE they knew the Reo standard of "50 per cent oversize in all vital parts" could always be depended upon even though the maker had to pay more for steel and other metals.

REO POLICY HAS PAID—it has justified itself in every way that gratifies the hearts of men who like to make honest goods. And it has paid handsomely those who were so wise as to select Reos, for they have found that in all the world there is no other automobile of so low upkeep cost—such wonderful consistency of performance and so few repairs.

TODAY THERE ARE 60,000 Reo the Fifths in use. Think of that number of delighted owners singing the praises of Reo every day. For you never yet met a Reo owner who wasn't a Reo booster. Never one that wasn't more than satisfied—never one that was quite willing to admit that any other make of car could be as good as his Reo.

OF COURSE IF YOU ACCEPT mere "specifications" as value there are several claimants.

BUT IF YOU MEASURE values as they are and compare every detail of design and of construction—the work, as well as the material: if you appraise experience as an asset and the Reo guarantee a bigger one:

AND IF YOU ADD the good intent that you know goes into Reo cars—then Reo The Fifth has no rival, no competitor—no peer, And today there are few who even try to dispute the ground. That field has, by common consent, been yielded to Reo—and Reo quality was the reason.

AND THE NEW REO SIX, "the Six of Sixty Superiorities" is today the most popular Six in America if demand is any criterion.

SO WE'LL CONTINUE to maintain Reo standards in every detail. We'll continue to make Reos just as big and just as good and at the present prices even though prices of some commodities that are vital to the permanent stability of the car have advanced.

THAT IS OUR "ANNOUNCEMENT" and that is our attitude toward the tens of thosusands of friends who have bought Reos on the basis of Reo quality and Reo standards of making cars—and of doing business.

WE HAVE TO APOLOGIZE for only one thing in the Reo policy—our inability to make enough to supply you all. And that is because our policy has been never to run after the fleeting fantom of quantities—never to seek the kind of prestige that mere numbers gives—but to make only as many Reos as we could make and make every Reo good.

FOR WE FEEL that every Reo car carries with it the Reo reputation—and so in each car must be incorporated all there is of Reo engineering skill, Reo experience and Reo integrity.

SO IF YOU ARE LUCKY ENOUGH—which means if you hurry and get your order in at once—to get a Reo this season, you'll get that kind of an automobile and at a price that cannot be equalled for the quality—because there is only one concern that makes cars of Reo quality and at Reo prices.

POST-DISPATCH'S REVIEW OF REAL ESTATE NEWS

REVIVE PARKWAY SOON, OR FORGET IT, SAY REALTY MEN

Uncertainty of Situation Said to Have Brought About Virtual Suspension of Activity in Property Along Proposed Traffic Way and in Benefit Districts.

BUSCH MAY PROCEED WITH HOTEL PROJECT

Brewer Willing to Sacrifice for Public Improvement, but Unwilling to Let $375,000 Invested Remain Idle in View of Recent Election Result—Chestnut Street Campaign.

The logic of real estate interests, it is argued in realty circles, is that if the Parkway project is to be revived, the sooner it is done the better; otherwise it should be abandoned and forgotten.

Owing to the uncertainty of the situation in this connection, operations involving property in, as well as on either side of the proposed Parkway strip, and to some extent in the probable benefit district, have been virtually suspended. Capitalists are said to be averse to advancing money for improvements on the streets that would be appreciably affected until the question is definitely decided one way or the other.

General opinion in realty circles is that the Parkway would work marvels for the city and that it should be built regardless of cost. Were the proposition submitted under a 50-year bond issue plan, it is believed in real estate circles that it would win easily. Then the entire city would be embraced and posterity would help pay the expense, it is argued.

Busch May Proceed With Hotel.

Real estate agents are urging August A. Busch to proceed with the erection of the proposed Busch Memorial Hotel, for which a half block on Twelfth street, including the southwest and the northwest corners of Market and Chestnut streets, was purchased. The site is in the proposed Parkway strip, but Busch abandoned the hotel project when members of the City Plan Commission declined to consider it in connection with the plaza.

"I certainly cannot permit $375,000 already invested in that ground to remain idle," said Busch in an interview with a Post-Dispatch reporter, "but I do not want to interfere with the Parkway. I see in the papers that there is a possibility that the Parkway matter will again be taken up.

"I have not given the hotel matter consideration because I believed the Parkway would carry, but, now that it has been defeated, I am going to consider it. If there seems a probability that the Parkway is dead for several years, I feel that I shall have to put the Twelfth street property to some use, and a hotel proposition seems to be the logical one."

Now if the hotel were built and the Parkway project should materialize, real estate interests contend that there hardly could be objection forthcoming from the City Plan Commission.

The hotel, which would rise 20 stories and which would be along esthetic lines, would be a notable feature of the plaza, it is believed. The site, which is opposite the municipal group of buildings on the south side of Market street between Twelfth and Thirteenth streets, was selected by the late Adolphus Busch himself.

Campaign for Chestnut Street.

The Fredonia Realty Co., of which George T. Burdeau is president, has under consideration plans for the erection of a large automobile building at the southwest corner of Sixteenth and Chestnut streets. A tenant already is in prospect for the building, according to Burdeau.

The site, having a frontage on Chestnut street of 135 feet and a depth along Sixteenth street of 72 feet, is in the tract of the Parkway project. Before going ahead with the building Burdeau stated that he would wait awhile, to see whether or not there was any possibility of the Parkway's being revived.

The Welfare Realty Co, composed of George T. Burdeau and George W. Davis, played a prominent part in the upbuilding of Locust street as an automobile center. The Welfare Co. recently has been disposing of its Locust street holdings, the supposition being that, in view of this Chestnut street acquisition, Burdeau is about to launch a big building campaign on the latter thoroughfare. Chestnut street as a traffic center is second to Locust street, and obviously has an attractive future for automobile purposes.

Lionberger Block Improvement.

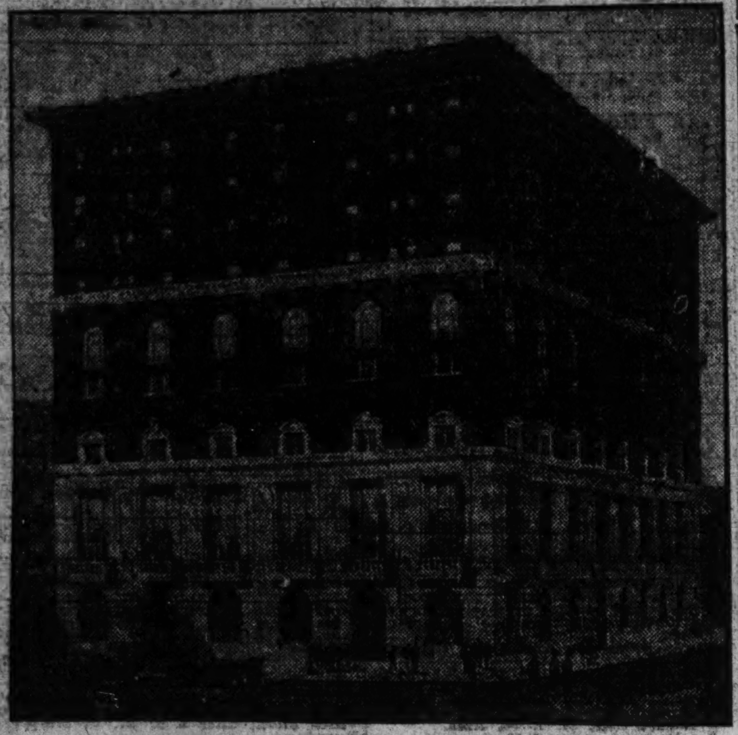
The upbuilding of the Lionberger block, facing Chestnut, Seventeenth, Eighteenth and Pine streets, on a handsome scale, would, it is believed, give to Pine and Chestnut streets the needed momentum. The block has been under consideration for hotel purposes, for which it seems to be admirably adapted.

Property on Pine and Chestnut streets, between Twelfth and Eighteenth streets, is owned by large estates or by persons in a financial position to improve it on a high scale.

John A. Watkins, when he was running for president of the St. Louis Real Estate Exchange, advanced ideas for improving the block opposite Union Station with large and attractive structures. The most meritorious of these contemplated the purchase of the block either by the city or by a syndicate of public-spirited citizens, and disposing of it in lots with deeds providing for the erection, within a designated period, of representative buildings.

Whether the Parkway is to be built or not, there is growing sentiment that something should be done to make the vista from Union Station more attarctive.

Officials of M. A. A. Expect New Home Will Be Completed Dec. 1



NEW BUILDING OF MISSOURI ATHLETIC ASSOCIATION.

The officials of the Missouri Athletic Asociation have announced that they expect the new building at Fourth street and Washington avenue to be completed Dec. 1.

The building will be of 10 stories, and it is announced that it will have unexcelled main and private diningroom facilities, 192 sleeping rooms, a complete Turkish bath establishment, the largest billiard room in St. Louis, bowling alleys, shooting gallery, handball, squash and racquet courts, gymnasium and running track, fresh air swimming pool and card, rest and reading rooms. An exchange arrangement with large clubs in other cities will be established. Especial attention will be given to the cuisine.

MANY ARE ATTRACTED TO SUBURBAN ADDITIONS

University City, North Parkview and Hillcrest Drawing Homeseekers and Investors—Houses Are Being Built.

University City, North Parkview addition and Hillcrest are attracting both homeseekers and investors.

Gerald B. O'Reilly, a former president of the Real Estate Exchange, with building plans, is negotiating with the Mississippi Valley Trust Co. for four lots in Ames place, in University City. O'Reilly only a few days ago disposed of his Parkview house on Berlin avenue, for $15,000. O'Reilly built a house in Hillcrest last summer, but sold it after he lived in it three months, for $14,000.

Houses Under Construction.

There are under construction in Ames place between ten and fifteen houses. Among the builders are the Federal Investment Co. and the George F. Bergfeldt Real Estate Co.

These concerns have large lot holdings in Ames place, all of which will probably be improved during the next 12 months with handsome homes.

Samuel S. Pomeroy has begun the erection of three houses at 7050-52-54 Berlin in West Portland pl., a subdivision of University City. The cost of the houses is estimated at $25,000.

The houses will be of stucco, or brick with stone trimmings. Each will have a large sleeping porch on the south, overlooking Maryland place and the western part of the Washington University campus.

Large Apartment Houses.

Negotiations are pending with the Delmar Improvement Co. for several sites in North Parkview. The prospective purchasers have plans for the erection of large apartment houses.

The south half of North Parkview is being rapidly built up with buildings of this character for which it is especially attractive.

The Delmar Realty Co. of which Louis A. and Charles Cella are the leading spirits, has erected in the addition a dozen or more small houses and bungalows. These are being disposed of at special prices and on easy terms.

North Parkview lies on the north side of Delmar avenue and extends from Skinker road on the east to Mellville avenue on the west. The addition has been improved with streets and sewers at a cost of $200,000.

Hillcrest Homes.

Several offers for Hillcrest houses are reported by James C. Morfit, sales manager for J. H. Farish & Co. Morfit also reports that plans are out for the erection of several handsome houses in Hillcrest.

J. H. Farish & Co., in connection with Geraldin Bros., have erected in the subdivision a large number of houses which are enjoying a ready sale.

Hillcrest lies on the west side of Skinker road and of Forest Park and just west of the Art Museum.

University City and Hillcrest are restricted for high class residential purposes, while North Parkview is open to both apartments and houses.

FRANK L. DITTMEIER R. E. CO.

The Frank L. Dittmeier Real Estate Co. reports having closed an exchange of real estate, involving property worth $200,000. The properties transferred and the parties in interest are as follows:

Sold for A. H. Breitenbach, William A. Beste and others, 7690 acres of land in Brooks County, Tex., on the Mexican-Texas Railroad, at Hebbronville. This land is in one body. The following St. Louis city and county property was taken by the owners of the Texas property in exchange:

These city and county properties were all controlled by various corporations, all of whom were represented by the Frank L. Dittmeier Real Estate Co. The Dittmeier Company will have charge of most of the property.

The Frank L. Dittmeier Company also reports the sale of property at the northeast corner of Maffitt avenue and Whittier street, being Nos. [illegible] Maffitt avenue and Nos. 2810-10A-12-12A-14-14A Whittier street, being separate buildings, for the Reserve Realty Co., represented by the Frank L. Dittmeier Real Estate Co., to William T. and Alice M. H. Newman, price paid being $25,000.

BORDERS REALTY CO.

For the account of the Girard Realty and Building Co., double flat at 3949-51 Lafayette avenue.

One hundred and fifty feet at the northwest corner of De Tonty and Klemm, across from the new Bryan Mullanphy public school. With the sale of this 150 feet the Borders company has sold and resold 775 feet of ground within the last three months in the Shaw tract west of Thurman.

Loans aggregating $14,300 at 6 per cent also are reported.

LOAN ON BUILDING OF GRAND-LEADER FEATURE OF WEEK

Mercantile Trust Co. Supplies $1,000,000 at 5 Per Cent Interest.

Notwithstanding the fact that there is an overplus of money in the banks and trust companies and that prices of property are abnormally low, in both the business and residential districts, the volume of real estate transactions is at ebb tide.

The only notable transactions of the week were a loan made by the Mercantile Trust Co., and a sale of a West End apartment building by Barngrover & Specht.

Exemplifying the fact that there is no dearth of money for real estate investment, the Mercantile Trust Co. has loaned the Campbell estate $1,000,000 at 5 per cent on the Grand-Leader Building and site. The loan replaced one for that amount and at that rate, held by the Northwestern Mutual Life Insurance Co. The amount was originally $1,400,000, but the Mercantile Trust Co., executors and trustees of the Campbell estate, had paid off $400,000.

The loan is to be repaid the Mercantile at the rate of $50,000 a year for nine years, and at the expiration of 10 years the balance, $550,000, is to be paid. The loan is in serial coupon pon form.

A $2,000,000 Security.

Thus insuring the Mercantile 5 per cent on $1,000,000 for 10 years, the transaction is regarded as about the best recorded in realty and financial circles in a long time. As security, the Mercantile Trust Co. has obtained two for one, it is said, the late James Campbell having purchased through Festus J. Wade, president of the trust company, the site and building or fee, for $2,000,000.

The Emporium Realty Co., of which Lorenzo E. Anderson is president, and Festus J. Wade vice-president, and which erected the Grand-Leader building, has a 99-year lease of the premises. The Campbell estate, according to the provisions of the lease, receiver an annual net rental of $80,000, or 4 per cent net on a valuation of $2,000,000. The annual net rental paid by the Grand-Leader to the Emporium company is $180,000.

Among the other large sharholders in the Emporium company, which was formed by the Mercantile Trust Co., are Charles A. Stix, Paul Brown, vice president of the Mercantile Trust Co. and a stock and bond broker; W. K. Bixby and Frank A. Ruf.

Stix originally held nearly 1600 shares of the Emporium, and, it is understood, has recently been making large purchases of the stock on behalf of the Stix, Baer & Fuller Dry Goods Co., of which he is president, and which operates the Grand Leader.

Kansas City Caught Napping.

The Mercantile Trust Co. some time ago loaned $1,000,000 at 6 per cent for the erection of a hotel in Kansas City. In this instance the Kansas City Bank and Trust Co. were caught napping, it is said. The loan, which is secured by a first mortgage on the ground and the improvement, valued at $2,000,000 will be distributed in serial coupon form with provisions for repayment in yearly installments.

The West End feature was the purchase by Olive E. Hussman of an apartment building at 5142 Waterman avenue, owned by Mrs. Eugene Epstein, wife of the real estate operator, for $40,000. The transaction was effected by Barngrover & Specht.

The building has large quadruple windows and porches in front, while the interior is commodious and attractive.

The building was built by Mrs. Epstein as an investment and is one of the finest and most substantial in the West End.

7690-ACRE RANCH IN TEXAS BOUGHT BY ST. LOUIS MEN

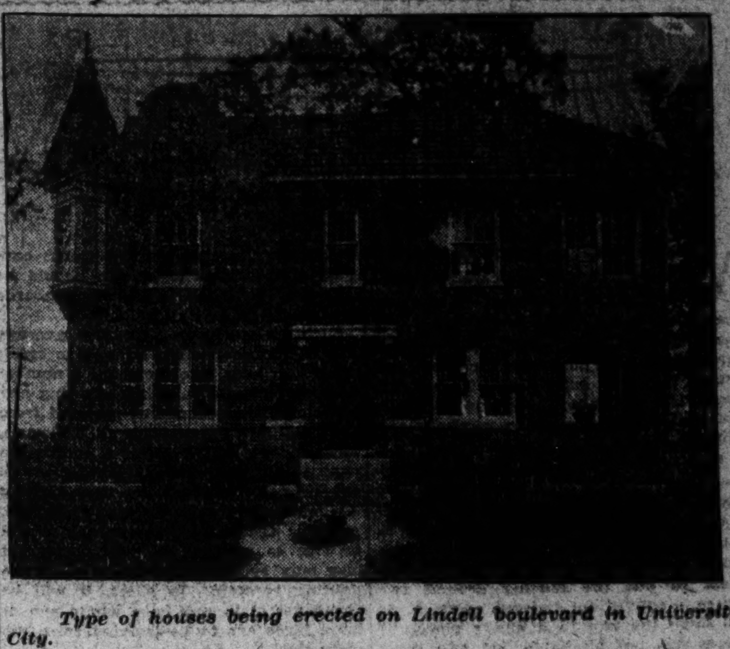
A syndicate controlled by the Frank L. Dittmeier Real Estate Co. has completed negotiations by which it acquires the title to 7690 acres of land in Brooks County, Tex. The sale was made for A. H. Breittenbach, an attorney with offices in the Title Guaranty Building; William A. Beste and others.

The land, which is located at Hebronville, has been acquired for a ranch. As part payment the Dittmeier syndicate transferred to Breittenbach and his associates 21 houses located in various parts of the city, the deal aggregating $200,000.

The location and description of the houses will be found in the real estate agents' reports.

New Houses in University City Have Novel Features



Type of houses being erected on Lindell boulevard in University City.

Clients of Franciscus & Kunz are completing four houses on Lindell boulevard west of Pennsylvania avenue, in University City, which are exciting general attention. The houses have been built from original plans and introduce some novel ideas. A feature is a massive stairway with a Romeo and Juliet balcony. Other features include sun parlors and sleeping porches and walks of the California style.

The houses have hardwood floors, tile baths, hot water facilities, butler's pantry and plenty of closets.

The grounds are embellished with landscape work with triple terraces, together with automobile drives.

While the houses comprise only eight rooms, they have the appearance of massive structures.

The houses are of gray mat and fern leaf brick, laid in white mortar struck down, giving it a thirteenth century effects. Saum architects designed and superintended the construction of the buildings.

The houses, which are in the Forsyth tract, command a view of Washington University.

SALESMEN TO GIVE EXCURSION

The Salesmen's Association of the Real Estate Exchange has chartered the steamer Belle of the Bends for a moonlight excursion on Friday evening, June 25. Cards announcing the attraction, also tickets, have made their appearance on Chestnut street. An unusually large attendance is expected. NEWS AND FEATURES OF THE POULTRY WORLD

SWAT-THE-ROOSTER MEANS BIG MONEY FOR POULTRYMEN

Plymouth Rocks, White Leghorn, White Orpington and Barred Rock Lead in Laying.

By C. T. PATTERSON,
Pathologist Missouri State Poultry Experiment Station at Mountain Grove, Mo.

The "swat-the-rooster" campaigns which have been carried on in Missouri have resulted in much good. May 15 was designated as "swat-the-rooster day," following which one produce firm in a Missouri town shipped a "henless" carload of poultry to an Eastern market, 3500 old boys being crowded into one car and sent on their way to the soup-house. This is only an example of what a number of dealers have done, yet the great volume of business was done by the hundreds of dealers who handled smaller numbers. The illustration given, however, is a good example of the amount saved to a community, even if that community was an entire county.

Three thousand five hundred male birds would eat practically the same amount of food that the same number of hens would. This number of hens, if kept till the last of next winter, the time of selling the males, under the old system, would produce enough eggs to pay for many good cockerels for breeders, which would not be related to the flocks. This is economy from the standpoint of feed, yet the greatest good comes through improving the quality of the eggs in summer because of the eggs being infertile.

Next in importance to "swatting the rooster" is disposing of the cockerels. Many of the youngsters are developing combs and beginning to crow, so that "swatting the rooster" is not effective unless these cockerels are disposed of in some way.

We find cockerels kept for three reasons: 1, for breeders; 2, to be used by the family for meat food, and, 3, to get more weight before they are sold.

Unwise to Keep Cockerels.

In the first case, breeders should not be selected to use in the same flock next year, and if the person is keeping them to sell as breeders, he should be prepared with yards so they will cause no trouble.

In the second case, it should be remembered that cockerels are considered perishable articles, for the reason that, after they pass a certain age, their value as a food decreases. Therefore, if they are to be kept and used as needed, they should be caponized. This will prove of value in three ways: Their value as a food increases as they get larger, they do not cause fertile eggs, and they do not fight with and injure the breeding males.

In the third case, where the cockerels are kept to increase their weight, it should be noticed that during the spring, when the greatest number of cockerels are getting ready for market, the price often drops so that, like many cases which have been noted, a cockerel weighing one and one-half pounds and worth 20 cents per pound, if kept for a few weeks weighs two and one-half pounds and is worth 12 cents per pound. It will be seen that it is worth just as much when it weighed one and one-half pounds as when it weighed two and one-half pounds. The time, labor and feed required to produce the last pound was lost.

Cull and Sell Unprofitable Hens.

As the hatching season is over and the young stock needs the room, it is advisable to cull out and sell all hens which are not profitable. The question which at once presents itself is, "How can this be done?" Many methods of selecting the best hens have been tried at this station, but the best method for the inexperienced person is the shank color test with yellow-legged varieties. Seventy-five tests were made during May with birds which had yellow shanks. Each flock was divided into three parts, one having bleached or white shanks, one having very light yellow shanks. It was found by consulting the records that to consider the ones with bleached shanks as 100 per cent, those with light yellow shanks were 79 per cent, and the bright yellow shanks 47 per cent.

The shank color test is the most reliable for telling the hens that have laid the most eggs in the past few months. It does not tell the reasons for the ones not laying nor does it tell which will do the most laying in the future, but simply tells those that have done the laying in the past, which is a good indication of the good hens.

Pullets Need Good Care.

One reason for reducing the number of old birds to a minimum at this season is that in many flocks both old and young run together. The young chicks when feathering are very sensitive and nervous. In fact, fowls at any age which have lost their coat of feathers and are growing another coat, seem to be very sensitive and do not wish to associate with other fowls, especially if there is an inclination to pick at them. This results in the young chicks staying at a distance from the flock at feeding time. Then, too, the mature stock select the best range. This results in the pullets being improperly nourished and they do not develop properly to make good winter layers. One of the most critical stages in the life of any hen is when she is developing the egg organs. This period is when the pullet is from 4 to 8 months of age, according to the breed, and is the time when she should receive the best of care, but often receives the poorest. By good care we do not mean she should be petted and pampered, but that she should have plenty of good, wholesome feed, roomy, sanitary roosting quarters with plenty of fresh air and no vermin.

Scaly leg, which is caused by a parasite working under the scales on the legs of the chickens, is usually contracted at this season of the year, while the chicks are roosting with their feet in the filth of a hover which is not properly cared for. It is easier to clean the hovers often than to cure the birds after they have contracted the disease. Should the birds contract the disease, we have found the following the most effective remedy: Equal parts lard and sulphur made into a salve and rubbed on the legs. This will cure the disease, but will not destroy the color of the legs.

Missouri Contest.

The hens which in the Missouri contest averaged about 17 eggs per hen during May, which is three eggs less than the average for April. This is accounted for by the great number of broody hens.

Some changes were made during May in the 10 highest pens. The three Plymouth Rock pens are still in the lead, although pen 38 takes second place and pen 40 takes third. Pens 34, 26 and 14 held their own; pens 46, 4, 47, 36 and 24 dropped back and pens 38, 2, 6, 10 and 28 moved forward. The highest pens for all time are as follow, in number of eggs: Pen 34, Barred Rocks, 614; pen 38, White Rocks, 608; pen 40, Barred Rocks, 600; pen 26, Buff Wyandottes, 590; pen 2, S. C. White Leghorns, 556; pen 6, S. C. White Leghorns, 556; pen 10, S. C. White Leghorns, 547; pen 14, S. C. White Leghorns, 547; pen 28, White Wyandottes, 544; pen 4, S. C. White Leghorns, 539.

Three of the five highest pens for May are Leghorns. They are as follow: Pen 0, S. C. White Leghorns, 121; pen 10, S. C. White Leghorns, 120; pen 6, S. C. White Leghorns, 115; pen 38, White Rocks, 114; pen 33, R. C. Reds, 113.

All five of the leading hens for all time hold the same places as in April. They are: Pen 4, hen 4, S. C. White Leghorn, 166; pen 14, hen 3, S. C. White Leghorn, 145; pen 38, hen 4, White Rock, 139; pen 40, hen 1, Barred Rock, 137; pen 23, hen 2, Buff Wyandotte, 134.

Pen 10, S. C. White Leghorns, won the cup for May, pen 0 not competing.

National Contest.

Only two of the 10 highest pens, 21 and 19, in the national contest, have held the same position as last month. Some have moved forward and others backward. The 10 highest pens for all time are as follows in number of eggs:

Pen 21, S. C. White Leghorns, England, 564; pen 1, S. C. White Leghorns, Pennsylvania, 549; pen 43, White Orpingtons, Missouri, 543; pen 75, Rhode Island Whites, Illinois, 530; pen 19, S. C. White Leghorns, England, 512; pen 2, S. C. White Leghorns, Pennsylvania, 502; pen 29 Black Leghorns, Georgia, 498; pen 70, White Rocks, Kentucky, 475; pen 63, Barred Rocks, Iowa, 470; pen 8, S. C. White Leghorns, Pennsylvania, 465.

Of the five highest pens for May, four are Leghorns, two Leghorn pens taking the place of two Plymouth Rock pens for April. The five highest pens for May are:

Of the five highest hens for all time, hen 2 in pen 1, and hen 473 in pen 75, changed places during May for fourth and fifth places. All others remain the same as in April. They are:

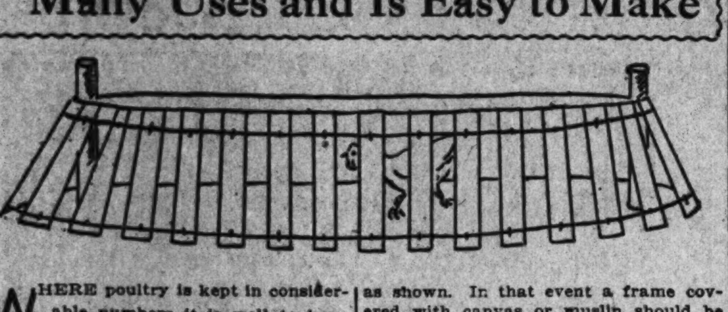
Pen 21, S. C. White Leghorns, England, won the cup for May by laying 111 eggs.

It will be noticed by considering the two contests together that the three highest pens for all time are Plymouth Rocks and the three highest hens for all time are, first, White Leghorn; second, White Orpington; third, Barred Rock.

Detention Pen for Poultry Has Many Uses and Is Easy to Make



WHERE poultry is kept in considerable numbers it is well to have an enclosure that might be called a "detention pen" for want of a better name. Even small poultry keepers would find good use for them and many do have such pens. The sketch herewith shows a good plan to make such a pen that is cheap, sanitary and quickly built.

The staves from a couple of lime barrels, two strands of smooth wire and a few staples are all the materials needed. The tops of the staves should be placed rather close together and the bottoms spread apart, to give room. It is best to put the fencing around two trees, a convenient distance apart, so as to have the pen in a shady place. If trees are not available, set two posts as shown. In that event a frame covered with canvas or muslin should be placed over the top, for shade, or boards laid over it will do as well.

Such an enclosure, for the average poultryman, can often be used to break up sitting hens, but there are a number of other uses for it. Birds showing any signs of illness cannot be removed from the flock too soon. Such an enclosure, in that case, will serve as a quarantine pen. It also may be used as a place to confine a hen with chicks, thus keeping her from straying away with the brood, while at the same time the chicks will be free to run out as they please. It also may be used as a place to confine fighting roosters. In short, it will be found useful in any case where one or more birds are to be isolated from the main flock.

SUNDAY POST-DISPATCH'S REVIEW OF MARKET CONDITIONS

SPECULATIVE ATMOSPHERE IN WALL STREET CLEARS AND STOCKS ARE HIGHER

Bethlehem Steel Is Strong Feature in the Week's Trading.

OUTLOOK IS BRIGHTER

Crop Conditions and Easy Money Are Good Bull Factors.

By Leased Wire From the New York Bureau of the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, June 12.—The Evening Post, in its copyrighted weekly financial review, today says:

"Even for these days when the plain citizen expects a new thrill, and get it, each time that he unfolds his daily paper and glances at the headlines, the present week has been crowded with matters of fresh interest.

"To no part of the community have they appealed more directly than to Wall street, which went home a week ago with a feeling of uncertainty as to how far the Government crop estimate would confirm the recent expert reports of disastrous damage to the winter wheat, with uneasiness over the vague rumors of Cabinet dissension and with apprehension, on the other hand, the President's second note to Germany might be needlessly bellicose, and on the other that it might make a humiliating retreat from our first position. All these considerations were reflected in the unusual hesitation of the Stock Exchange, and in the market's unwillingness to risk even a continuous rise in Steel on the Federal Court's decision.

Crop Outlook Is Good.

"The week has removed these several uncertainties in a striking way. It began with the very extraordinary Washington forecast of the wheat crop. No one of any long experience took it for granted that the fact of a June estimate, 50,000,000 bushels above even that of a year ago, insured a harvest that much above the record breaking yield of 1914. But it could not be wholly overlooked that last June's Government estimate of yield came within 9,000,000 bushels of the actual result, that the winter wheat crop, with its entirely satisfactory promise, is now very close to harvest, and that a very considerable impairment of the spring sown crop's condition will be possible, while still leaving the total yield as large as it was last year.

"Not the least interesting, as an expression of expert judgment on these probabilities, was the week's decline of nearly 12c a bushel in the Chicago price of wheat, to a figure no less than 62c below the season's top level of only two months ago. It is true that from the farming west, a note of something like misgiving has been sounded at this heavy depreciation in its chief staple of production. No one need lose any sleep over this contingency, however. The market's present movement is the perfectly natural reaction from a state of mind in which the grain trade was predicting that, by the end of June, Europe would have bought up for export all the wheat in the United States, leaving none for a home reserve. Nothing of the sort has happened, and the present fall in prices is what invariably occurs whenever such overdrawn expectations have been dispelled, and whenever the time is near at hand for the new crop to move to market.

Cash Price Low Last Year.

"It will not have been forgotten that the cash price fell to 86c exactly a year ago, with all the extraordinary market of the next 10 months ahead of it. So far as regards the immediate interests of the world—of our country as producer and exporter, and of Europe as consumer of foreign wheat on a possibly unprecedented scale—the existing situation of the American wheat crop is an incalculable benefit.

"It insures those belligerent states which are still in contact with our markets from the famine which might follow even the known conditions of their own grain fields trampled by the armies and their own husbandmen sent to war, and which would certainly follow a destructive spell of European weather in July or August, coming on top of this. For Germany and Austria it must be still admitted that this very formidable contingency, in the case of a harvest of their own like that of 1897, remains among the possibilities.

"As for the second note to Germany, and the situation created by it, Wall street has already passed its verdict by the enthusiastic rise of the past two days on the Stock Exchange. The firmness of the Government and the honor of the country, in whose maintenance the financial community has as great a stake as any other interest, is fully vindicated, and this is done in the manner of an exchange of communication between high-bred gentlemen, and in such language that the other party to the controversy, if he picks a quarrel or refuses the terms of reconciliation, must do so by openly rejecting allegiance to the principles of law, humanity and civilization. This happens when every other neutral state, notably those whose ships are still being ruthlessly destroyed by the infatuated German Admiralty, is watching to see how far Berlin will dare to go in repudiation of these principles. Berlin knows as well as Washington what that means.

"Of Mr. Bryan and the 'breach in the cabinet,' no more need be said than that this was the sensation of a single day. Twenty-four hours was quite enough for the Stock Exchange and the people at large to convince themselves that the Government at Washington had been vastly strengthened by the elimination of this absurd political personality. If the final vaudeville performance, by the gentleman who had to do his turn on the amusement platform when the Mexican situation was at the point of gravest crisis, had served no other purpose, it would at least have served to convince the sober observer, in and out of Wall street, that what has happened at Washington has in all respects happened for the best.

"Stocks closed the week higher after a period of early weakness. Bethlehem Steel gained 19¼ points. Yesterday's market was strong."

Banks Show Gain of $8,887,250 in Reserves.

NEW YORK, June 12.—The statement of the actual condition of clearing house banks and trust companies shows that they hold $195,156,800 reserve in excess of legal requirements. This is an increase of $8,887,250 over last week.

GOLD MOVEMENT FOR NEW YORK IS TO CONTINUE

LONDON, June 12.—Your President's note to Germany is considered to fit the situation precisely. Despite its quiet tone it has set the city at work conjecturing as to what results would be likely to follow actual severance of your country's relations with Germany.

It must again be said that thoughtful people here do not wish for such an outcome; but, if it were to happen, then we believe your real power for bringing the war to a satisfactory conclusion would rest in the financial assistance your people could render to the allies. Nevertheless, there is no disposition yet to seek for large increase in credits granted us by your market.

The movement of gold from Canada to New York, which reached large proportions this week, will continue. Lombard street expects that your market will eventually get all the gold now held in the Bank of England's Ottawa reserve, and more besides.

Gold Supply Is Large.

Our own home supply of gold will, however, be reinforced from various quarters. It is also believed that, when the allied armies resume the forward movement, and your own bank reserves become swamped with gold, your bankers will be impelled by force of circumstances to offer large credits to Europe, and possibly even to invest in British securities with an attractive interest rate.

The foremost problem here arises from recognition of what must be the ultimate effect of the prodigious waste of capital. Its solution requires drastic economy in the private expenditure of our people, and reduction of all importations other than strict necessities. But by no means the least serious of present difficulties is the curtailment of shipping facilities for ordinary trade. The labor question is another matter to be settled.

Beerbohm considers that the recent great decline in the price of wheat suggests caution in operations on the market. Without having precise details of acreage, he estimates that the 620,000,000 bushels which North America will probably be able to export this coming season, will more than equal the requirements of European importing countries, with Germany and Austria eliminated, and the other grain producing continents allowed for.

Those requirements Beerbohm estimates at 448,000,000 bushels for Great Britain, 208,000,000 for France, 72,000,000 for Belgium and Holland, 22,000,000 for Italy, 64,000,000 for other European states.

As to the probable price at which these shipments will be marketed, he points out the possibility that ocean freight rates may be lowered by the Government taking control of British shipping.

It has been definitely decided not to shorten London banking hours.

JULY COTTON AT 9.53C; FIRM AS THE WEEK ENDS

Low Price in Earlier Speculation Was 9.34c—Weather Is Good.

The cotton market made some gain during the past week, although for a couple of days, Wednesday and Thursday, it looked as if the future markets were in for a substantial decline. On those days July sold as low as 9.34c in New York. It closed yesterday at 9.53c. This flurry was caused by fear of complications in the political situation resulting from the message to Germany, and the resignation of the Secretary of State. The recovery was quick, however, and now there seems to be nothing of a political nature to affect cotton adversely. In fact, the continuance of the war and the likelihood of other countries entering the fight is generally looked upon as bullish.

The consumption of cotton is nearly normal in volume, such is the need of equipment and the demand for cotton for making explosives. Exports of cotton continue on a comparatively large scale, for the past week 79,909 bales, against 65,529 bales the same week last year, but there are signs of a falling off of the movement from the interior to the ports and the exports are at the expense of port stocks.

The total of cotton exported to Friday evening was 7,969,897 bales, compared with 8,723,423 bales to the same date last year. With seven weeks more ahead of us, the total exports for this season should easily mount to 8,500,000 bales; an average weekly export of a little over 70,000 bales would do this, and the port stocks would just about yield that much cotton for export and hold a comfortable surplus without calling on the interior.

Stocks Are Fairly Large.

Quite a large stock of cotton has accumulated in New York—about 232,000 bales; of this only about 87,000 bales are certificated, but since deliveries will be attempted without certification, a great part of this cotton may be for delivery on contract. It is generally believed that large tenders will be made against the fall months, which are selling at a comfortable premium over the nearby options. Whether the cotton is tendered or not, these distant options seem to be a good hedge against spots; by October the new crop will be moving freely and from 2,500,000 to 3,000,000 bales will have come into sight, to be added to the surplus carried over from this year.

The effect of the surplus during the first two or three months of the next season will depend largely on the disposition of the growers in marketing their product. Cotton opens faster than it can be gathered and the curtailment in acreage will not be felt during the first movement; in some cases the smaller crops have matured very rapidly and the early pick has been very large.

People who are selling the fall months indiscriminately have some recollection of cotton weighing heavily on the market during the fall movement. They should not forget, however, the season which is nearly past, for it has been a remarkable example of what sane marketing and systematic holding can do in the face of what seemed to be disastrous conditions.

The farmer is in good form and may realize that he has not yet reaped the real benefit of his holding, but that he may reap it this next fall. Whether he does or not depends entirely on himself. In his favor is the fact that money is plentiful and interest rates comparatively low, and the easier means of distribution places it nearer his hand.

While trade conditions are not uniformly good, in some lines conditions are very good and are improving, to the extent that this may offset in a great measure the dullness in other lines. The grain crops are again large and the proceeds of these crops added to the funds derived from the last crop, place the people of a large section of our country in an enviable position of ease, and their prosperity will extend over other sections.

Weather Map Is Good.

The weather througout the cotton growing districts is good. Northern Texas and Oklahoma sufered from too much rain for awhile, but the map is now clear and that territory is without rain. Reports indicate that the growing crop is progressing satisfactorily in other sections of the belt and the outlook is very satisfactory. Should the good weather continue and allow timely cultivation it will not only add to the crop but will reduce the cost of production, something that is to be wished during these lean years with the cotton plantor. The cost of production is a variable thing and does not always affect the market price of cotton, but it does always affect the welfare of the farmer and the farmer is coming in for a very large share of public interest.

In the spot markets buying has been rather active during the past week, but prices have not been as regular as might be wished; quotations do not always reflect the value of cotton, a condition due as much to the fact that the grade has declined as to the irregularity of demand.

Galveston, New Orleans and Houston have all advanced quotations during the week, and prices now, so far as middling quotations go, are about on a parity with those of Memphis, St. Louis, and the more Southern markets. Galveston is quoted steady, with middling at 9.25c, Houston at 9.15c, New Orleans at 9.25c, Memphis at 9.12c, St. Louis at 9⅛c, Augusta at 8.88c, Mobile at 8.75c, Savannah at 9.00c, Charleston at 9.00c, Wilmington nominal, with exporters bidding 8⅝c. The sales compare favorably with other years at this season.

CATTLE PRICES SHOW GAIN ON WEEK'S TRADING

Quotations Up 10c to 15c on Moderate Receipts; Lambs Are Strong.

RECEIPTS AT NATIONAL STOCKYARDS.

	Last week	Prev. week	Year ago
Cattle	14,078	14,504	22,514
Hogs	53,869	49,998	54,214
Sheep	17,163	18,439	35,600
Horses and mules	6,535	8,686	1,641

Inconsistent cattle receipts from Texas last week accounted for the general decrease in arrivals compared with a year ago. The native aggregate was about normal and all that was looked for. There was a right good supply of beef steers on sale all last week and quality was excellent. Choice to prime beeves featured the trade. These classes were in good demand and closed 10@15c higher. Medium and commoner classes were fully steady, a good sign in that at this time of the year they are generally lower, because of the competition with Texas steers. Both heavy beeves and yearlings reached $9.25 which was the top, and some 1625-pound steers, the heaviest offered, made $9.15. An eight car consignment of fed Texas steers in the native division set a new record at $8.90.

Supply of butcher cattle was moderate and while with the exception of one load of heifers, nothing prime was offered, yet quality was good. Strictly choice, light weight heifers were 15@25c higher and active at the advance. Medium and common kinds were fully steady. Best straight heifers topped at $9.00, while mixed yearlings reached $9.10.

Trade in cows showed no change at any stage of the week. All grades were in fair demand and sold fully steady. The same was also true of bulls. Best heavy bulls sold last week up to $7.50.

Vealers scored the largest advance of any class of cattle. A good supply was received and quality was excellent. Prices rapidly advanced until they were $1.00@1.25 higher. Top was $10.75, the highest for a long while.

Stocker and feeder trade was very satisfactory to the selling contingent. A moderate supply was received and with some country inquiry, the market each day was firm and active. Prices closed steady to strong.

On a couple of days last week, there were no Texas steers on sale. When there was, they found a good demand and while there was no material change in prices, still the market was firm and active. Order buyers aid the market, as they offered a good demand all week. Best steers sold up to $7.75, but there was nothing strictly choice on sale.

Hog Receipts Are Fair.

Hog receipts were just fair, but still the market was on a dull, draggy, weak basis most of the week and closed 15@20c lower than it opened. On Monday several loads went at $7.90, which was the highest price of the week, while today a few hogs sold at $7.75. Pigs and lights did not show any material loss; in fact, the good kinds were slightly higher at the close of the week.

Shippers and city butchers were operating freely all week, but the packers were hard to deal with and hammered prices, buying their hogs late in the day and always getting them around a dime or more under what similar grades were bringing early in the day. Packers were getting a-plenty of hogs at other markets at lower figures than they could purchase them here.

Eastern buyers sought out the good lights and pigs and purchased them quite rapidly, paying $7.60@7.85 for the good lights, while the fair grades went at $7.25@7.50, best pigs under 125 pounds $7.10@7.50, fair to medium ones $6.35@7 and common ones $5.75@6.25. Rough packers sold at $7@7.10.

With a moderate supply of sheep on sale the market advanced 25c, but at the same time it declined a like amount on lambs. A good share of the lambs came direct from the State of Tennessee, but still Missouri, Illinois and Kentucky furnished liberal numbers. The receipts for the week show quite a falling off as compared with the corresponding week of last year.

The fore part of the week best lambs were selling at $11.85@11.50, but at the close just as good were going at $11.25, while the fair grades were selling at $10@11 and the culls at $8@9.50. Two loads of choice clipped lambs found sale at $10.35, which is the highest price on record at this market. Other clipped lambs went at $9.25@10.

When the week opened the good handweight sheep were selling at $5.25 and the heavy offerings at $5, but towards the close of the week the best kinds were bringing $5.50, some at that price carrying considerable weight. Bucks sold at $4.50 all week, which is the same price they were bringing the previous week. Choppers went at $4@4.50, stockers $2.75@3.50 and canners $2.25@2.50.

Trade in horses last week was on a slow basis in the auction. Easterners were depended upon for the life of the ring and a lighter representation of these buyers than usual turned up. There were a good many on hand, including the Southeasterners and Easterners, but they were after light supplies, which naturally forced prices downward. Chunks and drafters were the only kinds that found sale, and these in the majority of cases suffered discounts. War horse trade was again the feature of the week's selling. There was the usual strong demand from this section and in general this trade was good. Belgians finished up their contract for ponies and they are now taking practically the same types as the French and British.

Mule trade last week was also slow. There was practically nothing doing in this line. A few orders were placed for miners and big mules of extra good quality, but aside from these the selling was light. Prices on these also were low and sellers are advising shippers to be overly cautious about their buying in the country.

The Government's prediction for 950,000,000 bushels of wheat in the United States on the next crop, compared with last year's record-breaker of 891,000,000 bushels, proved too much for the bulls to handle last week, and prices on active futures on the Merchants' Exchange lost 6c to 7c on the six-days' trading. At one time the September option dropped below the dollar mark, for the first time in nearly a year. Last February, at the crest of the war rise, May wheat sold at $1.62⅝ and July at $1.39⅝. Then the speculative trade was bullish and confident of $2 wheat. Now the sentiment is as unanimously bearish as it then was bullish, and some traders talk 85 cent wheat.

Aside from the Government report the week's developments were uniformly bearish, as is usually the case after a speculative orgie like the war market of last winter. Liverpool spot wheat declined over 15d during the week, and on one day showed the wide break of 7d to 9d. Foreign buying of American wheat was conspicuously absent, considering our recent wide price decline, and could only indicate one thing—that Europe in general, and especially England, largely overbought their needs in the big foreign demand last winter, and now are in a position where they can almost dictate their terms for future purchases of American wheat, especially if the present crop outlook here is maintained until harvest.

That it will be maintained seems assured, for despite the torrential rains over the winter wheat belt recently, and reports of some loss by floods and too much water, the deluge has been if anything a blessing in disguise, as conditions were shaping themselves for the greatest Hessian fly scare the country ever experienced, and the small losses by rain have been infinitesmal compared to what they would have been from bug damage. The crop to some extent has been delayed over a wide area by rains, but a few days of growing weather should fairly make it leap towards maturity. The weather forecast indicated this kind of weather for the present week.

Aside from the favorable crop outlook and weak technical position of the market following the big war advance, there are factors in the situation that may exert an unusual influence on values in the next few months.

The diplomatic situation appears to be drifting into a position where some definite move for peace in Europe may occur within the next 60 or 30 days. It is apparent after nearly a year of fighting that neither side has gained a decided advantage, and the world is growing sick of war and its losses.

Credit of the fighting nations is being strained to the extreme limit, and unless Europe is to be exhausted financially and physically by a continuation of the conflict, it would seem that the time is fast approaching when some overtures for peace could be made.

The present diplomatic correspondence between the United States and Germany may be the means whereby the opening of negotiations between the warring nations may be brought about, and once the first step towards peace has been taken, there is little doubt but that all neutral nations will bring their influence to bear for a settlement to the present difficulties.

Peace Would Break Market.

Peace would mean low-priced wheat, at least temporarily, or until Russia's supplies had found a market, and the American surplus wheat worked off. For Europe's buying power would be materially lowered for a long time to come, and strict economy even in foodstuffs would be absolutely necessary at least over the next crop year.

It is these factors that have helped depress wheat to its present level. It is not only what has happened in the crop that is about to be harvested, but what might happen in the speculative "pits" should peace come during the summer. It will be interesting to watch the movement of the futures market in the next 60 to 90 days.

Corn futures showed independent strength, and after some early selling, rose sharply. Continued wet weather is said to be not only making the crop decidedly backward over a large area of the Southwest and in Iowa, but is also causing much replanting at a season when full growth should be close at hand.

Receipts continue to run light in all primary markets, and the cash demand was unusually strong as the week closed, with prices in the principal markets 1c to 1¼c higher. Exporters were in the market in the latter days of last week, and despite the wide break in spot in Liverpool, spot corn was comparatively firm. Oats were irregular, but closed fairly steady in sympathy with corn.

NEW YORK, June 12.—Announcement was made today that the American Smelting and Refining Co. has advanced the price of lead from 6¾ to 7 cents.

WET WEATHER IS BULL CARD IN CORN PIT

CHICAGO, June 12.—Fear of damage from heavy rains northwest had a good deal to do with an advance in the value of wheat. The market closed strong at ⅝c to 1¼c above last night. Corn gained 1 to 1⅛@1¼c; oats finished unchanged to ¼c higher; and provisions down 2½@5c to 27½c.

For the first time this season anxiety as to the spring crop became the leading influence affecting the wheat market. The fact was generally appreciated that the next few weeks would be a critical time in the spring wheat belt and that excessive moisture formed an element of danger, especially as 12 hours' downpour throughout Minnesota and the Dakotas was said to have followed almost daily rains since the beginning of May. There was also a renewal of misgivings in regard to the effect of recent frosts in the northwest.

Most of the strength from these sources showed itself in the last hour of the session. Quite a severe break in the wheat market preceded the final bulge. An upward tendency at the start was for a while more than offset by news that harvest had begun in Kansas, with weather of an unexpectedly favorable sort, which promised to continue until after Sunday at least.

Subsequently, rumors of European buying of new crop winter grades helped to bring about a rally.

Bulls controlled the corn market from the outset. Adverse crop reports from Iowa and Nebraska were emphasized by similar advices from other states, notably from Missouri. Demand from the seaboard grew much more liberal and country offerings diminished.

Of oats, the feature was selling pressure on the September delivery. Several big commission houses led the bear attack on that option.

Low prices for hogs weakened provisions. On the decline, packers came to the support of lard and ribs, but seemed to neglect pork.

GOVERNOR SLATON WARNED AGAINST MERCY FOR FRANK

Ex-Gov. Brown Sees Danger of Lynch Law if Decisions in Case Are Reversed.

DORSEY TO BE HEARD

Solicitor Who Prosecuted Condemned Man to Oppose Clemency.

ATLANTA, Ga., June 12.—Gov. Slaton will resume Monday the hearing of arguments in the final appeal for commutation to life imprisonment of Leo M. Frank, sentenced to die on June 22 for the murder of Mary Phagan. Solicitor Dorsey who prosecuted Frank and is opposing clemency for him will then present a written brief and make an oral argument and Frank's attorneys will have an opportunity to reply.

The first day's hearing before the Governor closed at 1 o'clock this afternoon, when Dorsey asked for time to prepare his brief. The Governor showed, by his questions, that he intended to go exhaustively into the evidence before making up his mind. He will visit, it was announced, the pencil factory where the girl was killed.

The principal argument to-day against clemency was made by former Gov. Joseph M. Brown. He said: "Georgia has one law for all men—Christian and Hebrew—alike, and all men must obey it. Your Excellency, if you wish to invoke lynch law—to weaken, if not destroy, trial by jury in this State—you can do it by reversing all the courts' decision in this case."

No New Evidence Presented.

Former Congressman W. M. Howard, who appeared for Frank, said he would not present new evidence or introduce new witnesses, but would rely on the record in the case and the evidence already laid before the Georgia Prison Commission.

In reply to a question by Gov. Slaton, Howard said he was willing to accept the testimony of the State chemist, Dr. R. Harris, and other State witnesses as to the violence committed against the Phagan girl prior to the murder.

"Where do you say Mary Phagan was killed?" the Governor asked.

"I think the blow was struck on the first floor of the pencil factory, as she came down the steps from the second floor," replied Howard. "Then, being stunned, I think she was taken to the basement, where she was further attacked and the actual murder accomplished. The record, however, is rather blank as to how she got into the basement."

Allegations Declared Overthrown.

Howard read 19 allegations made against Frank by the prosecution, independent of the testimony of Conley.

"Every one of the circumstances and allegations contained in these points," he declared, "we have disproved or refuted with satisfactory explanation."

"Excepting the testimony of Conley," suggested the Governor.

"So, if we are to accept Conley's story as true we have no case here whatever," replied the lawyer.

At the close of Howard's address, speakers from the Marietta delegation, in charge of former Gov. Brown, argued against Frank's appeal. These included Solicitor Clay of Cobb County and M. M. Sessions. The latter read resolutions protesting against "outside interference with the courts of law in Georgia," recently adopted by a mass meeting at Marietta.

Word Mercy Not in Constitution.

Brown presented the closing argument for his delegation. Speaking of the late Judge Roan's letter, he said that nowhere in the letter did the jurist say he believed Frank was innocent. He only expressed a doubt as to guilt. "I want to say," he continued, "that the word mercy cannot be found in the Constitution of Georgia. Nor is it found in the Bible except it [illegible] with jusice."

Clay contended that the verdicts of Georgia juries, unless shown by new evidence to be wrong, should be upheld by the chief executive, "regardless of petitions from persons outside the State." No such new evidence, he declared, had been presented in the Frank case.

GERMANY BELIEVED TO BE STILL RECEIVING SUPPLY OF COTTON

Reported That There Is Sufficient on Hand to Warrant to Continuing Industry Under Restrictions.

LONDON, June 12.—Reuter's Telegram Co. has received a dispatch from its agent at Amsterdam who quotes a copy of the Berlin Vossiche Zeitung, received there, declares the raw material department of the War Office, in conference with representatives of the cotton industry, has come to the conclusion that there is sufficient cotton stock on hand to warrant the continuing the cotton industry under certain restrictions. This condition obtained in spite of the entrance of Italy into the war.

The publication of this dispatch in London this afternoon brought the comment that it seemed to support the contention advanced recently in the House of Commons by Walter Runciman, president of the Board of Trade that Germany has been receiving supplies of cotton in spite of efforts to prevent it.

War Has Cost Norway 29 Vessels.

LONDON, June 12.—The Exchange Telegraph Co. has received a dispatch from its correspondent at Copenhagen who says that the Norwegian War Insurance Bureau announces that Norway has lost 29 vessels since the outbreak of the war, with a total valuation of $7,500,000.

NAVAL ACADEMY COMMANDER MAY BE PUT ON TRIAL

Intimated, That Rear Admiral Fullam Sought to Control Testimony of Cadets.

ANNAPOLIS, Md., June 12.—That Rear Admiral Fullam, superintendent of the naval academy himself, probably will be made a defendant in the proceedings before the Court of Inquiry investigating irregularities in connection with examination papers was indicated by today's testimony.

Presidents of three classes of midshipmen gave practically the same testimony to the effect that at a conference with the superintendent after seven midshipmen had been recommended by him for dismissal for cheating in examinations, Admiral Fullam said that if the Navy Department did not back him up in the matter of the previous investigation he would be inclined to resign. He further remarked that he would rather go to sea in command of a collier than stay at Annapolis under such circumstances.

Honor Man on Stand.

There were four presidents and a president elect of the new first class present at this conference. The three who were cross-examined today by counsel for the defendant midshipmen concerning this conference were Ensign Richard R. Adams, president and "Honor" man of the recently graduated first class, who was the first witness to testify that he had heard the Admiral make the statement attributed to him.

Midshipmen H. B. Broadfoot, president of the former second class, and B. R. Holcome, president of the new first class, testified to having heard the Admiral make the statement.

Capt. Russell, president of the court, asked Broadfoot what took place when he reported at the office of Superintendent Fullam the morning prior to coming to court. Broadfoot said he did not see the superintendent but his aide, Lieut. Manley warned him that if he allowed himself to become a defendant and accepted the counsel of the present defendants, he would assume the status of those defendants. He was asked if anything had been said about putting him under arrest and replied in the negative.

"Did Lieut. Manley discuss or attempt to discuss with you your testimony to be given before this court?" Capt. Russell asked. To this there also was a negative reply.

Warned by Admiral.

Several midshipmen have testified, in cross-examination by counsel for the seven original accused midshipmen that Admiral Fullam had warned them not to become associated with the seven defendants who are under arrest.

Broadfoot, in his testimony, said that he and his classmates considered that L. P. Wessell and T. W. Harrison Jr., members of their class who were recommended for dismissal, were honest and that their honesty never had been questioned. He thought they ought to have been put on the stand as principals, rather than as witnesses, at the investigation made by the Board of Officers before they were recommended for dismissal.

Asked if he thought he could speak for his class mates, as to their present feeling in the matter, he replied in the affirmative. The sentiment was that they would be going out of the service for the same thing that 40 per cent of the class did.

Broadfoot said he had seen a copy of the "dope" going around but did not pay any attention to it because it seemed too far advanced.

"We place most of the blame upon the man who came over here (to the language of the department) and got these examinations," said Broadfoot. "He was the one who got us into the whole trouble because most of us thought we were only getting the regular kind of 'dope'."

Midshipman Holcombe said the instructor in his section Prof. des Garennes was in the habit of giving the section advance information in examinations, such as the fact that there would be no verbs or that there would be no dictation. That was called legitimate "dope." But he believed that if any professor knew what the actual questions in an examination were to be he would refuse to give out information concerning them.

SUES OLD FRIEND OVER STOCK DEAL; GETS JUDGMENT

Otto Kulage Brings Action for $14,500 Against Former Partner, F. J. Remmers.

A verdict for $2958.48 was returned yesterday by a jury in Circuit Judge Grimm's court in favor of Otto Kulage of 1904 East College avenue against his former partner in the brick business, Frederick J. Remmers of 3635 Cook avenue. The trial disclosed that the two men who had been friends for 40 years, fell out about a stock deal, which culminated in Kulage taking the case to court.

He alleged that on Jan. 1, 1905, he assigned 29 shares of stock of the Carthage Marble & Granite Co. to Remmers and that the latter agreed to pay for the stock upon demand but failed to do so. Plaintiff estimated the value of the stock, with interest, at $14,500, for which amount he asked judgment. Kulage had bought the stock three years before from the defendant's adopted son, Harry J. Remmers, paying $3000 for it, he said.

Says Stock Was Practically Stolen.

Frederick Remmers testified in defense he transferred the stock to his adoptd son in 1896, to be held in trust, and the latter was not authorized to dispose of it. "The stock was practically stolen from me," he testified. "It was taken out of my safe in my house." The witness said he had been deceived by the foster son.

On the face of the transaction it did not appear tho stock was held in trust, but Remmers said when he told Kulage the stock was not Harry Remmer's actual property, Kulage surrendered it. According to the defendant there was an adjustment between him and Kulage five years ago which any claim of the latter on account of the unpaid stock was satisfied.

Both Had Consulted Priests.

Evidence was brought out that Remmers had consulted three priests about the case and was advised he was not morally liable for the alleged debt. He explained he sought such advice because the stock had been stolen from him and he did not think he should have to pay to get it back. The witness also testified he admitted to F. A. Hobein, of counsel for the plaintiff, he was legally bound to pay if the law was as Hobein stated it. He said Kulage also had talked with a priest about the case.

The jury's verdict was based on the probable market value of the stock at the time Kulage transferred it to Remmers. One witness testified that in 1903 a 4 per cent dividend was paid on the stock and the next year the dividend increased to 60 per cent. Another witness said he had endeavored to dispose of some of the stock of the company, which is a close corporation, shortly after the 60 per cent dividend and was unable to sell it at par.

DEAF AND BLIND GIRL TO TAKE PART IN GRADUATING EXERCISES

The graduation exercises of St. Joseph Deaf Mute Institute, 901 North Garrison avenue, will be held Wednesday morning, beginning at 9 o'clock. One of the participants will be Florence Weisenberger, the deaf and blind girl, 15 years old, who, like Helen Keller, has learned to read and to speak articulately.

A flag drill and a first lesson in lip reading will be given by the youngest pupils, and a wand exercise, piano music, lip reading and speech, by children, formerly mute, will be features of the exercises. The Rev. P. J. Mahan, S. J., will deliver an address.

The three graduates, who will receive gold medals, are Remina Mills, Frances Rau and Helen Silver.

SECRETARY GARRISON PRESENTS DIPLOMATS TO WEST POINTERS

Emphasizes the Value of Tradition in His Addres to 168 Graduates.

WEST POINT, N. Y., June 12.—Secretary of War Garrison presented diplomas today to 168 graduates of the military academy at the annual graduation exercises of the institution and delivered an address, in which he emphasized the value of tradition.

"To be honorable, valorous, truthful, fair and just in your dealings," he said, "and ready to sacrifice all for your country, are the traditions which were handed on to you and will be handed by you to those who follow.

"While traditions are of course valuable in civil life, they are trebly valuable in the career which you have chosen. You are conspicuously placed, and represent your country. Lamentable as are the lapses of the citizen, they are not so conspicuous nor so damaging as are lapses on the part of officers of the army of the United States. You have undertaken a great responsibility. You may be called upon at any time to demonstrate your worth; and upon your conduct may depend issues of vital moment to your country."

ARBITRATION REFUSED BY CHICAGO STREET CAR MEN

Employes Consider Request to Delay Calling of Strike Until Monday.

CHICAGO, June 12.—Mayor William Hale Thompson apparently made little progress today in his efforts to avert the threatened strike of employes of the street car and elevated companies. The employes declined to submit to arbitration and insisted upon their original demand for an increase in wages. The street car officials offered to arbitrate the dispute and asked that no strike be called until a meeting of the Board of Directors is held Monday to finally pass on the quetsion.

The labor leaders said they would notify the Mayor if it was decided to postpone action until Monday. If the men refuse it is believed a strike on all the surface and elevated roads may be called Sunday night.

We wish to express our sincere thanks to Rev. E. Shea and Rev. T. Ritchie, relatives and many sincere friends; especially to Kain Council, Knights of Columbus; Marquette Council, Royal Arcanum; Branch No. 230, C. K. and L. of A., and advisory Catholic Knights and Ladies of America for the kindness and sympathy shown us in the loss of my dear husband and father.

MRS. JOHANNA MESSING AND SON.

Card of Thanks.

We wish to extend our sincere thanks to all our relatives and friends, especially to the employes of the Christopher and Simpson iron works and members of the St. Louis Police Department, for their kindness and sympathy shown us in our late and sad bereavement in the loss of my dear son and our brother; also the Rev. Dr. Simon of Jesus Church for his consoling words, also for the beautiful floral offerings.

MRS. K. WOEGER AND CHILDREN. (c)

Card of Thanks.

We wish to extend our sincere thanks to all our relatives and friends for the kindness shown us in our late sad bereavement in the loss of our only dearly beloved daughter, Mary Pease (nee Vogel), who died suddenly in Chicago, Ill., June 8, 1915. We especially thank the Rev. Clergy of the Holy Trinity Church, the pallbearers, also to Undertaker John Deiss, and for the many beautiful floral offerings.

MRS. BARBARA VOGEL MERKER, Mother.

PETER MERKER, Father.

Chicago, New York and Cleveland (O.) papers please copy. (c)

Card of Thanks.

We wish to extend our sincere thanks to our many relatives and friends for the sympathy shown us in our late bereavement in the loss of our dear wife and sister, Senna Adams. We thank the Rev. A. S. Webb, pastor of Bell's Chapel Baptist Church of Olin, Ill., for his kind words of consolation; also the pallbearers, the undertaker, Harris McKohn of St. Louis, Mo., and George Hartwell of Olin, Ill., for their services. We thank the members of Queen Elizabeth Court No. 6 of Brooklyn, Ill., and friends for the beautiful floral offerings.

OSSIE ADAMS, Husband, AND SISTERS OF THE DECEASED.

In Memoriam.

In loving memory of our dear mother, Mrs. Sarah Dugal, who departed this life June 13, 1914. Just one year ago you left us; how we miss you Mother Dear. You are gone but not forgotten by the ones who loved you dear. Sadly missed by son and daughters.

In Memoriam.

In memory of my dear wife and our dear mother, Mary Huckshold, who departed this life 10 years ago, June 14, 1905.

A precious one from us has gone,
A voice we loved is stilled,
A place is vacant in our home
Which never can be filled.

FRED HUCKSHOLD AND CHILDREN.

In Memoriam.

In memory of our beloved mother, Caroline Deppe, who departed this life June 14, 1914.

The depths of our sorrow we cannot tell
At the loss of our mother we loved so well
And while she lies in peaceful sleep
Her memory we shall always keep.

Sadly missed by children.

LOUIS AND WALTER DEPPE,
MRS. HELEN CLUCAS.

In Memoriam.

In loving remembrance of Gus Echterhoff, who crossed the Great Divide June 13, 1913:

In the graveyard softly sleeping,
Where the flowers gently wave,
Lies the one I love so dearly
In his lonely, silent grave.

You will never be forgotten.
Never shall your memory fade;
Loving thoughts will always linger
Round the grave where you are laid.

Sadly missed by his WIFE, SON, MOTHER AND SISTER.

In Memoriam.

In loving remembrance of my dear husband and our father and brother, Michael Kissel, who departed this life one year ago, June 9, 1914.

Father, we miss you everywhere,
Miss your advice, love and care;
Faithful father, so kind and true,
We always pray and think of you.
You're not forgotten in our minds,
To us you were so good and kind;
We meekly kneel beside thy bier
And plant a chosen flower there.
In whose love we have been blessed,
Sweetly, calmly may he rest.

Sadly missed by
WIFE, DAUGHTER AND SISTER. (c)

In Memoriam.

In loving remembrance of my dear husband and father, Wenzel Hubel, who departed this life one year ago, June 8, 1914.

Sad and sudden was the call
For my dear husband, who was loved by all;
We little thought that on that day
That my dear husband would be called away.
We could not realize what was said
When the message came that he was dead;
But God, who loved him best,
Has taken him home to rest.

Sadly missed by
WIFE AND SONS.

In Memoriam.

Of our dear husband and father, William Boehmer, who died June 14, 1914.

Just one year ago today.
Since our dear father passed away;
We saw him suffer, heard his sighs,
With aching heart and weeping eyes
We saw him sinking hour by hour,
Yet could not stay death's awful power.
But now he calmly sleeps at last,
All pains, all aches, all suffering past

HIS LOVING WIFE AND CHILDREN.

DEATHS

In Memoriam.

In memory of Julius J. Hassfurther, who departed this life June 13, 1914.

Within this lonely home I sit bewildered in my grief,
Or walk beneath the burden of my doubt,
Striving with little to do and bear
Since time is left, with daylight blotted out.

Oh, father, how we miss your coming footsteps,
The voice we loved is stilled forever,
Forsaken and forgotten we are.
The world knows little of our sorrow
That lies within our hearts concealed,
Home is not what it used to be since you are gone.

Whenever I close the door at night,
And turn the creaking key about,
A pang renewed assails my heart,
I think our darling father is shut out.

Sadly missed by
HIS WIFE AND SON.

THE RIGHT WAY TO SELL REAL ESTATE

Selling real estate is an advertising problem—for either owner or agent to work out. Some of the real estate advertised today will be sold as a direct result of yesterday's or today's publication of the ads—much of it is likely to be. Yet some of these ads will find buyers only after repeated appearances. Get the greatest amount of publicity for your offers by having them listed in the Post-Dispatch big House, Home and Real Estate Directory.

LOST and FOUND

Solid agate, 10c line, minimum 20c.

THAT LOST ARTICLE MAY NOT BE FOUND TODAY

Or tomorrow or next week. In fact, a month or more may elapse before it turns up. A little persistency may be necessary. Often the article may be unfound; often fear of prosecution or hope of more satisfactory reward may delay the restoration. Then the belated awakening of the finder's conscience explains many delays. But persistency and Post-Dispatch wants will usually recover a lost article if an honest person finds it. The service of the Post-Dispatch Lost and Found Bureau is also enlisted in behalf of advertisers. (98)

5000 MILES MORE FROM YOUR OLD TIRES

Here is the most revolutionary idea in the history of the tire industry. It makes your rim-cut, tread-worn, junk casings good for another whole season, and at a very small cost to you.

Go to the junk pile, get out your old casings, bring them in at once—and we will turn them into puncture and blowout proof casings. Blow-outs, stone bruises, etc., will be charged accordingly.

Write for circular and price list. Send postal and a representative will call. Call us up or come in with your old casings. Agents wanted in all small cities.

Phones: Central 151; Bomont 1180.

FOR SALE—1,000,000 or more copies of two beautiful new songs which should be in every home in the United States. They are: "Answer to Silver Threads Among the Gold," and "America Our Fatherland." "Answer to Silver Threads Among the Gold" is a love song, not of sensual love, but of divine love, the words are beautiful, the harmony is perfect; no better song was ever written. "America Our Fatherland" is a patriotic song and should be in every home and schoolroom in America; an American patriotic song, arranged in quartet, words and music composed and arranged by Amos L. Colman, an American-born citizen. The words are not of that sort of patriotism that calls for war, but the patriotism that expresses that intense love for our home and country. One copy of each of these songs will be sent postpaid to any address for 25c, or one copy of either of them for 15c. Address Amos L. Colman, De Soto, Mo.

Are You

Contemplating building a suburban home? If so, the following will surely interest you. I have a deep lot which has 100 foot front; covered with beautiful trees, in a well-restricted section of Webster Groves. It is located in a section which is rapidly developing, being built up with beautiful new modern homes, the average cost of which are in the neighborhood of $6000 or $7000. There is not a better building site in Webster. It is convenient to churches of all denominations, public schools, parochial schools, street cars and trains. I will sacrifice this lot for $21 a foot and would like to sell it immediately. Call me up today and I will be glad to show you property.

A WORD to Prospective Home Buyers

READ THIS

A little over a year ago I purchased the old Beyert homestead, comprising over 10 acres, on the northeast corner of Natural Bridge and Euclid avenues, and which is one of the most beautifully located tracts of ground in St. Louis. It is one of the highest points in the city, thereby insuring fresh air and healthfulness; it is served by the Natural Bridge car line with a 30-minute service to Sixth and Washington avenue, and which connects with all cross-town lines east of Union avenue.

I have subdivided this beautiful tract and am now building it up with high-class medium priced bungalows and cottages, something different from anything yet built in St. Louis; true California bungalows, with 5 and 6 rooms on the first floor, and equipped with every modern convenience for comfort and pleasure. Large porches and sun parlors are especial features of these modern homes. Hardwood floors, Dutch dining rooms, French doors, old-fashioned tile fireplaces with chimney seats are other attractive features of these buildings; cedar clothes closets, linen closets, china closets and steel wall safes with combination locks are further attractions that will interest you.

Twenty-one of these buildings have already been erected, several of which are completed and sold. Others are just receiving the interior finish and will be ready for occupancy within a few days. The type of architecture is varied and pleasing, being calculated to satisfy every taste. All buildings have heavy 13-inch walls laid in cement mortar with high ceilings, to insure coolness in summer; plenty of space is allowed between buildings, so that all rooms are light and airy. There are also other attractive features too numerous to mention, which must be seen to be appreciated. Come out today and look over these beautiful properties. You will find the prices lower than others are asking for houses that do not compare with these in any way, while the terms are easy and will be made to suit. See these beautiful homes today. Salesman on the grounds. Take Natural Bridge car to Euclid avenue.

The Silent Sales-Producer

There is only one sure-fire Ames Place salesman—the ground itself.

We do our best with a prospect—show him how $160,000 have been spent on improvements—convince him that no similar lots are for sale at anywhere near $60 a foot—prove to him that 1915 is the year to build cheaply—demonstrate our easy plan for financing a high-class home——

But when he finally buys, we know what sold him.

It was what Ames Place told his eyes.

Isn't it worth a nickel or a half-pint of gasoline to investigate this?

Motor through Parkview or take University Car to Trinity Av. and listen to a silent selling talk from

If You're Interested in the price on any particular lot or want an outline of our "Easy to build" plan, see our salesman. He is in his office at Trinity and Berlin Avenues every afternoon including Sunday.

MAN-TO-MAN TALKS WITH BOB

By Berton Braley

Number Twelve — THE ART OF "MIXING"

HELLO, Bob.

Say didn't you see that fellow nod at you just as I came up? Seemed to know you.

Oh, you didn't bother to speak to him—he's only your barber?

For the Love of Mike and Commonsense and plain Americanism, Bob, don't get the highfalutin' idea in your head that you're too good to speak to Anybody.

It's the bunk—and it can't do you anything but harm.

I'm not suggesting that you take the barber or the bootblack or the waiter and make a bosom pal of him, or introduce him to your girl friends, or get him invitations to the dances you attend—he'd be uncomfortable and so would you; but I'm just hinting that any human being decent enough to serve you at honest work is decent enough for you to speak to—if you know him.

Naturally a man will meet with some people in the course of his lifetime whom he hates and despises and he may have to deal with them nevertheless—those are the only kind of folks I think you're justified in giving the glassy glance. And I'm a little bit doubtful as to the advisability of cutting even such as they.

Which leads me, more or less logically—seeing as how I like the sound of my own voice—to dissertate on Democracy, Society, et al. And if I were asked for the Masterword to express what I consider the best possible procedure for a young man in the Great World, I'd say that word is:

"MIX!"

Which doesn't mean mix with the rummies whose habitual posture is a right foot slightly elevated to rest on a brass rail and whose fingers are congenitally curled about a glass—and it doesn't mean to spend your nights "seeing Life" at the expense of your health, your money and your self-respect. Nope. What I mean by mix is to mix with all kinds of people a little, and with people who Think, a lot.

And all the People Who Think don't wear glasses and aren't college professors or Ph. D.'s. Sometimes your much educated person lives his life by formulae and never really thinks at all.

But if you'll be simple and democratic and human with the street car conductor and the janitor of the apartment and the cop on the beat and the plumber you ride uptown with, and the carpenter who's fixing the partitions of the office, you'll get an idea of how the Great World about you is really going and what the hard-working folks who make it go are thinking, and you'll pick up a heap of miscellaneous information which will add to your education and your interest in life.

You never can tell what acquaintances may do for you. Opportunity knocks at your door a lot oftener when plenty of people are willing to tell her where you live. And if you're decently responsive and openminded with every man, woman and child—rich or poor—you come in contact with, you'll make friends and acquaintances wherever you go. Some of them won't do you any particular good, but none of them—if you watch your step—will do you any harm.

And some day, when the game's going hard and life's all awry and there ain't no use in nuthin' nohow, somebody you've met in your genial mixing will step up with a cheery word, or a warm handshake or a job, and turn on the sunshine again. So, viewed simply from the cold, commercial standpoint, it pays to mix.

But that, to my way of thinking, is too sordid a way of looking at it. I believe a man should be a mixer because he learns more, lives more largely, grows kinder, broader and more democratic, gets a better and clearer understanding of humanity—well, I think a man should be a mixer because it makes him a Regular Human Being. So don't let me see you pass up that barber again!

The Greatest Decade of Inventions

BY THE EDITOR OF THE SCIENTIFIC AMERICAN

THE most significant event in the annals of human achievement was the invention of the steam engine. Its introduction divided recorded time into two distinctly defined eras, and it may well be said that the entire history of man's material endeavors counts forward or backward from that comparatively recent event. The jump from manual to power operations, which typifies the two eras, was nothing short of cataclysmic, and profoundly affected and stirred mankind in all its relations to an extent inconceivably greater than any political change or decision in battle that is ordinarily cited by the historian to mark the beginning of a new epoch.

As soon after this event as distracted civilization could be released from the stifling bondage of incessant warfare, the problem of applying this mighty agency to the needs of man began in earnest—with an energy, capacity, and genius never ceasing and never before equaled. Thus was inaugurated the age of machinery, of invention, of industrialism—an age vitally different from all that preceded it and during which the basis of society was more completely altered and the economic and political structure more fundamentally revolutionized than in all the preceding centuries of civilization put together.

Of the ten decades which may be roughly stated as covering this notable period of development, not one has failed to contribute its quota toward the sum of great inventive achievements. Each and every decade has seen the origin of some transcendent act for the advancement of material civilization.

The decade most fraught with achievement up to the invention of the telephone, was the 1840-1850 period, during which the reaper, vulcanization of rubber, sewing machine, and telegraph were perfected. These inventions, by far the most notable of the decade, were all American and marked the culmination of Yankee ingenuity. It is safe to assert that no other people in any equal short span of time can point to a record of accomplishments so marvelous and so revolutionizing, industrially and socially.

The decade beginning with 1870 was also notable—the telephone, the dynamo, and the arc lamp appeared and gave the first indications of the coming part electricity was to play in the affairs of mankind.

But the ten years beginning with 1880 saw an outburst of inventive activity that dwarfed all similar periods in the history of invention. It seemed that the discoveries in things electrical in the last three or four years of the previous decade were the signal for loosing the pent-up genius of the world.

The trolley car, which has changed the face of urban civilization; the incandescent light, with its more powerful and healthier glow and more adaptable use; the automobile, the most distinctive feature of our time; the typewriter, the most indispensable instrument in modern business; the skyscraper, the delineator of the new skyline of American business centers; and the cash-register, that ubiquitous instrument and first aid to honesty—to pick out the most obvious of the innovations that proclaim the age—all of these came into being or were first whipped into shape in the ten pregnant years beginning with 1880.

Before 1880 electricity was sparingly used—the first central station for arc lighting had just been established in 1879. Its recognition as a source of energy for universal lighting, for propulsion, for power, and for heating—for all the large and vital uses it could be put to—was a matter of speculation, and not one of expectedly near realization. No one, even of the wildest imaginings, could have dreamed of the transformation so close at hand. But before this census period closed the electric incandescent lamp was incontestably established, the trolley car was successfully introduced, the central station for power distribution and the polyphase motor for stationary work began to show their revolutionizing possibilities, and the first electric furnace was put into successful commercial operation.

All the big problems that were involved in putting into service in such large ways this new and mighty servant were first confronted and solved in this particular decade. In the 80's the generation, transmission, and utilization of current—the dynamo, the transformer, and motor—were all made practical propositions on a large and commercial scale for the first time. The trolley car, which drastically changed the aspects of things urban and suburban, brought the country to the city and spilled the city into the conutry, increasing land values by the billions; and the incandescent lamp, which inaugurated clean and safe illumination, introduced the central station power house and inspired the first great innovations in generation and utilization of electric current; the transformer, that extremely simple but supreme instrument for making servicable the alternating current—the most easily generated and transmittable form of electrical energy; and the induction motor, the eventual driver of most of our machinery—all these peaks in electrical progress were made in the same decade.

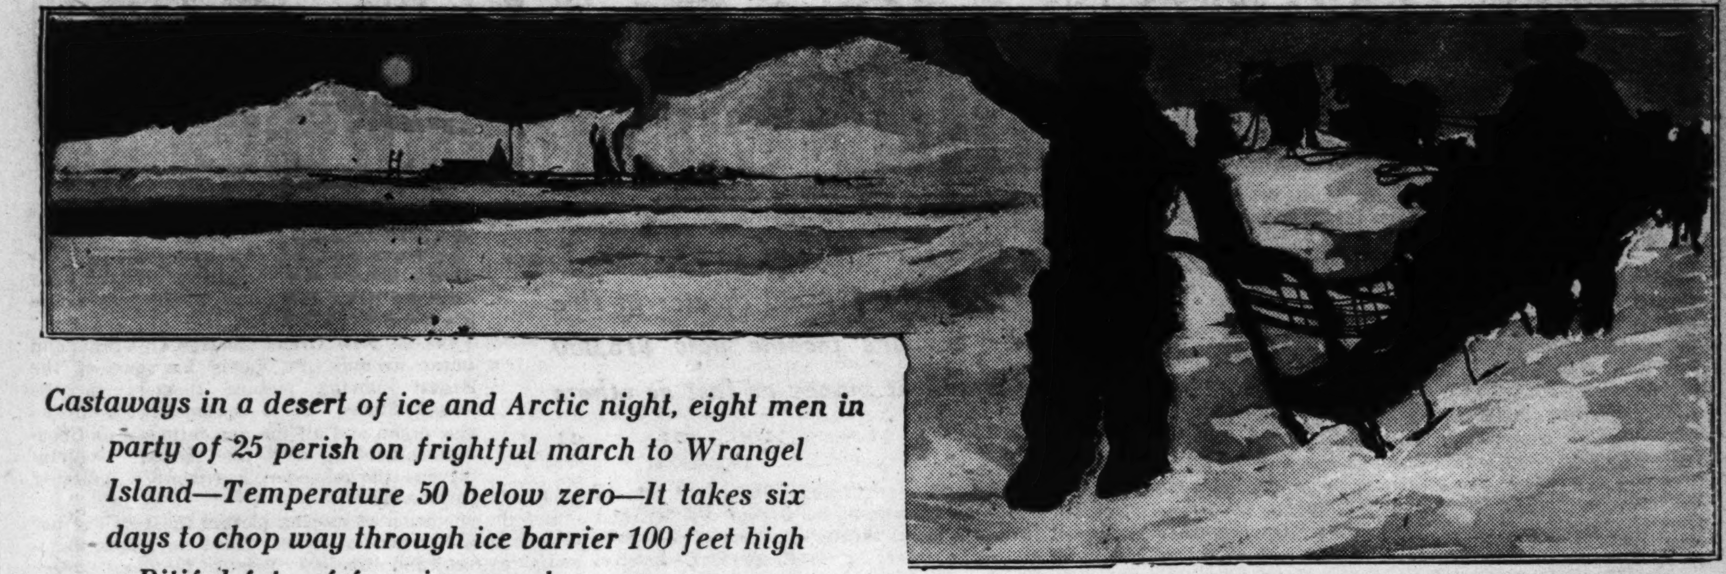
The most fundamental of all operations are performed in the furnace. The profoundest changes of nature were caused by heat and the basic processes of industry are carried on under high temperature conditions. Except a new source of energy, it is difficult to conceive a new utility of more potency than a novel type of furnace. For the first time in all history, a high furnace heat was attained through means not involving combustion, when the electric furnace was perfected in the latter part of the decade. With the advent of this utility, possibilities of heat application were opened up that shamed even the dreams of alchemy. There is no burning, no smoke or foul gases—resultants of combustion. The heat is clean, controllable, and extremely high, with the result that it is revolutionizing high temperature operations in multitudinous directions, and the changes in steel and alloy making and in electro-chemical processes are already profound.

The steam turbine, which is supplanting the reciprocating engine; the gasoline engine, which made possible the motorboat, automobile and aeroplane; the automobile itself; the Mergenthaler typesetter and caster; the cyanide process, which vies in importance with the Bessemer method of making steel and the vulcanization of rubber; and electric welding—all of these truly epoch-making inventions first saw the light of day in this census period.

The Harvey process for hardening armor plate was invented in 1888; smokeless powder a few years earlier; the wax phonographic record, which made the phonograph a practical proposition, came out about the same time; Westinghouse's quick-acting brake, which only failed to be considered a pioneer invention of the first order by a five to four vote of the Supreme Court, was another notable addition to the decade; the transparent film, which foreshadowed the moving picture; and the pneumatic tire, which helped to popularize the bicycle and automobile, were prominent contributions of these pregnant ten years.

The half-tone process, the most notable advance in the reproductive arts since lithography was established; the Janney type car-coupler, the greatest life-saver ever invented; and the centrifugal creamer, which has saved the farmers of the civilized world hundreds of millions of dollars, were all commercially established during this period.

THE TRAGEDY OF THE "KARLUK"



Castaways in a desert of ice and Arctic night, eight men in party of 25 perish on frightful march to Wrangel Island—Temperature 50 below zero—It takes six days to chop way through ice barrier 100 feet high —Pitiful fate of four insurgents :: :: ::

"Oh happiness! We saw smoke rising from a driftwood fire."

THE first installment of the epic story of the loss of the "Karluk," told by a survivor of the ill-fated Stefansson expedition, was printed in last Sunday's Post-Dispatch Magazine.

Dr. Vilhjalmur Stefansson, famous Canadian explorer, set out with an expedition in June, 1913, to visit a colony of "blond Eskimos" and to explore an uncharted country which he believed lay north of Alaska. While the leader was absent on a hunting trip, his ship, the "Karluk," drifted away in the ice, and on his return it had vanished. With a desperate resolve he set out with two companions for the north in March, 1914. Nothing since has been heard from him, and the Canadian Government has given up hope that he is alive.

The members of the party who were on the ship drifted with her upon the ice sea for five months. In January, 1914, the ship was suddenly crushed by the pressure of the ice and swallowed up in a "lead" that opened beside her. The men saved their stores, sleds, dogs and fuel, and prepared for the long trail over the ice field to the nearest land—Wrangel Island.

Installment II.—THE TRAIL.

By FRED W. MAURER.

Copyright, 1915, by the Post-Dispatch.

INSTEAD of starting for Siberia in three days after the sinking of the Karluk, as Capt. Bartlett had said, he remained at Shipwreck Camp more than a month. By taking observations we knew that we were still drifting, and were anxious to start for the nearest land. We were in the middle of the long Arctic night. The weather was cold, the thermometer ranging from 40 to 50 degrees below zero. We managed, however, to keep fairly comfortable, having built ourselves shelters out of the boxes of stores taken from the ship.

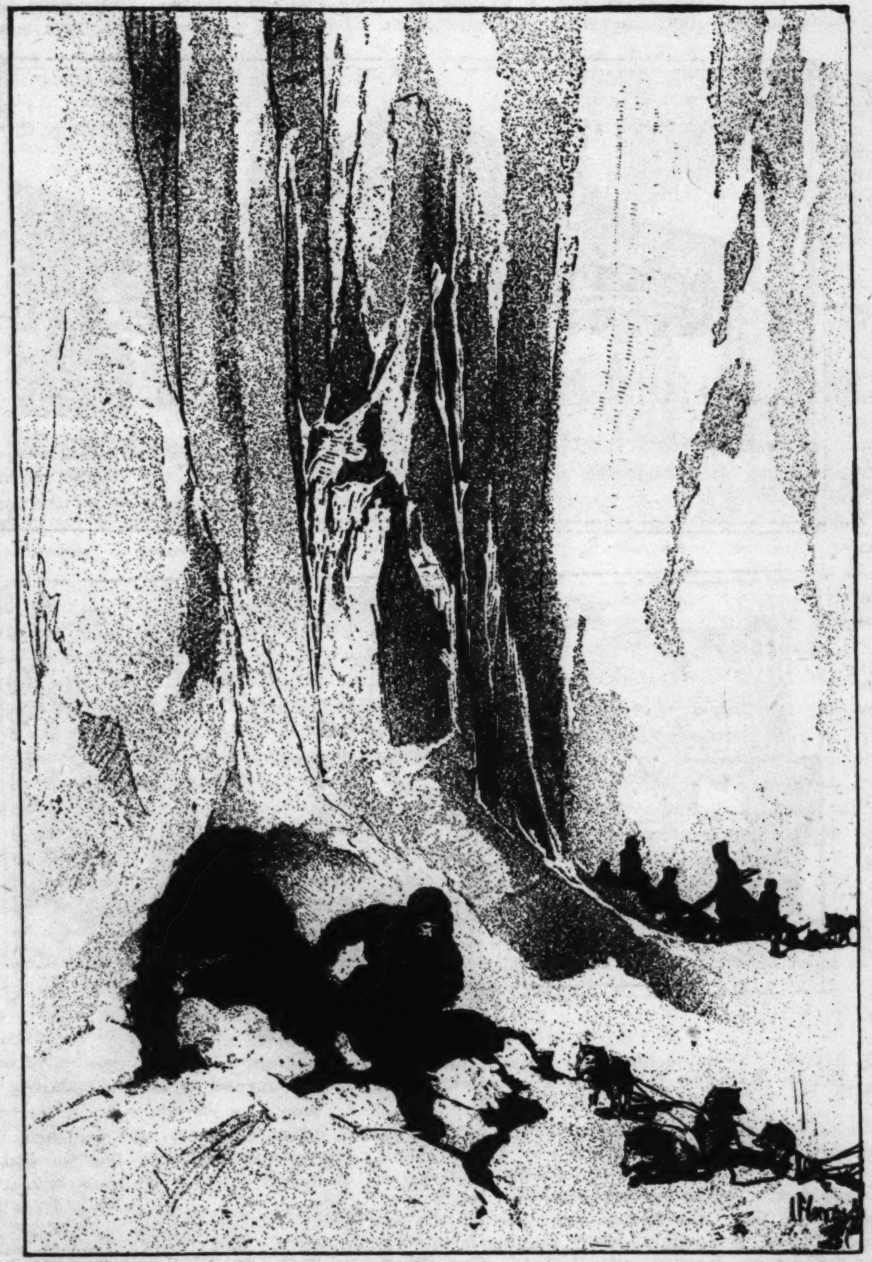
We had plenty of provisions and ate two meals a day. Our primus lamps served us for cooking and we had taken a stove from the ship that served us for warmth. We were in darkness in the midst of a wilderness of ice. For 60 days we had not seen the sun, and the ship was gone. Our dogs, unrestrained, remained close around camp, and howled and fought as usual. At night we could hear the booming sound of immense ice floes grinding against each other, or the sharper crash of an opening lead. Then all would hurry out in the darkness to see whether a lead had opened near our camp.

Capt. Bartlett sent out parties in the direction of Wrangel Island to explore the ice field and to make caches of provisions along the route of our proposed trail. On Jan. 20 he sent out a party of seven men, four of whom, Anderson, first mate, Barker, second mate, Brady and King, both able seamen, were to constitute a party to find a way to Wrangel Island, and the other three, Namen and two Eskimos, were to act as a supporting party to the four. Their instructions were to go to Wrangel Island and learn the conditions there; to learn whether driftwood could be found, and whether there was any game there.

They took with them three sleds, all the dogs we had, and the necessary camping outfit. The whole party was to go to Wrangel Island, the four were to remain there, and the supporting party was to return to Shipwreck Camp with information for the rest of the expedition. This party trailed over the ice until within three miles of Herald Island, which is 38 miles to the east or a little to the northeast of Wrangel Island. Here they met open water and moving ice. This was just what we dreaded. An easterly gale had sprung up and we were afraid of being carried farther to the northwest into the unknown and uncharted ocean.

The four men with one sled and provisions were left on the ice to make their way to Wrangel Island, if possible, and the other three with two sleds and all the dogs returned to camp to report conditions. At the time the supporting party returned to camp, Dr. McKay and Murray, who had both been with Shackleton in his South Polar explorations in 1908, and two other men, Bouchard and Morris, were making preparations to start out for themselves independent of Capt. Bartlett's command. Papers were drawn up between them and Capt. Bartlett releasing and exonerating him from all responsibility. They were provided with one sled, provisions for 60 days, primus lamp and oil, a tent and all other necessary equipment.

Two days after Dr. McKay's party started, a second supporting party was sent out to the original four who had been left near Herald Island. No trace of them could be found. Later, when we arrived at Wrangel Island, search for them was made, but they were not there. All that is known of them is that they must have perished, but the manner of their tragic death is one of the secrets of the frozen ocean.



"With picks, axes and shovels we toiled like beavers against the huge walls that were holding us prisoners in a world of snow and ice."

As the second supporting party was returning, they met McKay's party about 40 miles from Shipwreck Camp. They had been five days on the trail, and were in a pitiable condition. Their clothes were in bad repair. Beuchard was so badly frozen that they expected him to die that night. Morris had run a hunting knife through his hand and blood poisoning had set in. The clothing of all was frozen and their boots were worn out. They all were suffering. The supporting party proffered them assistance and offered to bring them back to camp, but they refused all help. Nothing more was ever seen of them. They were, beyond doubt, victims of the relentless rigors of the Arctic Sea.

The sun returned above the horizon on Jan. 25, and its appearance was hailed with delight. It was about Feb. 10 when the second supporting party returned to camp. After its return we remained several days in camp, making further preparations for the trail. The fate of the eight men who had started earlier was unknown to us, or we should scarcely have had the courage to follow. On Feb. 18, eight men, of whom I was one, left camp with two sleds and 10 dogs, and provisions for 60 days. Capt. Bartlett remained behind with the remainder of the party, intending to follow the next day, but it was five days before he got started.

We worked our way along the trail with a blizzard blowing from the east. Each evening we stopped and built ourselves snow houses for the night. The ice was shifting, and we lost much time in locating trails which had been marked by the parties sent out before. Sometimes the movement of the ice would cause a break of three or four miles in the trail, and we would spend nearly a whole day in finding it. Most persons, inexperienced in Arctic travel, might think that sledging over ice would be like going on the level; but such is not the case. The surface is very uneven and broken by hummocks of ice thrown up by lateral pressure. In many places it was thrown up in ridges which we were forced to cut our way through or clamber over.

The first 40 miles of the trail did not present any great difficulties, but we knew the ice was moving, and leads were beginning to open. At all times, and especially at night, we suffered sensations of impending danger. We could hear the ominous grinding and creaking of the ice; then a loud boom would break upon our ears, and we would turn out of our snow houses into the darkness and explore the neighborhood of our camp, expecting to find some dangerous open lead that would cut off our further progress or prevent our retreat.

We did our cooking, what little there was of it, on a primus lamp. These lamps work somewhat on the principle of the blow torches used by plumbers. We used them for melting water to make tea. Our tea was carried in tablet form; each tablet being as large as the ordinary charcoal tablet that you buy in drug stores. They were put up in tins containing a hundred. One tablet was sufficient to make a cup of good strong tea. There is nothing so welcome at the close of a day on the Arctic trail as a cup or two of hot tea. In those extremely cold climates its value is almost inestimable.

We had two meals a day, consisting of pemmican, biscuit and tea. We had no heat in our snow houses except the natural warmth of our bodies. Our bedding consisted of skins which we would place on the ice, and blankets were used for coverings. We were provided with skin footbags, a most useful article in those high latitudes. We would remove our skin boots, and then draw a footbag over our feet and legs as high as the knees, and in this way manage to sleep quite comfortably, everything considered. Our snow houses were just large enough to furnish room for sleeping when all were lying very close together.

In the latter part of February, after we had been on the trail about ten days, we were confronted by a difficulty we had not yet encountered. Shortly after breaking camp one morning we came to an ice ridge or barrier from seventy-five to one hundred feet in height. Here, by the lateral pressure of the great floes, the ice was piled up in a ridge extending eastward and westward as far as the eye could see. Thinking it impossible to make our way over it, we returned to our snow house camp of the night before. We sent out a party to try to find a way through it somewhere. The party returned and reported that it was impossible to find an opening. Then we explored the barrier to the east for a whole day and found conditions in that direction even worse than to the westward, if such a thing were possible. Luckily the gales had subsided and the weather was calm and beautiful, but very cold.

We concluded to retrace our steps to Shipwreck Camp and there make further preparations for the work of the trail. We were upon the return trail scarcely two hours when we met Capt. Bartlett and the rest of the party following us. We acquainted the captain with what we had met and experienced, but he said there must be a way through, and that we would not return to Shipwreck Camp.

Under the guidance and direction of Bartlett we turned about and again were on our way to Wrangel Island. Arriving at the great ridge again, Capt. Bartlett took up the work of getting us through. It was now his purpose to reach Wrangel Island and leave the Fortunes Made in St. Louis Movies

HOW MANY?
BYRNES

One man ran a $700 shoestring up to $35,000—From a $300 mortgage to a $20,000 theater in five years—Former barber's income now $15,000 a year—But some lost money as fast as others made it :: :: :: :: ::

NOT all the romances of St. Louis' 100 moving picture houses are shown upon the screen. Behind the imposing outward forms of the new amusement industry—its expensive and ornate theaters, its impressive throngs of devotees, its film novelties gathered from the ends of the earth—there are numbers of highly interesting stories of real life, some of which are told herewith.

They are the stories of the men and women, who, with the courage and enterprise of pioneers, have created the young business in St. Louis, and who in many cases have accomplished the most alluring of feats—that of building up a fortune from a shoestring within a few years. On the other hand, the subject has its tragedies, for not a few of those who rushed into the "movies" as an infallible "get-rich-quick" proposition, have lost fortunes with the same swiftness as others gained them.

EIGHT years ago Joseph Mogler, at a cost of $700, equipped an old black-top tent at Broadway and Bremen avenue as a "nickelodeon," as the popular name then was. The tent was 24 by 60 feet in dimensions, and had seats for 350 persons.

On March 17 last Mogler opened to the public on the same site a movie playhouse that cost $35,000 and seats 1200 persons, and alongside he is constructing an airdome with a capacity of 3500 spectators. He has multiplied his original investment more than 50 times.

If you ask Mogler the secret of his success, he will reply: "Politeness and the personal note."

"I am friendly with the people who come to my theater," he says. "I welcome them as they enter and have a pleasant word for them as they go out. I always tried to be kind to the children. Little ones whose parents could not afford to give them nickels to come to the show always got to see the pictures free.

"Boys used to dig holes under the wall around the tent and sneak in under the canvas. I caught them many times, but was never severe. Just as soon as these boys arrived at the dignity of a job, they were the first ones to come to the show at night and plank down their money like little men. Afterwards they brought their sweethearts, and today you may see empty baby buggies standing in the lobby of the theater, while the babies and wives of these picture show 'gophers' of eight years ago are inside enjoying the pictures."

The King Bee Theater at Jefferson avenue and Howard street, a building of white enameled brick that seats 1200 people, was completed less than a month ago to replace a tent which stood in the same spot for years and earned the money that made the building possible. This theater was erected by Michael Nash, the only one that is left of the first four men who exhibited motion pictures in St. Louis.

"One day 10 years ago," he says, "I went to a downtown theater. After the performance the lights were lowered and the people began going out. But I didn't, for there on the stage was a gigantic locomotive that seemed to be coming head-on out into the audience. I didn't know what it was, or how it was done, but it was one of the most remarkable things I had ever seen, and I couldn't understand why the people were going away in perfect indifference to the miracle which was happening there before their eyes.

"That was the first moving picture I ever saw. I went back to the theater the next day and found out all about it; and right there I saw the possibilities of exhibiting motion pictures. They were very crude then, and were used at vaudeville theaters as chasers to get people out for the next performance. That accounted for the indifference of the audience. They had seen the same thing over and over again till they were weary of it. But I knew that if new pictures could be obtained the people would never get tired of looking at them."

Another interesting story is that of "D. T. Williams & Wife." Williams always insists that the firm name shall be written that way. "My wife has been my partner always, and to her is due a great part of the success we have made," he says.

"Williams & Wife" started in the moving picture business with very little capital. There was a small theater at Thirteenth and Chambers streets, with a mortgage of $300. They assumed the mortgage and opened a movie show six years ago. The house seated only 170 persons, and at 5 cents a head had to be filled many times a day to earn anything at all. Soon the proprietors moved out to Newstead avenue, and bought the tent which is pictured on this page. It has just been taken down, because the audiences are now entertained in a new theater that cost $20,000 to build and equip. Williams says that the firm has made this sum and a comfortable home out of the moving picture business in five years.

The Retina Theater at Twentieth and Market streets is one of the most prosperous small movie houses in the city. John H. Gentner, its owner, went into the business because he found his position in the office of a transfer company too confining. He found an old blacksmith shop on the site of his present theater, and converted it into a small theater that seated only 100, but he soon had to enlarge it to its present capacity, which is 400. The Retina has never missed a performance since its opening seven years ago, and more than three million admissions have been paid at the box office.

The Fairy, at 5640 Easton avenue, is a family theater in operation as well as in point of location. August Roettger, his wife and three children are all employed in the enterprise. Roettger is manager, Mrs. Roettger sells tickets, and William, Annie and Hattie play the cornet, violin and piano in the orchestra.

Five years ago Roettger was a barber. He was making a living, but beyond that the future did not seem particularly promising. Fortunes were being made in the moving picture business, and an old tent that stood on the site of the present theater operated by Roettger influenced him in embarking in the business. He saw that the tent show was making money, and concluded that a bigger and better place would make more money.

He went into debt to the extent of several thousand dollars, erected a building, organized his three children into an orchestra, and began operations.

No money was made for the first two years, because Roettger knew nothing about the business. But he learned, and the next year the tide turned. The enterprise is now paying between $15,000 and $20,000 a year, and employs a number of persons in addition to the Roettger family.

Not all the successful moving picture theaters started in a small way. Many exhibitors had years of theatrical experience and thousands of dollars behind them when they opened their doors to the public.

The history of the three Cornelius theaters is an example. John W. Cornelius built the Lyric Theater on north Sixth street five years ago at a cost of $40,000, when it was considered suicidal to try to operate a 10-cent theater on expensive downtown property. But Cornelius, who had had experience in the business in Cincinnati, had read the signs aright in St. Louis. The West End Lyric and the Lyric Skydome are the outgrowth of the downtown theater. The Cornelius enterprise is one of the most profitable amusement concerns in the city, and gives employment to 50 persons, with a payroll of $1100 a week. Each year $3000 are spent on furnishings for the two West End houses. A single item of carpets for the downtown Lyric, recently, amounted to more than $1300.

The Plaza Theater at Clara and Etzel avenues represents an ambitious venture on the part of its promoters. The Plaza is strictly a neighborhood house, and was the first big theater to be erected on a street apart from a well-traveled one. It was built at a cost of $50,000. Manager Townsend of the Plaza says that the theater does not depend on passersby, and has a clientele that attends the performances regularly. The telephone is kept busy answering the calls of persons who, before stirring out of their homes, inquire if their screen favorites may be seen. The Plaza has been in operation five years.

In the New Grand Central at Grand and Lucas avenues, St. Louis has one of the largest moving picture theaters in the United States. It is equipped with a fine pipe organ and all the appointments and conveniences of an up-to-date theater. William Sievers, the manager, has made it a highly profitable investment.

But the operation of moving picture theaters has not always been like beds of roses. There have been financial shipwrecks and disasters. Some of the finest houses of a few years ago are idle today. The first big neighborhood theater that opened near Grand avenue, and was the talk of the town five years ago, today is dark, its lobby is littered with wind-blown papers, and the glass of the box office where thousands once crowded to pay their fares is covered with the dust and grime of months. And on out in the West End, near King's highway, one of the finest movie theaters in the city was recently sold at auction to satisfy a debt.

Ten years ago there were nine movie theaters in St. Louis; today there are 101; not counting the many airdomes that are run independently of the regular houses and operate only in the summer. The young industry has made fortunes for many of its followers almost over night, and lost fortunes just as quickly for many more. To some it was a magic lamp that needed but little rubbing to produce the wonders of wealth; it was an ignis-fatuus luring others to the loss of their savings.

All the precedents of the age-old business of amusing the people were overturned and changed by this new means of public entertainment. Many old-time showmen who had their fingers on the public pulse for years and thought there was no new thing for them to learn, welcomed the movies with joy; they looked like the easiest means of making money that they had ever seen. So they rushed into the thick of the fray, with the confidence of long experience, only to have their entire bag of tricks dumped at their feet as outworn and useless; while other men, fresh from the carpenter's bench, the drug counter and the plumber's shop, with absolutely no experience, succeeded from the start.

Not all who began auspiciously achieved a permanent success. Some made money so fast they could not stand their prosperity, lost their judgment and poured the hatful of golden eggs the goose of the new art laid for them into the rat-holes of other enterprises, which swallowed up their fortunes more quickly than they had made them.

Large companies for the exploitation of moving pictures have been organized that paid as high as 40 per cent on the capital invested, and then sank in a few months to the level of receiverships and the Sheriff's hammer.

The hysterical days, the days of quick fortunes in the moving picture business, have passed. The industry has lost its uncertainty and has settled down to the rock-ribbed rules and conventions of modern business, regulated by bank balance and daily settlement. The day of renting an empty store and a few benches and starting a moving picture theater has also vanished. The successful exhibitor of today must be modern and up-to-date or he can no longer exist, so keen is the rivalry.

What the conditions are that make for success in the moving picture business is hard to say. Location, of course, is more than half of the battle; good pictures and courteous treatment are perhaps the rest. The details of management and the neighborhood must be studied; the kind of pictures that suit one locality will not be tolerated in another.

Modeling New Faces for the Wounded

SOME extraordinary operations to repair faces shattered by shells are being performed by French surgeons. Dr. J. Dundas Grant describes in the Lancet a few of those that he witnessed at Val de Grace and Bordeaux.

In one case the bridge of a man's nose had been driven in, completely closing the rear nasal passages. M. Morestin detached what was left of the nose, leaving it as a flap attached below. He cleared out the nasal passages and stuffed the cavity with gauze, which he replaced with rubber tubes after a few days. He planted part of the cartilage of a rib in the man's forehead, and when this had taken root he cut it away, turned it down, attached it to the remains of the nose and remodelled this.

In many cases in which a large part of the lower jaw had been shot away, casts were taken of both jaws, and on these the surgeons and the dentists studied the best methods of repair. They were often able to restore at least the ability to chew food and to talk.

Pretty Sequel to Yale's Most Famous Elopement

"Naomi the Waffles Girl," for wedding whom George S. Stearns was expelled from college two years ago and disowned by his rich father, is now mistress of her own home in Denver and rides in her own automobile—Boyish husband makes good as business man, and has bouncing son destined to be Yale's "greatest athlete" :: :: ::

Mrs. Naomi Cambell Stearns, Yale's former "Waffles Girl," and George S. Stearns Jr.

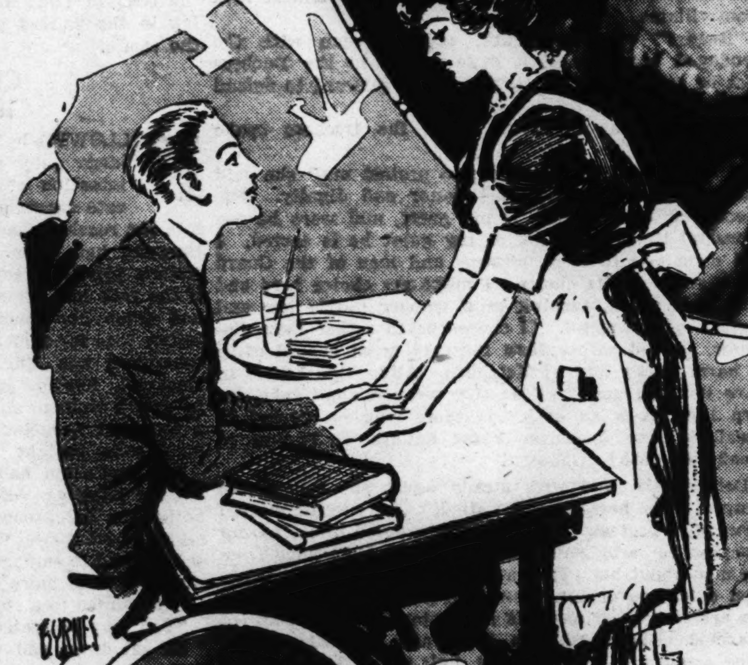
"NAOMI, THE WAFFLES GIRL," heroine of Yale's most famous romance, has beaten to a batter the prognostications of disaster which attended her marriage to George S. Stearns, late freshman in Old Eli's scientific school; and has reversed all highbrow predictions as deftly as she ever made flapjack turn somersault in one of the university's favorite "beaneries." If the learned Yale faculty is skeptical, it can ask anyone in Denver, including Stearns himself.

Two years ago anyone would have said that young Stearns, then in his twentieth year, was eternally done for. He had just been ignominiously expelled from Yale. His father, a wealthy Cincinnati manufacturer, had washed his hands of the youth and cut off his allowance. He had no visible means or resources of livelihood. Moreover, he had given a hostage to fortune by marrying a wife.

Today, through money earned by his unaided exertions, he owns his home and drives his own automobile. He is regarded as one of Denver's bright young business men. Moreover, he is the father of a husky son, who has been christened George S. Stearns Jr., and whom his father has dedicated in the cradle to the task of rehabilitating the name at Yale.

"When he grows up I'm going to send him to Yale," says Stearns. "I'm going to train him to be big and strong, and I want them to say in future years that Naomi Campbell's son was the greatest athlete Yale ever had."

Naomi Campbell was undoubtedly the prettiest waitress who ever ministered to the hunger of Yale's undergraduates. Her charms, her vivacity and her gift of repartee made her an institution at the university. It was the solemn duty of every freshman to fall in love with the fair sylph of the serving tray, and to neglect to worship at the shrine of the "Waffles Girl" was to miss a vital element of a liberal education. On the campus she was the theme of song and toast, and the following tribute was wailed in the minor key of a funeral dirge, symbolical of the broken heart which every freshman was supposed to have suffered:



Down in a restaurant not far away,
  Where peaches they bloom so sweet,
There's one little queen who has it on all—
  So pretty, slim and petite.
Sandwiches special, ice cream, ham-and—
  She hands them out all day.
And when you gaze in her eyes divine,
  Like all the rest you will say:
(Spoken): Well, what will you say?

CHORUS

Oh, gee, Naomi,
  My lunch counter girl;
Perhaps it's your size, dear,
Perhaps it's your eyes, dear,
  That sets all hearts in a whirl.
Kiss me, Naomi,
  Oh, please don't be mean.
Oh, you beautiful baby,
  Naomi, my restaurant queen!

In the midst of all this homage, Naomi remained heart whole and fancy free. She "played the game" with the lovesick young swains, each of whom, as a part of his college curriculum, in due course implored her to accept his heart and hand. It was her role kindly but firmly to blight their young affections. Her task was the easier, because the victims of her charms invariably experienced a complete recovery as soon as they were graduated to the lofty heights of the sophomore class.

George S. Stearns.

Like the rest of his classmates, Stearns, a freshman in the Sheffield Scientific School, promptly capitulated to the pretty slinger of hash. But his worship was spelled with a difference. It was not a class rite with him, a duty which every true son of Old Eli was under obligations to perform. He was in earnest and really and truly in love. Naomi, with a woman's intuition, was quick to distinguish the genuine from the pretended, and Stearns' wooing was not repulsed with the merry persiflage which rebuffed the courtship of the others.

Along in March, 1913, dire rumors began to circulate about the Yale campus. It was not that Stearns was in love with Naomi. That was proper in him and loyal to college traditions. But the ghastly fact was that Naomi was in love with Stearns. This was utterly contrary to the unwritten law of the university. It appeared that, with her hearty aid, Stearns was figuratively erecting about her affections a large and forbidding sign, reading: "No trespassing permitted." This was an intolerable infringement upon the rights of all Yale men, and a particular affront to the freshman class.

Remonstrances were made to Stearns. He replied that he intended to marry Naomi and that nothing on earth could stop him. This was not so sensational, because most of the class had at one time or another vowed the same thing. Then a delegation of woebegone suitors waited upon Naomi. Yes, she said, with a tilt of her head, she was engaged to marry Mr. Stearns.

There was weeping and wailing and gnashing of teeth. Not even a football defeat at the hands of Harvard could have plunged the campus into deeper mourning. The news that Naomi was engaged to marry fell like a bomb on the college, and its explosion reached the ears of the faculty.

These grave gentlemen, most of whom had long ago forgotten, if they ever knew, that such a thing as love existed, were, in their erudite way, perfectly scandalized. They called Stearns into their august presence and talked to him of "destroying his prospects," and of "ruining his life."

Love can laugh at learned faculties as well as at locksmiths, and Stearns told the professors he had made up his mind to marry the waitress. They thereupon resurrected an ancient regulation of the university, to the effect that no student can marry and continue his studies. They told him they would lay the facts before his father.

Stearns' reply was prompt and decisive. He led his Naomi before a minister in New Haven and was married to her. The faculty was equally prompt. Stearns was unconditionally expelled. From his irascible father came a telegram: "I will not stand for it," he wired. "You need expect no help from me." The boy replied:

"I respect and honor you, and appreciate all that you have done for me. But you do not approve of my marriage, and you say I am too young. I propose to show you that I am not."

With his bride, Stearns shook the classic dust of New Haven from his feet and obeyed Greeley's advice to young men. They arrived in Denver. For a week the bridegroom, who had always had at his wish everything money could buy, hunted for a job. At last he found one, as a bill collector. At the end of a week he got his pay envelope. It contained $5.56—less than he had spent during the week. But it was lesson No. 1, and he quit the job.

He then started a collection agency of his own, and in a short time it had much promise of success. But he took a partner who one day disappeared with the firm's bankroll. Stearns was disheartened almost to the point of his giving up. But his wife, with the fine courage of her sex, refused to be discouraged.

"Why don't you be a broker?" she asked her husband. "I once knew a young man who left Yale, started in the brokerage business and made lots of money."

Stearns' brokerage office was started on a shoestring, but it was a success from the start. He turned a considerable deal in securities and bought a home for himself and the "Waffles Girl." He made another deal and bought an automobile.

Then a friend in the real estate business decided that he needed so energetic a man as Stearns in his office. So Stearns turned over his brokerage business to an assistant and began selling real estate. His success is said to have been remarkable, and his income from the two sources, according to Denver business men, has placed him on "easy street."

Mrs. Stearns remembers the lunch counter at which she once served with gratitude. "But for that I wouldn't have met George," she declares, "and who wouldn't be happy with such a husband?

"They said I was spoiling his career. Have I done so?" she asks with pardonable pride. "Isn't he better off and a truer man, and hasn't he succeeded more quickly than if he had listened to those old-fogy professors?"

THE TURBULENT DUCHESS . . .

A Tale of Romance and Adventure

By Percy J. Brebner

"Speak, friend. You look an honest man."

"A smith, Your Grace, and not one to push myself forward," answered the man. "I have waited for those who know more than I do to speak, but since no one will, why"——

"Andreas the Smith! Speak up, Andreas! We're with you, Andreas!"

The cries of encouragement came from various parts of the hall.

"Common consent makes you spokesman," said the Duchess. "Speak plainly and without fear."

"I carried no arms today, Your Grace," he said, spreading out his hands to show they were empty, "but there have been hints and whispers in the market place and in workshops that there was dissatisfaction in the city. I looked not to see any fighting in the streets, but I did think there might be groaning instead of cheering. It was said Your Grace would use the Feast of St. Winifried to carry through some purpose which would not be for the city's good, for the people's good. I know nothing of that purpose, for we of the workshop take things as they come, grumbling sometimes maybe, but loyal for all that. But there was another whisper, which it seems had some truth in it. What was he of Brandenburg doing in our city of Metzburg? That was the question. We have heard enough not to love him over much, and hold that, but for Your Grace, we should have been crushed under Brandenburg's heel by this time. What does he here then? And there have been plenty to answer that question. He was here to have his will of us, to bribe or force us under the yoke, to show his power in Metzburg. The people will stop that. The people would show their teeth because Your Grace had let him come and were therefore to blame."

"Aye, Andreas speaks the truth," said the crowd.

"Some of it seems true at any rate," said the smith, "or why have those who are with the Elector killed Metzburg citizens? Isn't that proof enough? Had we known there would be fighting in the streets, more of us would be carrying weapons. That's our grievance, Your Grace, and we want justice of the men who stand there with you, ready to cut us down.

"And give us that devil first," shouted a voice from the back of the hall.

The Duchess did not know who was meant, and she took no special notice of the man with the bandaged head whose back was towards her as he watched and waited for the first sign of renewed attack.

"I know not who set going these hints and whisperings," she said. "Andreas the Smith has spoken like an honest man and we would answer him just as honestly. It is true that I would use the Feast of St. Winifried for a special purpose this year. I thought it was well known to you what that purpose was. Maids plight their troth on St. Winifried's day, and your Duchess would be one with the maids of Metzburg and name her a husband then. She may not choose quite as other maids can, and in this matter would be just a woman and no Duchess were that possible; but at the feast she will choose and ask her people's acceptance of her choice; and this she swears, that no man who does not love Podina, or who is hateful to her people, shall have her hand in marriage."

There was a shout of acclamation.

"Andreas the smith has heard whisperings of some other purpose," she went on slowly. "I believe he speaks no more than the truth; but whoever started such a whisper has lied. If we find him presently I promise, from this chair in the Rathaus I promise, that justice shall be done to him."

She seemed so conscious of her power that those who had heard the whispers, and had helped to spread them, instinctively sought to be inconspicuous.

"Also it is a lie that His Highness of Brandenburg is in Metzburg to aid me in any unlawful purpose, or to cause dissension amongst my people," she continued, still in a calm voice, as if she were totally unconscious of the stormy passions about her. "He is our honored guest, and today should have been received by you with acclamation, for he goes southward to war against the French, our enemies as well as his. It is true that in the past there have been differences between Podina and Brandenburg, hard words between us, but they are forgotten. Had His Highness not known that the quarrel was a thing of the past, would he have dared to enter Metzburg with a dozen men? Would he have been fool enough, think you, to trust his safety to a dozen men—eight men now, since he has used four of them to carry dispatches to Berlin and towards Alsace—if he were here for the purpose of raising riot?"

The Duchess eyes quickly sought the speaker, but he was content to shout the question without revealing his identity.

"He is here as my guest, at my invitation," she said, a note of anger sounding for the first time in her calm voice.

"Then how dare he draw sword against us?" came the quick question.

"Aye, that's what we would know, Your Grace," said Andreas, who still stood apart from the crowd.

With a sudden fury which hushed the crowd to silence again, the Duchess pointed to the armed men who were grouped together, only waiting for the opportune moment to storm the dais.

"Do you, Andreas, and you who are honest men here associate yourselves with this rabble? Look at them! Have they toiled in the shops with you? Have you bargained with them in the market place, or drunk wine with them in the tavern? Look at them! Is not the mark of their calling upon them? You may meet them prowling the streets in the night looking for a victim; you may meet them on a lonely road outside the city, ready to attack the honest traveler; or you may find them lurking in the forest, bent on plunder. What do they here in Metzburg? Where are your eyes, Burgomaster, that you have not known how these men have crept into the city to be the tools of those who have lied to my honest people, those who have attempted to undermine their loyalty? It was against such a rabble that the sword was drawn, drawn in defense, by these few brave men. Why the Guard failed in its duty and left the sword in its scabbard we shall inquire presently."

SYNOPSIS.

SANDRA OF PODINA is known all over Europe as "the turbulent Duchess," because of her "devil's own temper." Her country is coveted by the Elector of Brandenburg, who is building up his duchy into the Kingdom of Prussia. Her court fool has died, and she chooses as his successor the younger of a pair of vagabonds, who recommends himself by his gallantry and wit. He takes the name of Bergolet. He learns that the marriage of the Duchess has become an affair of statecraft, and that a dozen Princes are suitors for her hand. Of these the favorite seems to be her cousin, Karl, and the least favored is the "black sheep," Maurice of Savaria. A mysterious woman, in the guise of a fortune teller, holds an interview with Bergolet, in the midst of which soldiers arrive to arrest him on Prince Karl's order. They escape through a secret passage into the Burgomaster's house and overhear conspirators planning to kidnap the Duchess. Bergolet, on the way home, is struck down and captured, but he escapes, rides into the forest and arrives in the nick of time to warn the Duchess of treachery. Returning, they met the Elector and his suite, going on a visit to Metzburg. Karl, to test Bergolet, pretends to give him a fencing lesson, and is satisfied the jester has a mortal terror of a sword. The jester is arrested and then released by his wayward mistress. Prince Karl and the Burgomaster conspire to murder the Elector as he goes to the Rathaus. Led by a "devil with a bandaged head," a little party of swordsmen fight a way clear for the Elector, and at the Rathaus the Duchess suddenly confronts the mob.

It was an intense moment; the issue hung on a single thread which might snap at any instant. The Duchess had thrown down the challenge to divide honest men from villains.

"Ready!" whispered Saxe, and the man with the bandaged head moved a little nearer to the Duchess that he might the more easily spring forward to defend her.

The rush was imminent when the Duchess spoke again.

"I call on all who love me to protect me," she said passionately, "to protect my honor and dignity." The Elector of Brandenburg is my guest, and were he ten thousand times a villain, as my guest he is sacred. I call upon you to obey, citizens and men of the Guard alike, yours is the choice. I make my choice here and now," she cried, turning to a trooper beside her and demanding his pistol. "I choose death rather than dishonor, an end rather than that my guest should come to harm in my city of Metzburg. Allow this rabble to have its will, and I swear this weapon shall take my own life. It is an oath. Is there man or woman in Metzburg who has ever know Sandra of Podina to break her oath? Choose."

Deliberately, and with steady hand, she turned the weapon upon herself, and waited. The Elector started forward in protest. Saxe barely prevented himself from grasping her arm, and a little cry, like fear, came from the men about her. In the hall was a moment's silence, then quick movement, a swirl in the crowd which bore the armed men backwards and interposed the body of unarmed citizens between them and the dais. Then came a murmur, then a shout, half stifled because men were afraid, brought suddenly to the edge of a precipice overhanging an awful abyss. Saxe, keenly watchful, noted the changed disposition of the crowd. Some men of the Guard were together in the mass before the dais, at one with the crowd in sweeping back the rabble. Prince Karl had not moved.

It was the Elector who broke the strain.

"Long life to Her Grace!" he cried.

In an instant an answering shout rang through the hall. A woman's sublime courage had conquered, but the Duchess was not yet content. She lowered the weapon, but kept it, and she showed no gratitude for that answering shout.

"There shall be justice," she said proudly, her head thrown back, anger still in her eyes, "there shall be justice and such mercy as we can give. Even the rabble may hope for mercy, for I hold them most guilty who have used and paid the rabble. You bid me live; then am I still your Duchess, and I shall relearn your love by the measure of your obedience. You shall find me no more a laggard in demanding obedience than I am in ruling for your good. What grievances you have I am always willing to listen to, but no rioting shall force me to act against my judgment. I am your Duchess, therefore I claim obedience."

"Heinrich von Lehmann," she cried, turning suddenly to the Burgomaster, "you will retire to your house and remain there until we send for you. It seems you are too blind to do justice to your office."

"Your Grace"——

"At present I am not judging you," she said sternly, "but I doubt not I shall find men of the Guard, or failing them, loyal citizens, so see that you do not leave your house until you are sent for. Go."

The crowd made no sign of opposition.

"You, Cousin, will retire to your house at Festenhausen," she said, turning to Prince Karl.

"I protest."

"It is not the time to protest, but to obey," she answered. "It seems evident that, for a time at least, a new Captain of the Guard is needed. You will retire to Festenhausen. When I need you again at court I will send for you."

There was an ominous movement in the crowd, significant that the Prince had friends in it. There was a murmur of defiance, but no attempt was made to come to the Prince's aid. He stood for a moment, irresolute, then sheathed his sword.

"The weapon was drawn in your best interests," he said. "I shall think well before I draw it again."

"And, Cousin, choose the moment more opportunely," said the Duchess quietly. "You may find the crowd in the streets somewhat unfriendly, so you have my permission to leave this hall by the same way as the Burgomaster has gone."

She called it permission, but it was a command. Karl hesitated, then came towards the steps. The swords which had barred his progress were lowered, and he crossed the dais in silence and went from the Rathaus by the Burgomaster's private way.

Immediately the Duchess pointed to a trooper standing in the hall below her.

"See that horses are brought to the door yonder, and let it be known in the streets that His Highness of Brandenburg and the Duchess return together to the castle."

The man pushed his way through the crowd as if he would show by his prompt obedience that he was no traitor.

"Is it safe yet, Your Grace?" said Saxe.

"Yes, Captain. You may be certain that the news of what has been done here this last hour has been whispered in the streets. It is well to act once and for all." She had answered him in an undertone, now she turned once more to the crowd. "Good people, your Duchess trusts to your honor and your love. Make way for us. We go with drawn swords only because villains have found their way into Metzburg. I carry a weapon to prove that I break no part of my oath. Make way."

As if by magic, a straight path from the dais to the door opened through the mass of humanity, and with the pistol in her hand, the Duchess came down the steps side by side with the Elector, followed by Bertha von Lehmann; and, surrounded by the men of the league and the Elector's escort, they passed slowly through the hall.

Furious Prince and trembling Burgomaster had found the body of Long Joachim when they heard the shouting in the market place as the cavalcade rode back to the castle.

CHAPTER XXI.

Were I a King.

FOLLOWED by the jester, the Duchess crossed the large outer room of her apartments with the intention of going to the inner room, her private sanctum to which few were admitted. Before she reached the door of communication she stopped. Bergolet had often passed into that inner room, the jester's privilege, admitted to amuse his mistress; and if the talk had sometimes taken a serious turn and he had given her counsel there, still he was always the jester, wise for a moment in the midst of his folly. But tonight it was different. She was a woman, not the Duchess. For an hour, until Bertha came, she would be only a woman, and her woman's eyes saw more than a jester in Bergolet. She could not take him to that inner room tonight.

Her hesitation had brought the color to her cheeks, but the light was soft in the room and Bergolet did not notice the heightened color as she seated herself in a high-backed carved chair. The chair, grown dark with age, seemed to emphasize her youth, and never surely had woman looked more beautiful.

She pointed to a stool near her.

"You may be seated, Bergolet."

He sat down and waited for her to speak, but for a little space she was silent, interested in the carving on the massive arms of the chair, it seemed. It was very difficult to begin to enjoy this hour in which she would be only a woman.

"Have you lost your tongue, Bergolet? Prince Rupert said tonight that he had heard so little of your wit he supposed it was under repair. Is it so?"

"Mistress, I am waiting for the orders you have to give me."

"What orders?"

"I cannot tell, but it was for that purpose you told me to follow you."

"What orders should I have for you?"

"Perhaps to bid me leave Metzburg and not return. That is an order I must hear presently, no doubt."

"It was not that," she answered.

"Then perchance it was that you did not like my song tonight?"

"Yes, it was the song which made me bring you here, the song and—Bergolet, it was a very sad song."

"Yes, mistress. Even a jester cannot always be merry."

"Did you write the song, Bergolet?"

"I did, mistress."

"Now, or at some time in the past when you were not merry, when—when some woman perhaps had laughed at you?"

She was looking at him with half-closed eyes, thinking of herself, a little angry with herself that she should ask such questions and be so eager for the answers.

"It came to my mind only a few hours ago, a little rush of words holding a secret. I think I meant that none should hear them, but when you bade me sing they came. I hardly knew they had been uttered until the lute strings had ceased to tremble."

"The song seemed to come from your soul, Bergolet."

"Thoughts uttering themselves, mistress, yet veiling their secret in a quaint conceit set to a melody."

"I think they did not succeed in hiding their secret, Bergolet."

"You did not like the song, mistress, therefore do not remember it. Shall I try and sing you something merry? I have one concerning a fat friar of Nuremberg whose rotundity brought him to some strange adventures in that city."

"I did not dislike your song," she said with a little hesitation, "only I might be angry, for I fancy when you thought of it I must have been in your mind."

"I cannot deny it, mistress; I can only ask your pardon."

"Rupert of Ausburg said"——

"I care not what he said or thought. He is a dull fool when he is sober and a coarse one in his cups. Spare me the opinion, good or ill, of such a man as Rupert of Ausburg. It is such Princes as he is that"—— And then he stopped suddenly. "Forgive me, mistress, I forgot myself."

The bells on his cap jangled slightly as he turned to her. He had spoken angrily, in a sudden burst of passion, but a movement of the woman beside him had silenced him. There was color in her face now. Bergolet noted it, and for a few moments his eyes looked into hers.

"I am not angry," she said. "So you hate Rupert of Ausburg?"

"Yes."

"More than the other Princes in Metzburg?"

"Yes, a little more."

"Then you hate them all?"

"Yes, mistress."

"Why?"

Bergolet did not answer, and the Duchess turned from him as she asked the question. She wanted him to answer, yet was angry with herself for asking. No anger was in her face, only a heightened color and such beauty that an anchorite might tremble for his vows; and the tenseness of the jester's figure, and the tightly closed hands, told of a man who restrained himself with difficulty.

"Your song is true," she said after a pause. "I am the woman of it, cold, disdainful, heartless, and so I must remain through all the years to come. There is no escape. Less fair than the woman of your song, I have all her villainy."

"It is not true," he whispered.

"It is, Bergolet, it is; yet I might have been so different. Perhaps you are able to see what I might have been."

She sank forward in her chair, leaning a little towards him. She was playing with fire and she knew it, yet could not resist the temptation. It was not her power she was conscious of, but her weakness.

"Is that what you see, Bergolet? Deep down in my eyes is that what you see?"

"Ah, mistress, if only I were a King!"

"What then, Bergolet, what then?"

"I dare not tell you."

It was yet within her power to be wise. She knew it. His reticence gave her the opportunity. She knew he would not speak unless she gave him leave. She had but to laugh, just one little laugh and call him fool—there would be an end. She had only to hide the woman and be the Duchess to stay the words trembling for utterance on this man's lips. Wisdom prompted her to give that little laugh, but her whole being was in revolt. For all the years, after tonight, she must be the Duchess, a wife, but a woman who had never listened to love, to the burning words of a lover, to the rhapsody that other women knew. Her soul was hungry to hear such words, and beside her was a man yearning to utter them—a man who loved her. She was sure he loved her. Why should she not listen? Tonight she would be a woman, just a woman, for one hour, for this one short hour until Bertha came.

"If you were a King, what then?"

It was a whispered question, spoken as a woman speaks when she loves. She did love. Just for this hour she would be natural, would forget the demands of her position, forget those Princes who had come a-wooing because statecraft required it. No jester was before her, but a man, a worthy knight whose love was true, not to be bought with a price; her own true knight who could not lie or speak any word of falsehood. She was a woman—waiting, and of that afterwards which must come she would not think. This hour should be the golden hour to remember, for her and for him. With this hour for a memory she could face what must come afterwards, and she never doubted that her knight could face it just as bravely. She was unconscious of any selfishness.

"If you were a King, Bergolet, what then?"

"I should be a man, mistress, and as a man I remember that I did not please you."

"You will please me now, for I am only a woman tonight, a woman looking into a man's eyes and asking for the truth. You can say nothing that will make me angry tonight."

Bergolet had put his bauble on the floor beside him, now, as he stood up, he took off his cap and let it fall at his feet. The little crash of the silver bells seemed to put an end to the jester.

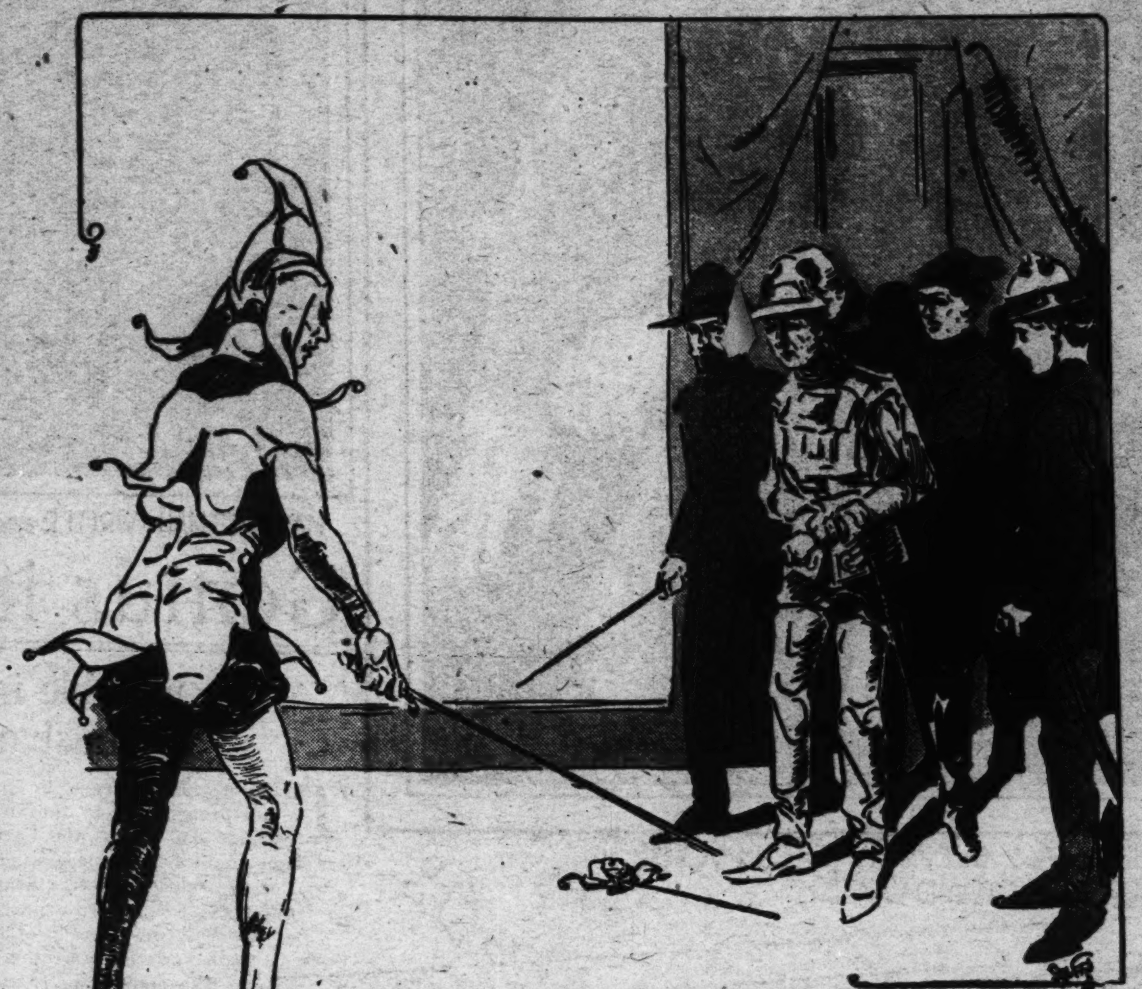
"So, I am a King, then, a man free to speak as he will; but with that freedom comes difficulty in finding words."

He spoke slowly and with many pauses. The quick wit and the ready tongue seemed to have forsaken him.

"Lady, like other Princes I come a-wooing to Metzburg, but I have no well-sounding phrases to utter. I am only your lover, nothing more. I forget all that is past, and the future is empty until you put into my soul new hopes and fresh ambitions. I only know this moment, am only conscious of you and of my worship. What can I say? With a whisper, with a smile you can make me far more than any king. I love you. What does it matter who I am when I love you?"

He went a little nearer to her. She did not move. She was still leaning forward in her chair, but she was not looking at him now.

"I love you. What can it matter who I am? Has not all my life been leading me to this moment? Though it has been a life of changes and chances, some good in it, some evil, yet it has led me to this hour, and to you. Surely some high Providence has guided my course, marked it with sunshine and storm, and led me here to tell you that I love you. Surely it is no chance that finds you here waiting, not chance which has ordained that you shall listen to me?"



"He who would pass this door must needs give me a lesson in swordsmanship first."

He dropped on his knee beside her, and his two hands were clasped over her hand which rested on the arm of the chair.

"And because we have come to this hour, mistress, each by our separate road, to this hour which must forever be sacred, no matter what the future holds for us, I dare to say I love you. All unworthy as I am, I dare to say it. Was there ever man yet wholly worthy to kneel at the feet of a good woman and ask her love?"

He bent and kissed the hand resting on the chair arm.

"In the castle tonight there are Princes who have asked for this little hand. I would not say that love has not touched some of them, it would be strange indeed if they could only dream of ambition in your presence; but I think there has been no echo to any love of theirs in your heart. Is there no echo there now? Has my love no power to call from your soul an answering harmony? Lift your eyes and let me look into them. I shall know if I look into your eyes."

It was almost against her will that she raised her eyes to his.

"I see fear in them, but there is love behind the fear. Love is worth a thousand times all that any Prince can give you of worldly state or security. It is the one strong, binding link we have with heaven, and to the man or woman who plays with love there follows certain retribution. Tonight we come to the great test. Even a kingdom were well lost for love."

"Yes," she whispered, "but there is duty."

"Love, only love tonight," he answered. "Be true to that and nothing is lost. What is a kingdom, what is all your state but a passing show? Were I a king, I would barter crown and power and worldly ambition, all I had and hoped for, to win the richer crown of a woman's love, the crown of your love, to reign supreme in the kingdom of your heart. I am at your feet, mistress, stripped of all I possess, poor in all save love; bend down to me, crown me, make me richer, happier than any man in all the world."

"Bergolet, who are you?"

The question came with trembling earnestness, for she knew that she loved this man, and it was impossible she could love her jester.

"You have made me a King for tonight," he answered, "and it profits me only in this, that I am free to tell my love. I think I can read your heart, mistress. Come St. Winifried's day you must choose a husband, some princeling who shall be no danger to your state, nor embroil you with other rulers; but tonight you were tempted to be yourself, to let the woman sway the Duchess, to be guided by all that is highest in you."

"It is true," she whispered.

"I also have put off the jester tonight, and am myself, my best self, your lover."

"I know. I know."

"How will you answer me?" he said.

She was silent. She was leaning back in the chair now. He waited a little while, then pressed his lips to her hand again and rose to his feet.

"What is my answer, mistress?"

"Is there any possible answer?" she said with a little gesture of despair.

"Mistress, do you love me?"

For a moment she looked at him. Then she stood up.

"Yes, I love you. I care not who you are. I am a woman, and I love you. Now hate me."

"Hate you!"

"For what I have done," she said passionately. "I have let you tell me because I was hungering to hear it. I am utterly selfish, but not wantonly cruel. I love you, that is my excuse. Love has come to me only since you came to Metzburg. I have looked at the jester and despised myself; and then, in spite of your dress, I have only been able to see the man, and for a little while I have been a woman—just a woman who wanted love. If it helps you, you may know that I shall always love you, but"——

He caught her hands in his.

"But on St. Winifried's day I choose a husband. I am bound to do it. I shall know no other love, only a husband. You may pity him and me."

He might have taken her in his arms, she would not have resisted him, but he only raised her hands to his lips.

"I understand, mistress, I shall"——

He stepped back quickly, for a frightened woman servant rushed into the room, flinging the door to behind her.

"Fly, Your Grace, quickly! They are coming!"

She had crossed and opened the door into the inner room.

"Who is coming?" demanded the Duchess.

"Enemies. I know not who they are. Quickly, Your Grace! This way!"

Bergolet had stooped and caught up his bauble from the floor. It was a poor weapon, but it was something, in his hand.

"Go quickly, mistress," he said.

"I will stay," she whispered. "Perhaps this is the real answer, the right road for both of us."

"No, no," said Bergolet.

"There is no time to spare," said the servant.

"I will stay," the Duchess whispered.

"You shall not, mistress," said Bergolet. "I am your King for tonight. Go quickly. I shall keep them back a little while, and help will come."

"Let me stay."

"Rather than that we will both go."

He went with her to the door leading into the inner room, and then as she passed through before him he hastily asked her pardon and closed the door after her, slipping the bolt on the outside. Villains might quickly break down this door. He must defend it as long as he could. What enemies were they against whom he must hold it with only his bauble for weapon?

Quickly the other door was flung open and men with drawn swords, eight or ten of them, Bergolet did not count how many, rushed in. Kurd was there, and Rahmer, and close behind them was Prince Karl. Desperate enemies these, with some vile scheme behind their naked blades, perhaps the vilest of all—murder. It seemed that they had not expected to find anyone in this room, and they came to a sudden standstill, seeing the jester standing before the inner door, his bauble lying across his arm.

"Pardon, gentlemen, but Her Grace does not receive tonight," said Bergolet.

"Stand aside, fool," Karl said with an oath.

"I assure Your Highness I have most definite instructions. Her Grace will receive none of you tonight."

"This is no jest, nor is it a fencing lesson," said the Prince. "You haven't even a sword to be afraid of. Stand aside."

"No doubt Her Grace will receive you tomorrow. For some of you I believe she has looked rather anxiously."

"If he will have it, let him," cried Karl savagely, knowing that there was danger in delay.

Kurd rushed forward. He had no love for the jester, and no compunction in attacking an unarmed man. It may be that his foot slipped on the fool's cap, lying on the floor, but however it was, when his sword was thrust viciously at the jester's heart the bauble met it with a dull blow, turned it aside and twisted it from his grasp.

With an oath of astonishment and some fear in it perhaps, Kurd staggered back, while in an instant Bergolet had caught up the weapon.

"Better odds, Prince Karl," he cried. "At least I have a sword, and he who would pass this door must needs give me a lesson in swordsmanship first. Which fool of you will take my staff of office? I have no further use for it," and with a laugh he flung the bauble into the midst of them.

CHAPTER XXII.

Only the Jester.

"YOU shall have your lesson, jester," cried Rahmer as the bauble fell, and the next moment steel rang on steel.

This time there was no slipping foot to give the jester advantage. Kurd would have played the butcher on a defenseless man; Rahmer would at least kill according to rule.

"Your lesson, jester," he said quietly.

He had seen Bergolet handle a sword when Prince

Genius in Double Harness

Notable instances in American life of great success won by husbands and wives in the arts and professions

THAT genius can travel in double harness as well as in single has been proved by the numerous cases in America of husbands and wives who have each won fame, sometimes in the same profession and sometimes in widely different callings.

It is not uncommon for theatrical stars to marry within the profession and for both the husband and wife to continue stage careers, and a study of American artists and authors reveals that the same thing is true in these professions.

The many happily married couples who have become successful in art, literature, the theatrical or other professions, and at the same time maintain homes and enjoy all the pleasures of domestic life, tend to disprove the argument, frequently used by opponents of woman suffrage, that the woman who takes an active part in business loses her influence in the home and that her duties to her family are neglected.

It has often been charged that matrimony interferes with genius, but in many instances it has been shown to be a decided aid. Men and women who, for instance, are writers, by the co-operation which a husband and wife would naturally have in the work of the other, often find that the work becomes better and easier to perform.

Louise Closser Hale, noted actress and author, and her husband, Walter Hale, who is a successful artist, are among the examples which may be cited of couples each of whom possesses genius, who are happily married. Mrs. Hale is better known than her husband. She is the author of "A Motor Car Divorce," "The Actress," "The Married Miss Worth," and "Her Soul and Her Body." She has also written many magazine stories.

Charles Rann Kennedy, author, poet and theatrical manager, who won fame by his books, "The Servant in the House," "The Winterfest," "The Terrible Meek," "The Necessary Evil" and "The Idol-Breaker," is probably no more famous than his wife, Edith Wynne Matthison, the actress. Mrs. Kennedy has been at her best in some of the plays that were written by her husband, but her name was well known before her marriage to him. She began her career in musical comedy and has since had leading roles in Greek plays, Shakespearean and other Elizabethan productions. Mr. and Mrs. Kennedy live in New York.

James Preston and his wife, May Wilson Preston, are successful painters and illustrators. Mrs. Preston's work is probably better known than her husband's. She studied in the New York Art School and in the Whistler School in Paris, and has illustrated several books and done much magazine work. The Prestons have a studio in New York.

Edgar Selwyn and his wife, Margaret Mayo, are playwrights and former actors. They are the authors of "Twin Beds," and "Baby Mine."

Channing Pollock is well known in theatrical circles as a dramatist and his wife, Anna Marble, has been successful as a press agent and is the author of several vaudeville plays.

Among Pollock's most successful plays are "A Game of Hearts," "The Red Widow," "The Inner Shrine" and "The Beauty Shop." Besides his many plays he is the author of "Behold The Man," and several stage stories and magazine articles.

Joseph O'Brien and his wife, Mary Heaton Vorse, are both socialists and writers. Among her books are: "Breaking in of a Yachtsman's Wife," "The Very Little Person," "The Autobiography of an Elderly Woman," and "The Heart's Country." She has written many magazine stories.

"BLISTER"

BY JOHN TAINTOR FOOTE

THIS is introducing Mr. "Blister" Jones—horse trainer, philosopher and humorist; virtuoso in the picturesque slang of the turf; devotee to the noble thoroughbred and disciple of the "sport of kings"—one of the most likable and pungent personalities in present-day fiction.

In this story, the first of a series of six, "Blister" reveals how he came into possession of his remarkable cognomen. The author, John Tainitor Foote, was a Kentucky newspaper reporter who suddenly won fame with his stories of the race track. But you don't need to be interested in horse racing to enjoy these stories.

HOW my old-young friend "Blister" Jones acquired his remarkable nickname, I learned one cloudless morning late in June.

Our chairs were tipped against No. 84 in the curving line of box stalls at Latonia. Down the sweep of white-washed stalls the upper doors were yawning wide, and from many of these openings, velvet black in the sunlight, sleek, snaky heads protruded.

My head rested in the center of the lower door of 84. From time to time a warm moist breath, accompanied by a gigantic sigh, would play against the back of my neck; or my hat would be pushed a bit farther over my eyes by a wrinkling muzzle—for Tambourine, gazing out into the green of the centerfield, felt a vague longing and wished to tell me about it.

The track, a broad tawny ribbon with a lacework edging of white fence, was before us; the "upper-turn" with its striped five-eighths pole, not fifty feet away. Some men came and set up the starting device at this red and white pole, and I asked Blister to explain to me just what it meant.

"Goin' to school 2-year-olds at the barrier," he explained. And presently — mincing, sidling, making futile leaps to get away, the boys on their backs standing clear above them in the short stirrups—a band of deer-like young thoroughbreds assembled, 30 feet or so from the barrier.

Then there was trouble. Those sweet young things performed, with the rapidity of thought, every lawless act known to the equine brain. They reared. They plunged. They bucked. They spun. They surged together. They scattered like startled quail. I heard squeals, and saw vicious shiny hoofs lash out in every direction; and the dust spun a yellow haze over all.

"Those jockeys will be killed!" I gasped.

"Jockeys!" exclaimed Blister contemptuously. "Them ain't jockeys—they're exercise-boys. Do you think a jock would school a 2-year-old?"

A man, who Blister said was a trainer, stood on the fence and acted as starter. Language came from this person in volcanic blasts, and the seething mass, where infant education was brewing, boiled and boiled again.

"That bay filly's a nice-lookin' trick, Four Eyes!" said Blister, pointing out a 2-year-old standing somewhat apart from the rest. "She's by Hamilton 'n' her dam's Alberta, by Seminole."

The bay filly, I soon observed, had more than beauty—she was so obviously the outcome of a splendid and selected ancestry. Even her manners were aristocratic. She faced the barrier with quiet dignity and took no part in the whirling riot except to move disdainfully aside when it threatened to engulf her. I turned to Blister and found him gazing at the filly with a far-away look in his eyes.

"Ole Alberta was a grand mare," he said presently. "I see her get away last in the Crescent City Derby, 'n' be ten len'ths back at the quarter. But she come from nowhere, collared ole Stonebrook in the stretch, looked him in the eye the last eighth 'n' outgamed him at the wire. She has a hundred 'n' thirty pounds up at that.

"Ole Alberta dies when she has this filly," he went on after a pause. "Judge Dillon, over near Lexington, owned her, 'n' Mrs. Dillon brings the filly up on the bottle. See how nice that filly stands? Handled every day since she was foaled, 'n' never had a cross word. Sugar every mawnin' from Mrs. Dillon. That's way to learn a colt somethin'."

They were off like rockets as the barrier shot up, and the bay filly flashed into the lead. Her slender legs seemed to bear her as though on the breast of the wind. She did not run—she floated—yet the gap between herself and her struggling schoolmates grew ever wider. "Oh, you Alberta!" breathed Blister. Then his tone changed. "Most of these wise Ikes talk about the sire of a colt, but I'll take a good dam all the time for mine!"

"She's a wonder!" I exclaimed, resuming my seat.

"She acts like she'll deliver the goods," Blister conceded. "She's got a lot of step, but it takes more'n that to make a race hoss. We'll know about her when she goes the route, carryin' weight against class."

The colts were now being led to their quarters by stable boys. When the boy leading the winner passed, he threw us a triumphant smile.

"I guess she's bad!" he opined.

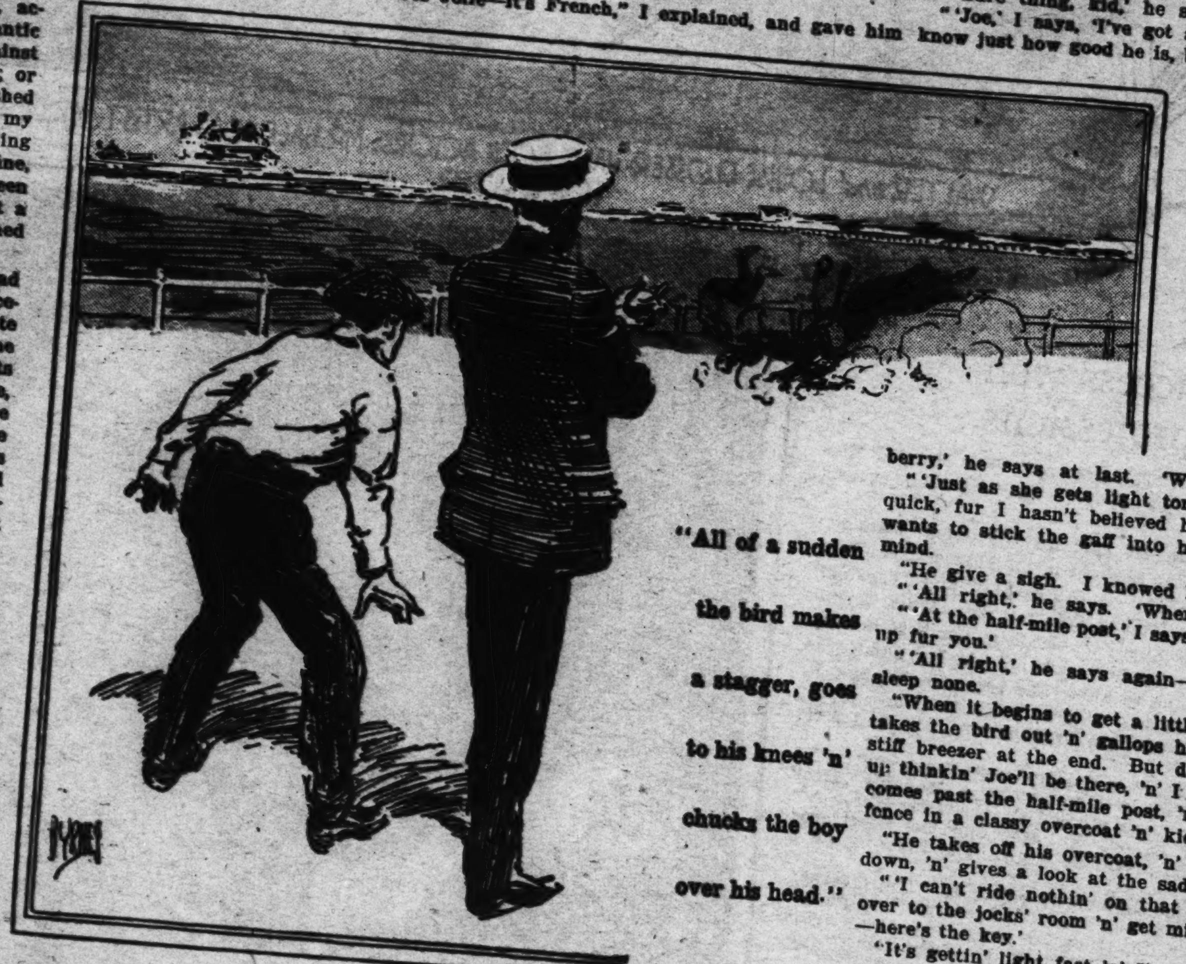
"Ain't it the truth!" agreed the boy.

"What is her name?" I asked, when the pair had gone by.

"They call her Tres Jolly," said Blister. "Now, ain't that a hell of a name? I like a name you can kind-a warble." He pronounced the French phrase exactly as it is written, with an effort at the "J" following the sibilant.

"Tres Jolie—it's French," I explained, and gave him the meaning and proper pronunciation.



"All of a sudden the bird makes a stagger, goes to his knees 'n' chucks the boy over his head."

"Traysyolee!" he repeated after me. "Say, I'm a rube right. Tra-aysyole-e in the stretch byano-o-se!" he intoned with gusto. "You can warble that!" he exclaimed.

"I don't think much of Blister—for beauty," I said. "Of course, that isn't your real name."

"No; I had another once," he replied evasively. "But I never hears it much. The old woman calls me 'that-dambrat,' 'n' the old man the same, only more so. I gets Blister handed to me by the bunch one winter at the New Awlin' meetin'."

"How?" I inquired.

"Wait till I get the makin's 'n' I'll tell you," he said, as he got up and entered the stall.

"One winter I'm swipin' fur Jameson," he began, when he returned with tobacco and papers. "We ships to New Awlins early that fall. We have 12 dogs—half of 'em hop-heads 'n' the other half dinks.

"In them days I ain't much bigger 'n a peanut, but I sure thinks I'm a clever guy. I figger they ain't a gazabo on the track can hand it to me.

"One mawnin' there's a bunch of us ginnies settin' on the fence at the wire, watchin' the workouts. Some trainers 'n' owners is standin' on the track rag-chewin'.

"Say! That bird's right-front tendon is bowed like a barrel stave!

"This Cal Davis is a big owner. He's got all kinds of kale—'n' he don't fool with dinks. He gives one look at the bowed tendon.

"'Anybody that'll lead this hoss off the track, gets him 'n' a month's feed,' he says.

"Before you could spit I has that bird by the head. His swipe ain't goin' to let go of him, but Cal says: 'Turn him loose, boy!' 'N' I'm on my way with the bird.

"That's the first one I ever owns. Jameson loans me a stall fur him. That night a ginnie comes over from Cal's barn with two bags of oats in a wheelbarrow.

"A newspaper guy finds out about the deal, 'n' writes it up so everybody is hep to me playin' owner. One day I see the starter point me out to Col. King, who's the main squeeze in the Judge's stand, 'n' they both laugh.

"I've got all winter before we has to ship, 'n' believe me I sweat some over this bird. I done everythin' to that tendon, except make a new one. In a month I has it in such shape he don't limp, 'n' I begins to stick mile gallops 'n' short breezes into him. He has to wear a stiff bandage on the dinky leg, 'n' I puts one on the left-fore, too—it looks better.

"It ain't so long till I has this bird cherry ripe. He'll take a-holt awful strong right at the end of a stiff mile. One day I turns him loose, fur three-eighths, 'n' he runs it so fast he makes me dizzy.

"I know he's good, but I wants to know how good, before I pays entrance on him. I don't want the clockers to get wise to him, either!

"Joe Nickel's the star jock that year. I've seen many a good boy on a hoss, but I think Joe's the best judge of pace I ever see. One day he's comin' from the weighin' room, still in his silks. His valet's with him carryin' the saddle. I steps up 'n' says:

"'Kin I see you private a minute, Joe?'

"'Sure thing, kid,' he says. 'N' the valet skidoos.

"'Joe,' I says, 'I've got a bird that's right. I don't know just how good he is, but he's awful good. I want to get wise to him before I crowds my dough on the 'Sosiation. Will you give him a work?'

"It takes an awful nerve to ask a jock like Nickel to work a hoss out, but he's the only one can judge pace good enough to put me wise, 'n' I'm desperate.

"'It's that Davis cripple, ain't it?' he asks.

"'That's him,' I says.

"He studies a minute, lookin' steady at me.

"'I'm your huckleberry,' he says at last. 'When do you want me?'

"'Just as she gets light tomorrow mawnin',' I says quick, fur I hasn't believed he'd come through, 'n' I wants to stick the gaff into him 'fore he changes his mind.

"He give a sigh. I knowed he was no early riser.

"'All right,' he says. 'Where'll you be?'

"'At the half-mile post,' I says. 'I'll have him warmed up fur you.'

"'All right,' he says again—'n' that night I don't sleep none.

"When it begins to get a little gray next mawnin' I takes the bird out 'n' gallops him a slow mile with a stiff breezer at the end. But durin' the night I gives up thinkin' Joe'll be there, 'n' I nearly falls off when I comes past the half-mile post, 'n' he's standin' by the fence in a classy overcoat 'n' kid gloves.

"He takes off his overcoat, 'n' comes up when I gets down, 'n' gives a look at the saddle.

"'I can't ride nothin' on that thing,' he says. 'Slip over to the jocks' room 'n' get mine. It's on No. 3 peg—here's the key.'

"It's gettin' light fast 'n' I'm afraid of the clockers.

"'The sharp-shooters'll be out in a minute,' I says.

"'I can't help it,' says Joe. 'I wouldn't ride a bull on that saddle!'

"I see there's no use to argue, so I beats it across the center field, cops the saddle 'n' comes back. I run all the way, but it's gettin' awful light.

"'Send him a mile in forty-five 'n' see what he's got left,' I says, as I throws Joe up.

"'Right in the notch—if he's got the step,' he says.

"I click Jameson's clock on them, as they went away—Joe whisperin' in the bird's ear. The back-stretch was the stretch, startin' from the half. I seen the bird's mouth wide open as they come home, 'n' Joe has double wraps on him. 'He won't beat 50 under that pull!' I says to myself. But when I stops the clock at the finish it was forty-four-'n'-three-quarters. Joe ain't got a clock to go by neither—that's judgin' pace!—take it from me!

"'He's diseased with speed,' says Joe, when he gets down. 'He can do thirty-eight sure—just look at my hands!'

"I does a dance a-bowin' to the bird, 'n' Joe stands there laughin' at me, squeezin' the blood back into his mitts.

"We leads the hoss to the gate, 'n' there's a booky's clocker named Izzy Goldberg.

"'You an exercise boy now?' he asks Joe.

"'Not yet,' says Joe. 'Mu cousin here owns this trick, 'n' I'm givin' him a work.'

"'Naw, he's a mutt,' says Joe.

"'What's he doin' with his mouth open at the end of that mile?' Izzy says, 'n' laughs.

"'He only runs it in fifty', says Joe, careless. 'I takes hold of him 'cause he's bad in front, 'n' he's likely to do a flop when he gets tired. So long, Bud!' Joe says to me, 'n' I takes the bird to the barn.

"I'm not thinkin' Izzy ain't wise. It's a cinch Joe don't stall him. Every booky would hear about that workout by noon. Sure enough the Item's pink sheet has this among the tips the next day:

"'Count Noble'—that was the bird's name—'a mile in forty-four. Pulled to a walk at the end. Bet the works on him; his first time out, boys!'

"That was on a Saturday. On Monday I enters the bird among a bunch of dogs to start in a five-furlong sprint Thursday. I'm savin' every soomarkee I gets my hands on 'n' I pays the entrance to the secretary like it's a mere bag of shells. Joe Nickel can't ride fur me—he's under contract. I meets him the day before my race.

"'You're levelin' with your hoss, ain't you?' he says.

"BLISTER" (Continued)

'I'll send my valet in with you, 'n' after you get yours on, he'll bet two hundred fur me.'

"'Nothin' doin', Joe!' I says. 'Stay away from it. I'll tell you when I gets ready to level. You can't bet them bookies nothin'—they're wise to him.'

"'Look-a-here, Bud!' says Joe. 'That bird'll cake-walk among them crabs. No jock can make him lose, 'n' not get ruled off.'

"'Leave that to me,' I says.

"Just as I figgers—my hoss opens up eight-to-five in the books.

"I gives him all the water he'll drink afore he goes to the post, 'n' I has bandages on every leg. The paddock judge looks at them bandages, but he knows the bird's a cripple, 'n' he don't feel 'em.

"'Them's to hold his legs on, ain't they?' he says, 'n' grins.

"'Surest thing you know,' I says. But I feels some easier when he's on his way—there's seven pounds of lead in each of them bandages.

"'This hoss backs up if you use the bat on him,' I says to the jock, as he's tyin' his reins.

"'He backs up anyway, I guess,' he says, as the parade starts.

"The bird gets away good, but I'd overdone the lead in his socks. He finished a nasty last—thirty len'ths back.

"'Roll over, kid!' says the jock, when I go up to slip him his fee. 'Not fur ridin' that hippo. It 'ud be buglary—he couldn't beat a piano!'

"I meets Col. King comin' out of the judge's stand that evenin'.

"'An owner's life has its trials and tribulations—eh, my boy?' he says.

"'Yes, sir!' I says. That's the first time Col. King ever speaks to me, 'n' I swells up like a toad. 'I'm gettin' to be all the gravy 'round here,' I says to myself.

"Two days after this they puts an overnight mile run fur maidens on the card, 'n' I slips the bird into it. I knowed it was takin' a chance so soon after his bad race, but it looks so soft I can't stay 'way from it. I goes to Cal Davis 'n' tells him to put a bet down.

"'Oh, ho;' he says. 'Lendin' me a helpin' hand, are you?' Then I tells him about Nickel.

"'Did Joe Nickel work him out for you?' he says. 'The best is good enough fur you, ain't it? I'll see Joe, 'n' if it looks good to him I'll take a shot at it. Much obliged to you.'

"'Don't never mention it,' I says.

"'How do you mean that?' he says, grinnin'.

"'Both ways,' says I.

"The mawnin' of the race, I'm givin' the bird's bad leg a steamin', when a black swipe named Duckfoot Johnson tells me I'm wanted on the phone over to the secretary's office, 'n' I gets Duckfoot to go on steamin' the leg while I'm gone.

"It's a feed man on the phone, wantin' to know when he gets sixteen bucks I owe him.

"'The bird'll bring home your coin at 4 o'clock this afternoon,' I tells him.

"'Well, that's lucky,' he says. 'I thought it was throwed to the birds, 'n' I didn't figure they'd bring it home again.'

"When I gets back there's a crap game goin' on in front of the stall, 'n' Duckfoot's shootin'. There's a hot towel on the bird's leg, 'n' it's been there too long. I takes it off 'n' feel where small blisters has begun to raise under the hair—a little more 'n' it 'ud been clear to the bone. I cusses Duckfoot good, 'n' rubs vaseline into the leg."

I interrupted Blister long enough to inquire:

"Don't they blister horses sometimes to cure them of lameness?"

"Sure," he replied. "But a hoss don't work none fur quite a spell afterwards. A blister, to do any good, fixes him so he can't hardly raise his leg fur two weeks.

"Well," he went on, "the race fur maidens was the last thing on the card. I'm in the betting ring when they chalks up the first odds, 'n' my hoss opens at 25-to-1. The two entrance monkeys have about cleaned me. I'm only 20 green men strong. I peels off 10 of 'em 'n' shoved up to a booky.

"'On the nose fur that one,' I says, pointin' to the bird's name.

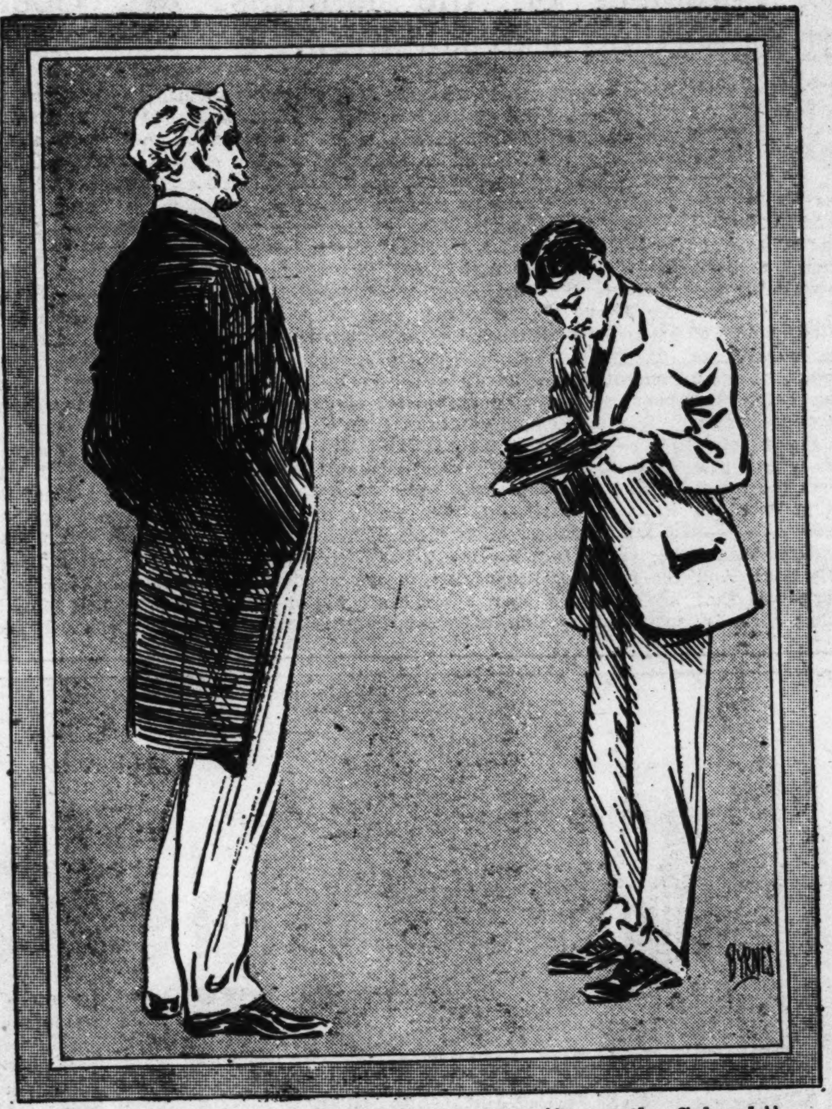
"'Quit your kiddin',' he says. 'What 'ud you do with all that money? This fur yours.' 'N' he rubs to 12-to-1.

"'Ain't you the liberal gink?' I says, as he hands me the ticket.

"I starts fur the next book, but say!—the odds is just meltin' away. Joe's 'n' Cal's dough is comin' down the line, 'n' the gazabos, thinkin' it's wise money, trails. By post-time the bird's a 1-to-3 shot.

"I've give the mount to Sweeney, 'n' like a nut I puts him hep to the bird, 'n' he tells his valet to bet a hundred fur him. The bird has on socks again, but this time they're empty, 'n' the race was a joke. He breaks fifth at the get-away, but he just mows them dogs down. Sweeney keeps thinkin' about that hundred, I guess, 'cause he rode the bird all the way, 'n' finished a million len'ths in front.

"I cashes my ticket, 'n' starts fur the barn to sleep with that bird, when here comes Joe Nickel.



"'Keep that horse blistered from now on!' says the Colonel."

"'He run a nice race,' he says, grinnin', 'n' hands me six hundred bucks.

"'What's this fur?' I says. 'You better be careful. . . . I got a weak heart.'

"'I win twelve hundred to the race,' he says. ''N' we splits it two ways.'

"'Nothin' doin',' I says, 'n' tries to hand him back the wad.

"'Go awn!' he says, 'I'll give you a soak in the ear. I bet that money fur you, kiddo.'

"I looks at the roll 'n' gets wobbly in the knees. I never see so much kale before—not at one time. Just then we hears the announcer sing out through a megaphone:

"'The o-o-owner of Count Nobul-l-l-l is wanted in the judge's stand!'

"'Oy, oy!' says Joe. 'You'll need that kale—you're goin' to lose your happy home. It's Katy bar the door fur yours, Bud!'

"'Don't worry—watch me tell it to 'em,' I says to Joe, as I stuffs the roll 'n' starts fur the stand. I was feelin' purty good.

"'Wait a minute,' says Joe, runnin' after me. 'You can't tell them people nothin'. You ain't wise to that bunch yet, Bud—why, they'll kid you silly before they hand it to you, 'n' then change the subject to somethin' interestin', like where to get a pompono cooked to suit 'em. I've been up against it,' he says, ''n' I'm tellin' you right. Just keep stallin' around when you get in the stand, 'n' act like you don't know the war's over.'

"'Furget it,' I says. 'I'll show those big stiffs where to head in. I'll hypnotize the old owls. I'll give 'em a song 'n' dance that's right!'

"As I goes up the steps I see the judges settin' in their chairs, 'n' I takes off my hat. Col. King ain't settin', he's standin' up with his hands in his pockets. Somehow, when I sees him I begins to wilt—he looks so clean. He's got a white mustache, 'n' his face is kind-a brown 'n' pink. He looks at me a minute out of them blue eyes of his.

"'Are you the owner of Count Noble, Mr.——er——?"

''Jones, Sir,' I says.

"'Jones?' says the Colonel.

"'Yes, sir,' I says.

"'Mr. Jones,' says the Colonel, 'how do you account for the fact that on Thursday Count Noble performs disgracefully, and on Saturday runs like a stake horse? Have the days of the week anything to do with it?'

"I never says nothin'. I just stands there lookin' at him, foolin' with my hat.

"'This is hell,' I thinks.

"'The judges are interested in this phenomenon, Mr. Jones, and we have sent for you, thinking perhaps you can throw a little light on the matter,' says the Colonel, 'n' waits fur me again.

"'Come on . . . get busy!' I says to myself. 'You can kid along with a bunch of bums, 'n' it sounds good—don't get cold feet the first time some class opens his bazoo at you!' But I can't make a noise like a word, on a bet.

"'The judges, upon looking over the betting sheets of the two races in which your horse appeared, find them quite interesting,' says the Colonel. 'The odds were short in the race he did not win; they remained unchanged—in fact, rose—since only a small amount was wagered on his chances. On the other hand, these facts are reversed in today's race, which he won. It seems possible that you and your friends who were pessimists on Thursday became optimists today, and benefited by the change. Have you done so?'

"I see I has to get some sort-a language out of me.

"'He was a better hoss today—that's all I knows about it,' says I.

"'The first part of your statement seems well within the facts,' says the Colonel. 'He was, apparently, a much better horse today. But these gentlemen and myself, having the welfare of the American thoroughbred at heart, would be glad to learn by what method he was so greatly improved.'

"I don't know why I ever does it, but it comes to me how Duckfoot leaves the towel on the bird's leg, 'n' I don't stop to think.

"'I blistered him,' I says.

"'You—what?' says the Colonel. I'd have give up the roll quick, sooner'n spit it out again, but I'm up against it.

"'I blisters him,' I says.

"The Colonel's face gets red. His eyes bung out 'n' he turns 'round 'n' starts to cough 'n' make noises. The rest of them judges does the same. They holds on to each other 'n' does it. I know they're givin' me the laugh fur that fierce break I makes.

"'You're outclassed, kid!' I says to myself. 'They'll tie a can to you, sure. The gate fur yours!'

"Just then Col. King turns round, 'n' I see I can't look at him no more. I looks at my hat, waitin' fur him to say I'm ruled off. I've got a lump in my throat, 'n' I think it's a bunch of bright conversation stuck there. But just then a chunk of water rolls out of my eye, 'n' hits my hat—pow! It looks bigger'n Lake Erie, 'n' 'fore I kin jerk the hat away—pow!—comes another one. I knows the Colonel sees 'em, 'n' I hopes I croak.

"'Ahem—,' he says.

"'Now I get mine!' I says to myself.

"'Mr. Jones,' says the Colonel, 'n' his voice is kind-a cheerful. 'The judges will accept your explanation. You may go if you wish.'

"Just as I'm goin' down the steps the Colonel stops me.

"'I have a piece of advice for you, Mr. Jones,' he says. His voice ain't cheerful neither. It goes right into my gizzard. I turns and looks at him. 'Keep that horse blistered from now on!' says the Colonel.

"Some ginnies is in the weighin' room under the stand, 'n' hears it all. That's how I gets my name."

FOODS THAT MOST INFLUENCE GROWTH

THE growth of a child from infancy to manhood is an unsolved mystery; that is to say, the exact method by which the body and its several organs keep steadily increasing in size until they reach a certain point, and then stop, is not yet explained. Prof. Lafayette B. Mendel, who has been studying these phenomena for several years at the Sheffield Scientific School of Yale University, contributes to the Journal of the American Medical Association a long report on the role played by nutrition in this mysterious process of growth.

There are, he says, two different sources of the growth impulse. One is internal, largely hereditary and inherent; the other is external, involving the environment and including the food supply. Nutrition can only give the growth impulse free play; neither can succeed without the other. Everybody needs a certain amount of nutriment merely to compensate for wear and tear. A full-grown person actually needs no more protein and inorganic salt than will thus compensate, but during the period of growth the intake of proteins and salts must exceed the demand for wear and tear, for the excess is needed for the formation or completion of new cells.

Growth cannot be stimulated by increase of material. It can be stopped or rendered latent by an insufficient supply of protein, as M. Ruebner has shown; but protein cannot raise the rapidity of growth above the limits set by nature.

A new conception of the process of growth has recently arisen. No longer do we picture the food entering unchanged, or at most only slightly altered, into the cycle of metabolism. It used to be supposed that animal cells alone would build up animal flesh, but this left out of account the solid flesh that an ox makes out of grass. Prof. Aberhalden has shown that the tissues are independent of the gross peculiarities of the ingested foods; they select what they need for growth, for repair and fuel out of the shattered remains of the food. The food, whether this be animal or vegetable, is broken up chemically into far more minute parts than the protein cells, for example. These have certain chemical constituents, to which the Germans have given the name "Bausteine," or "building stones," grouped in varying proportions in different ailments, and each organ of the body selects such building stones as it needs.

These structural units of the several proteins are called amino-acids. There are at least 18 of these. Some of them can be manufactured in the body; others must be introduced in the food. The latter, or at least some of them, are absolutely necessary to growth. Some proteins are lacking in one or more of these essential amino-acids. Corn, for example, contains no tryptophan or lysin; so it alone is insufficient as a diet. But cheese and wheat and eggs contain both.

Dr. Mendel's experiments have not yet gone far enough to prove whether fat is necessary or not, but they point to the conclusion that it is.

Another conclusion, drawn not only from Mendel's but from the experiments of many others, is that all attempts to grow animals on diets consisting of carefully purified isolated foodstuffs instead of highly complex food mixtures that constitute the familiar rations of everyday life, sooner or later result in failure.

Yet another conclusion is that "milk-fat—which includes all the milk constituents soluble in the fats proper—contains something essential to growth." In other words, margarine or lard will not take the place of butter in the dietary of a growing child. Cod liver oil also is proved to be a most valuable nutrient.

COL. GOETHALS' OWN STORY OF BUILDING THE PANAMA CANAL

INSTALLMENT EIGHT.

BY MAJOR-GENERAL GEORGE W. GOETHALS,
Governor of the Canal Zone.

Friction with Young Men's Christian Association over its refusal to permit games in clubhouses on Sunday, so that employes resorted to saloons and pool rooms in Panama and Colon ❧ Handling the liquor problem on the Isthmus ❧ Goethals' court for settling domestic troubles

A NUMBER of the tangles that needed unraveling were due to nothing more or less than the braggadocio of some of the men who claimed to be receiving greater pay or more privileges than they actually were, and which others felt they should also enjoy.

An instance in point occurred as I was moving my belongings from Ancon to Culebra the Sunday morning after I had assumed charge. The train was crowded and the vacant place beside me was taken by a man I didn't know, who regaled me with the fact that there were to be "great doings" the following week, for a party of New York capitalists was coming down en route to South America, where the construction of a continental railroad was to be undertaken, and engineers were to be taken from the canal. He had received an offer of $400 per month, but as this was no better than the pay he was receiving, and as he had six weeks' leave with pay due him, he was holding out for $500 and expected to get it. I had met, I thought, all the men drawing such salaries, and he certainly was not among them. We parted at Culebra.

The following morning I again met this companion of mine at the site of the Sosa-Corozal Dam, carrying an instrument. We passed the time of day and met again at the Corozal Station. There was time, before the train left, for me to go to the hotel for some ice water, and he joined me after inquiring where I was going. At the hotel I found that the steward was a man who had served at West Point while I was there; the recognition was mutual, and he inquired what he could do for the Colonel.

My companion stared at me somewhat dazed, asked who I was, and, on learning, exclaimed: "My God! And I was talking with you yesterday!" It appeared that he didn't want a drink, after all, as he left abruptly. I found that he was employed as a rodman at $1000 a year. He left the service later to accept a more lucrative position in the States, and we parted good friends.

In the endeavor to make the Isthmus attractive and to secure a contented force, clubhouses were built by the Government and turned over to the Young Men's Christian Association management for operation. These clubhouses were constructed in the larger settlements and did much to accomplish the desired end.

Prior to the opening of the first clubhouse, I found that considerable feeling existed among the men against the institution, for there was a large Catholic element in the force, and there was an idea extant that those of the faith would be excluded from membership through the exercise of religious ceremonies to which they could not conform. The affairs of the clubs were to be in charge of an Advisory Board to be appointed by the chairman of the commission, and I appointed on the board a Catholic for the very purpose of overcoming this feeling.

The women and children were admitted, and the children between certain ages had the privileges of the clubs during hours which would not interfere with the men. The women liked to lounge in the lobbies of these buildings in the evenings. This proved attractive to the class sometimes scornfully designated as "pen pushers," but I fear deterred numbers of the men who, in Isthmanian nomenclature, were known as "roughnecks," from taking advantage of the attractions offered by the clubs.

Sunday was one of the days when some sort of amusement was required. The clubhouses on Sundays afforded diversion and recreation through their libraries, magazines and newspapers to those classes of employes who were given to reading, but the construction men—those in the ditch and on the locks and dams—found little enjoyment in that way, and could not take advantage of the games which were provided, for they were prohibited on Sundays. Their only recourse, therefore, was to seek their pleasures in the terminal cities, Panama and Colon, where the saloons, shooting galleries, billiard and pool rooms, and bowling alleys were open. I strongly favored the use of all the facilities of the clubhouses on Sunday, but I found a strong opposition to this on the part of the management, though a canvass of the force showed that a majority preferred such a course.

When the general secretary of the Y. M. C. A. visited the Isthmus we discussed the situation, but I could make no headway with him; he felt that such a radical change in their policy would be the cause of just criticism and censure, and announced that the Y. M. C. A. would withdraw from the management of our clubhouses should such a course be adopted. Conditions on the Isthmus were so entirely different from those in any locality in the United States that I argued in favor of an exception; men at home had no such cities as those at the terminals of the canal; the temptations were greater and the restraining influences less.

While admitting this, he contended that others would not understand, and he even doubted if there would be so very many who would forsake the flesh-pots and the devil, as offered in Panama and Colon, for the benefits of the clubhouses. It is true that there might not have been many, but, having seen a number of men go to the bad, I felt that if one were saved it would offset the criticism that would follow. He was obdurate, and, realizing that I would be unable to effect a change of policy because of the influence that would be exerted against me, I gave up the idea for a time.

When the reorganization of the force was arranged the largest canal settlement was in such close proximity to Panama that I again took up the question, and through the influence of Mr. Cleveland H. Dodge and Mr. Cyrus H. McCormick, both of whom, fortunately, visited the Isthmus at an opportune time, Sunday opening was secured, with the proviso, to which I gladly consented, that games would not be allowed during the hours set aside for the church services.

With our employes drawn from all classes and every place—from every state in the Union and from the large cities as well as the rural communities—it is not surprising that there was some discord and instances in which husband and wife failed to pull together in double harness. In the United States such cases would be carried to a law court, but this was rarely done on the Isthmus; instead, the complaining person came to my office, and, after I had heard his or her (more frequently her) side, a formal investigation would ensue, with statements from those directly interested, and from others who might know whether Mr. Smith was really abusive and cruel towards Mrs. Smith, had refused to purchase for her a proper amount of clothing, had come home intoxicated the previous Saturday night and broken the dishes, had been unduly attentive to Mrs. Jones—or whatever might be the moving cause of the complaint.

In some cases we were able to pour oil on the troubled waters so that the domestic ship sailed on smoothly thereafter. If this could not be done, the arrangement was made that was considered fair and best for all concerned. A lot of what amounted to alimony—an agreed sum of money given monthly—has been paid in the Zone without the intervention of a court of law. I fear that my decisions have not been uniformly wise, but the procedure has had advantages to the principals—they were not kept in suspense, but were given a quick decision, and they had to pay no court costs or attorney's fees.

The greatest part of the force did not belong to the teetotaler class, nor did the prohibition movement have many supporters outside of the clergy. When the United States assumed control there were saloons in all the settlements that existed, and these were continued, but when new settlements were established saloon licenses were not extended to them. Consequently, we had some "wet" and some "dry" towns.

The license fee was a high one, $1200 a year, and an analysis of the liquor sold within the Zone was made from time to time, with the penalty of the revocation of the license in cases where adulteration was found.

The saloons were segregated, kept under the constant surveillance of the police, and the hours for business prescribed and strictly enforced. Later regulations prohibited the use of chairs and tables in the barrooms, thus removing those comforts which might tend to loitering or conviviality. Giving credit by the saloons to their patrons was discouraged through refusal by the authorities to render any assistance in the collection of bills. Again, all cases of alcoholism treated in the hospitals were reported and noted on the personal records, the men understanding that alcoholism was a cause for discharge from the service.

It is a curious fact, but the police records showed that there were more arrests for disorderly conduct due to liquor in the towns where liquor was not sold than in the others, and this was for the reason that in the former places the men would bring the liquor out from the terminal cities by the bottle and drink until the supply was exhausted, while in the latter, being obliged to stand as they drank, there was not so much temptation to overindulgence, and the men, after they had satisfied their thirst, went to their homes or about their business.

The ministers employed by the commission, and others, protested against the granting of licenses within the Zone, and occasionally letters on the subject reached us from the United States. The work was of the earth earthy, and the men engaged on it were more of the sinning class than saints. We employed the ministers to look after the spiritual welfare of our people, and I suggested to them that if they would make the men more saintly through their teachings and labors among them the saloons would disappear without the necessity of administrative action. So long as liquor was so easily purchasable in the terminal cities, I much preferred that the saloons be kept in the Zone, where our men could remain under the observation of our own people and where unadulterated liquor could be bought.

When Las Cascades was turned over for occupation to the Tenth Infantry, the saloons in that community were closed, and later, after discussing the question with the Secretary of War, Mr. Henry L. Stimson, I agreed that at the expiration of the term of the licenses for 1913 the saloons at Empire, the nearest settlement, would be closed also, for they were too accessible to the enlisted men. I was very anxious to start a canteen for the benefit of the employes and the soldiers, but the necessary authority could not be obtained.

When the closing of the saloons at Empire was discussed at the commission meeting in April, 1913, it was decided to close those at Culebra and Gatun at the same time, those being the only remaining towns in the Zone where liquor was sold. By this time the construction work was drawing to a close, making it necessary to reduce the force employed, and many of the drinkers were selected for discharge, so that the drinking element was reduced materially though it did not disappear entirely.

Every encouragement was and is given to tennis and baseball. For the latter an Isthmian league was formed, and employes organized stock companies, laid out grounds and built grand stands. There was great rivalry among the teams in their effort for the championship; professionalism crept in, finally, and practically ruined the game.

With the changed conditions due to the closing down of construction work, the abandonment of old settlements, and the building of new ones, the old baseball fields disappeared as well as the league, but recently a new league was organized, lands were assigned for the fields, grand stands were built by the Panama Railroad, and good games of amateur ball are played on Sundays and holidays. The ministers on the Isthmus entered a protest against these Sunday games, but they are played at a time of day when they do not interfere with religious services.

The tropical climate is more apt to prove injurious to a woman from the temperate zone than to a man, and, while the children thrived, the women often suffered in health. The men had their work, and therefore had only the evenings to dispose of, but the women, their household duties finished—and these were necessarily simple—had the days as well as the evenings, and with them time often dragged heavily. Those who stayed in the Zone willingly and cheerfully and proved genuine helpmeets to their husbands were also strong influences for good in the places where they lived; and they deserved high praise.

In September, 1907, Miss Helen Varick Boswell of the Federation of Women's Clubs in the United States, came to the Isthmus to look over the field with a view to making suggestions which would encourage the women of the Zone to form organizations to be affiliated with the General Federation of Women's Clubs. As the result of this visit meetings were held in the clubhouses at various places along the line, interest was stimulated, and women's clubs were finally formed in all of the principal settlements.

These clubs, no doubt, did considerable good in bringing the women together, getting them acquainted, and in other ways. But with a population that shifted as ours did, not only from the Isthmus to the United States, but also from one station to another along the line of the canal, it was difficult for any formal organization of considerable membership to retain its solidarity.

Of the various administrative problems that had to be taken up and solved, those outlined herein were the most difficult, constituting the most tiresome and exhausting of my duties. They were assumed voluntarily and for a purpose. I had learned by experience, both in the army and on civil works, that the best results are obtained through the co-operation of men who are contented and who have confidence in their leader.

THE TRAGEDY OF THE "KARLUK"

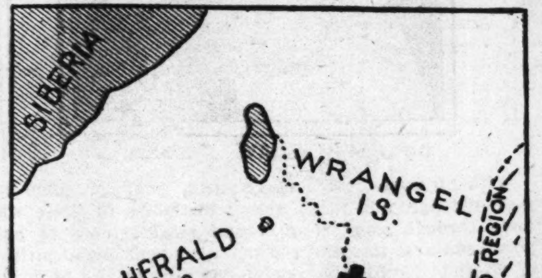
On land at last! Maurer and a companion enjoying their first meal, of tea and seal meat, on Wrangel Island.

survivors of the expedition there, while he would attempt to reach the mainland of Siberia, make his way to some point of civilization, and from there let the Canadian Government know our whereabouts and the danger we were in. He must not be delayed in his efforts to reach the mainland of Siberia.

He examined the barrier and concluded we would have to cut our way through. With picks, axes and shovels we toiled like beavers against the huge walls that were holding us prisoners in a world of ice and snow. It was slow work. Day after day we toiled to make a narrow pass across the barrier, a pass about three or four feet wide and smooth enough to draw our sleds over it. We were six days in making the three miles that took us across. It was with a sense of intense relief that we looked back at this monster wall, and then gazed over the vast level stretch of ice before us.

It was still 40 miles to Wrangel Island, but the trail now presented few difficulties, as the ice was held in position by its proximity to land, or by sandspits extending far out into the sea. It was at the end of these sandspits off the north coast of Wrangel Island that the great ridge or barrier of which I have told was forming. Once over the ridge, we made a dash for the coast 40 miles distant. It took six days. One day we would carry forward half our supplies and cache them, and then return and bring up the remainder the next day.



Route from "Shipwreck Camp" to Wrangel Island, followed by the survivors on their dreadful march to the nearest land.

In this way we made triple marches, forward, back and forward again.

On the sixth day after crossing the barrier we arrived at Wrangel Island. It was the first time we had been on land since the latter part of the July previous. Capt. Bartlett and part of the expedition arrived on land first. The party I was with, was still about three miles off shore, but we could see from the elevated position of the men of the party ahead that they must be on land.

We could see the mountains beyond, and then—Oh, happiness!—we saw smoke rising from a driftwood fire they had built. What a sense of security we enjoyed for the first time in months! We were almost wild with delight. We were on land! No more open leads! No midnight alarms! In their gladness the men dug through the snow so that they might touch the earth with their hands, or pick from the frozen ground a pebble, a real pebble, to feel of it.

There was no sign of vegetation on the island when we arrived; everything was snow covered, and except for the mountains that reared their lofty summits inland, and the knowledge that we were on land, there was little change to the eternal whiteness of the scenery. Of the 25 persons on board the Karluk when she began drifting off Camden Bay, only 17 arrived at Wrangel Island on March 12, 1914.

Karl played with him. Now desperation had given the jester a little firmer hold of his weapon, but Rahmer had no misgivings, as, after a few passes, he sent his sword like lightning to its mark. The steel sang for a moment, a shrill, high-pitched note which came to a sudden end. The scarlet and green flashed in one quick movement, then came a cry, a sharp intake of the breath, and Rahmer, flinging up his arms, turned half round and fell prone. The smile upon his lips was suddenly twisted into a strange contortion.

The jester's death would have meant nothing to these men, they were ready and waiting to pass to their prey over his still quivering body; but it was another matter when Rahmer lay there and Bergolet still stood before the closed door.

"Who is my next teacher?" he cried. "I am waiting. Have you lost all liking for the game, Prince Karl? Since you gave me my first lesson I have improved, I think. Have you no wish to teach me any more?"

It was not a spirit of bravado which prompted him to speak in this contemptuous manner, but the desire to confine the attack to one man. If the Prince took the challenge, the others would hardly interfere, Bergolet argued. They would trust to the Prince's swordsmanship, which was famous, and whatever the issue, time would be gained.

For a moment there was silence, then a man spoke. Whether it was the jester's attitude, or some expression in his watchful eyes, or a shadow which some movement threw across his face, there was sudden recognition.

"Was it you?" Karl exclaimed sharply, and again steel sang on steel. The challenge had been accepted.

The Prince had lost none of his liking for the game, and was little troubled concerning the justice of his cause. He knew now that the jester must purposely have concealed his skill, counting that the deception might one day prove of service to him, that his supposed want of skill might place his mistress' enemies in his hands. He might almost have foreseen this very hour, so much had Karl counted on the jester being unable to offer any defense.

"Was it you?" Karl exclaimed, and in the thought of a settlement of accounts at the sword's point, he forgot all else. A slip had served to disarm Kurd; Rahmer was no great swordsman. Bergolet should have a second lesson and find death at the end of it.

It was a fight of giants, both men knew it, and were wary of each other. The disadvantage lay with Bergolet. Other enemies were in the room; they might at any moment rush to Karl's assistance, or they might seize the opportunity to open the door if it were left for an instant undefended. The jester was not to be tempted from the door by any feint on the part of his adversary, but he could not forget those other enemies, and for one moment his eye left Prince Karl's. It might have been chance, but at the same moment the Prince's sword shot out in a thrust which had often left him victor in a fight. Bergolet parried it, but it came perilously near its mark. Immediately Karl was handling his weapon as though he had made no special effort; he showed no disappointment at his failure, but he marveled at it. He had met a worthy foeman, and, confident in his own skill, he warmed to his work, forgetting everything but the fierce encounter and the lust to kill his enemy. Bergolet was aware that it would not be safe to look away again.

The stroke came again, just sufficiently varied to deceive, but this time Karl had to defend himself desperately from a counter thrust. Had he been too confident the jester's point would have done its work; only carefulness had saved him, and for a space the blades quivered, waiting. The jester's grip seemed to have loosened. Karl's face set in a grimmer line. He had felt that relaxing on the part of an adversary before, and he knew the meaning of it. It was a tired sword that met his own. He tested it again. The iron had gone from his adversary's wrist. It was the moment when such a duel as this might easily end. Just a moment longer he waited, then with a quick feint he sent his sword straight at the jester's heart. It was the end of this fight, but a strange ending. With lightning-like rapidity the blade was deflected and pierced only the jester's sleeve, while Karl gave a sharp cry as steel ran like a flame of fire through his body. For an instant he stood there like a man confused by something unexpected, then his weapon rattled on the floor as his legs bent ludicrously, and he fell in a heap at Bergolet's feet.

A man rushed forward with an oath, but he stopped short before coming within reach of the jester's sword; and as he stopped there was a rush of feet along the corridor, the door was thrown open, and half a dozen men, headed by Capt. Saxe, ente[illegible] the room.

There was no more fighting. The conspirators, robbed of their leader and seeing their greatest hope of safety in surrender, threw down their weapons and submitted quietly to arrest.

"There is no fighting against that devil," said one man. "What was his head bandaged for the other day?"

Hans and Gustav turned quickly to look at the jester. Was it indeed Bergolet who had been their comrade in the fight through the streets and in the Rathaus the other day? Certainly, in spite of his dress, he did not look like a jester just now as he moved from the [illegible] he had defended and bent over the prostrate form of Prince Karl.

"He is grievously hurt, but not dead," said Saxe.

"Get help quickly, Saxe. I would not have him die. He is a villain, but he is Her Grace's cousin."

The sound of many feet was in the corridor as Saxe sent a trooper for help. The news of the attack had reached the guests.

"The Duchess! Where is the Duchess?"

Bertha, who had entered behind Saxe and his men, crossed the room.

"Is she there?" she asked, touching Bergolet's arm, and pointing to the closed door.

"Yes," he answered, and then, with a low word to Saxe, he pushed his way quietly through the guests.

Rupert of Ausburg was lamenting that chance had not given him the opportunity of fighting against such odds for the sake of Her Grace, when Bertha opened the inner door and the Duchess entered the room.

"Long life to Your Grace!" Saxe shouted, and the room rang with a vociferous answer.

"Karl! Is it Karl?"

"Yes, Your Grace," Saxe answered, "but he is not dead."

Quickly! Let him be seen to quickly."

"I have already sent for a surgeon, Your Grace," said Saxe, and in obedience to his orders the Prince was carefully lifted and carried from the room

The Duchess looked slowly round the room.

"I thank you all," she said, "and by your leave I would be left alone."

The guests had gone, only Saxe remained.

"Captain, you will see to our safety," said the Duchess.

Saxe saluted, and as he crossed the room he stooped with the intention of picking up the bauble and the cap of bells which lay there.

"Leave them," said the Duchess quickly.

Saxe went out, closing the door, and for a little space the Duchess remained motionless. She had looked round the room for the scarlet and green figure; she had expected, when the crowd had gone, to see Bergolet standing there. She saw only the cap and bauble.

"Will you give them to me, Bertha?"

Bertha picked them up and put them into her mistress' outstretched hand.

"We must return them to the jester tomorrow," she said quickly.

Old Young Men and Young Old Men

Physician tells how birthdays may be set at defiance and one may grow young instead of old—On other hand, age may invade life during thirties if proper temperance is not observed—Happy marriage most effective protection against havoc of years

DR. J. MARTINE KERSHAW is one of the "young old men" of whom he writes in this article, as he has practised medicine in St. Louis for 40 years and is one of the deans of homeopathy in this city. His vigor of thought is not only illustrated herewith, but was displayed to the interest of many Sunday Post-Dispatch Magazine readers in another article printed some months ago under the title: "Has an Old Man the Right to Live?"

Dr. Kershaw is president of the Medical Research Society, and has served as president of the Missouri Institute of Homeopathy and of the St. Louis Society of Homeopathic Physicians and Surgeons.

By J. Martine Kershaw, M. D.

WHEN a man's birthdays reach threescore and ten, he is commonly looked upon as old. Yet some persons of 70 or 80 years of age are mentally bright and physically quite active. These people are not as old as their birthdays call for. Other people 50 or 60 years of age, or even younger, look very old, are weak mentally and infirm physically. We all know of such cases; but why should the man of 70 years look younger and act younger than the man who is 10 years or more his junior?

It is sometimes a matter of heritage, a matter of remote forefathers, but even then it is a question of health or ill-health. The old, young man carries his burden of disease about with him, and it is heavy; the young, old man carries his burden of many birthdays, but it is light.

All people old in appearance before their time are sick, whether it can be seen or whether it be hidden. Some diseases come to us unbidden, for which the victims are in no way responsible—come like the terrible floods or cyclones that cripple and destroy. These unfortunates grow old and look old long before their time. They are to be pitied because their troubles have come through no fault of their own.

There are others, however, and these are the many, by whom diseases are openly invited and come certainly and surely to the young men who sow wild oats freely and recklessly, and make themselves old while still in their youth. The old man of 45 or 48 years of age, a steady drinker of alcohol, is not in this condition through accident, nor is he old because of too many birthdays.

He has lived the life. He has gone the limit. The candle could not burn at both ends and last the allotted time. No man can dissipate viciously one-third of his life, and expect to give his children a clean bill of health. Every crime against the physical body makes a dent, just as a nail makes a hole in a board: you can cover it with putty, but you cannot rub it out.

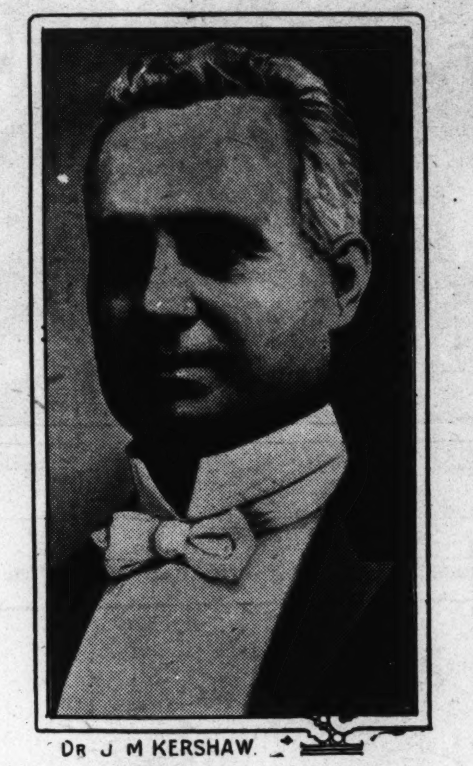
Much of present disease is an inheritance handed down by the near forefathers, or by those living long ago. The survival of the fittest, the modifying influence of fit marriages on the offspring, together with what latter day medicine is doing, and will do in eradicating disease, promise much for the generations to come.

Intemperance in physical exercise, as seen in many athletes, causes many diseased hearts. During racing, boating, or other tests of strength, or contests of endurance, against the protests of nature, they, the contestants, many times keep on, with one final result—a damaged heart, a handicap for life—because ever afterward the heart must be thought of before a step is taken. Because of this the man is not the equal of healthy men of his age, for he cannot, or dare not, overexert physically, or sometimes even mentally.

There are some men who begin to get their tombstones ready early. These men are intemperate in doing their work. They work overtime every day—Sundays and holidays. They work every day, and take their work home with them at night. When they are not doing active work, they are planning it. If they take a vacation, they plan work; they plan work while on their way to and from business; they plan in bed; in their libraries. When their wives and children talk to them, they do not listen—their minds are far away, planning something. A man cannot overwork all the time and keep well. He needs rest at intervals from his daily work. The reading of a good book is helpful. A good laugh is fine medicine; several of them a day are better. No man or woman is the worse for having a funny side. A little of the humorous often helps us over a trying day. The women overwork and worry just as do the men. Every man or woman should do his or her work conscientiously, but we should all have a little vacation or a little play sometime.

A man who overworks constantly narrows his mental vision. If he has no time to laugh, or read a book, or go to a theater, or to a concert, he is already beginning to take short cuts, across back lots, to the graveyard.

Sometimes birthdays seem to be the sole cause of old age, and they are mostly seen in the early-made homes of earnest, self-reliant, hustling, driving men with helpful wives, and little children. These strong, able protectors of the home make, if need be, strong, able, efficient protectors of the state and nation. These men are strong because every hour of their early days was so fully used in preparation for the real, stern business of life, that dissipation and the sowing of wild oats had no place, and the studious boy of yesterday becomes the clean man of tomorrow—full of life and courage, knowing his life's purpose, fit and capable of doing well the things that come to him.



DR J M KERSHAW.

With no waste in the early years, what can come but good old age, and many sunny birthdays to those who have through good counsel and steadfastness of purpose been able to avoid the tempting snares and pitfalls of youth? Nothing so completely fills to the brim the cup of life, nothing so completely protects from evil, as the home of two fit people. It is the resting place of the man, the refuge of the woman and the safety zone of the child.

When in the early days John took unto himself Mary, for better or for worse, they were both satisfied, because Mary had faith in John and John believed that he had found all that was good in Mary; and the dream of the faithful young couple came true. For, as in the beginning they were true lovers, so they have continued to be—Mary always waiting for John and John always, when the night comes on, going home to Mary. The love that began years ago is as strong in the hearts of John and Mary today as it was when the flame was first lighted. The love that they feel in their hearts pervades the home like soft sunlight and brings about a feeling of peace and contentment and restfulness.

"They plan work even while in bed."

From the beginning of the lighting up of love this man and this woman—this husband and this wife—have been full partners in everything. And if the strong, loyal man pledges himself to the woman, and the woman gives herself, her everything to the man, why should they not, as they journey through life, be full partners in everything? The faith of the woman in the man has stimulated his manhood to the utmost and urged him to always do his best: and the security she feels in the man she calls husband, has developed in the wife all the best qualities of her womanhood; so, with every day as it has come to them, they have given, each to the other, the best that they had.

These two lovers, although having any number of birthdays, are still quite young, because, apart from their underlying affection for each other, they have had an abiding faith and trust that has never been shadowed since John first told his love to Mary. As they have journeyed along they have both developed a strong sense of possession. Mary, in little ways, is always looking out for John, and John thinks that he must eternally protect Mary. And so, as the birthdays pile up, the lovers move on past the mileposts, a little slowly, it may be, but cheerfully, leaning upon and helping each other over the rough places as they go.

The best place on earth is the home of a fit man and a fit woman who make it and keep it with their little ones.

Being good in one's old age will not atone for the follies of youth. Nature exacts her pound of flesh and no man can evade the cost.

A man may waste his money, he may waste his food, he may waste in other things, but when he uselessly and needlessly wastes his health and vitality in vicious living, he will, when the day comes, pay the price, and pay in full.

Directly and indirectly I have said much of the home and its influence in tending to perfect living on the part of those who dwell therein and upon those who look from the outside. From the home in its truest sense, and from the home only, can we expect the race to build. The man should be fit because he is mentally and physically well, and the normal woman fit, too, because so rounded out as a healthy woman, with a line of forbears on both sides for generations back, of normal, healthy people, free from the curse of a bad heredity, free from constitutional taint, free from the things that make skeletons in homes.

When all marriages are made because of fitness—fitness of both the man and the woman—the children will grow up and ripen into natural, normal children, and with the extended advantages and training of these modern days, they will prove superior to the parents as individuals. But the fitness of one parent cannot entirely overcome the unfitness of the other, for, too often, hereditary peculiarities and family taints crop out unexpectedly.

The marring, blighting things of a bad heredity seem more markedly stamped on humanity than the perfections of the human body, and strike and mark their victims like some cruel, wicked thing from out of the darkness. Unfitness in both the man and the woman intensifies the unfitness in the children, and makes of them abnormal creatures. Our prisons, workhouses, asylums and houses for incapables are full of them, and there are not enough of these to house them. The unfit man and the unfit woman should not marry.

The making of the home can only come from fit marriages, the having of healthy children can best be assured by fit marriages. We must meet the accidental things that come to us, but no human being should be expected to spend his whole life fighting the shortcomings and transmitted things of the wickedness of his forefathers.

Pipe-stem arteries, nephritis and heart troubles may be set up because of colds, rheumatism, exposure, nerve-strain and other things, but intemperance in eating and drinking only aggravates and hurries the development of disease, intensifies the symptoms, and markedly shortens the life of the individual. Whisky whips up the man and makes his tired heart beat stronger, just as does the blacksnake in the hands of the driver with his team of overloaded mules. The man and the mules make a show of strength for the moment, but it is the whip that does it.

When the day comes, when all the men will be as good as they now demand all the women shall be, we shall have fit marriages, and a new race of normal, healthy people. Most of us will have tombstones well covered with moss by that time, but it will be good for those of us left over to live in an age where there is no need of prisons, refuge houses, asylums and homes for incapables, and all the people will be fit and normal and many birthdays will be the cause of happy old age, because the sins of the fathers are not visited upon the children.

New Aeroplane Stabilizer.

WITH a passenger standing at the end of one of the aeroplane wings and with the pilot's hands free of the steering wheel, the machine was held steady on its course in a recent successful trial of a stabilizing device invented by a Brooklyn man. It consists of four gyroscopes, is 14 inches high, and weighs 40 pounds. If the planes sway even for a moment, the gyroscopes bring them back instantly to the horizontal plane. The pilot's task is easier than driving an auto, merely having to keep the aeroplane on its course.

Wrinkles

$2,500,000 PAID TO SEE SEVEN NEW PLAYS!

Roi Cooper Megrue, author of two of the season's successes.

Elmer L. Reizenstein, author of "On Trial."

Phenomenal theatrical profits this season go largely to novice authors and producers—"On Trial," written by law clerk, earns $400,000 gross, with $30,000 royalties for unknown playwright—"Chin Chin" wins $250,000 net for Charles Dillingham—Big killings made by "Under Cover," "Twin Beds," "Daddy Long-Legs" and "The Only Girl."

BY KARL KITCHEN.

PICKING a winner in the theatrical "sweepstakes," Broadway, New York, is a sporting proposition. Theatrical managers, like other human beings, have a habit of attributing good luck to brains—their brains, of course. They pride themselves on their ability to feel the public's pulse—when they talk for publication. But among themselves the more honest of them admit that when it comes to play producing the Goddess of Chance still rules their destinies.

The theatrical season of 1914-15 which is now drawing to a close furnished striking evidence of the truth of the above statement. Dozens of productions, written by experienced dramatists and staged with great expenditure of thought and money by veteran theatrical managers, have failed to earn a dollar, while others from the pens of hitherto unknown authors and inexpensively staged by newcomers in the producing game have made hundreds of thousands.

Unquestionably the biggest dramatic success of the season of 1914-15 is "On Trial," the work of a hitherto unknown playwright. This drama, which has already played more than forty weeks on Broadway to an average weekly businesss of $10,000, was picked by Arthur Hopkins, one of the youngest producing managers in America.

Hopkins did not have enough money to make the production alone, so he interested Messrs. Cohan & Harris in it, and the play was launched under their management. But to him must nevertheless go the credit of picking the biggest winner of the season—a lucky stroke which has already netted him $50,000. For in addition to the New York company presenting the piece there have been two companies on the road, one of which has had a 25-week season in Chicago. Next season four companies of "On Trial" will tour the country.

Consider now the part played by the Goddess of Chance in this production. Elmer L. Reizenstein, the young law clerk who wrote the piece, left copies of the manuscript with both Selwyn & Co. and Arthur Hopkins. When he went to learn the fate of his play he first visited the Selwyn offices. Crosby Gaige, with whom he had left the play, was out, so he turned his footsteps to Hopkins' office. Hopkins was in and informed him that his work was accepted. Contracts were signed that same day between the young playwright and the young producer, without either of them being aware that Selwyn & Co. would have taken the piece had Gaige been in his office when Reizenstein called.

Several other successes on Broadway have played to much bigger busines than "On Trial," but because of the small cost of its production, its inexpensive cast and the limited number of cut-rate tickets sold, its weekly average of $10,000 has brought big returns to Cohan & Harris as well as to Arthur Hopkins and Elmer L. Reizenstein. It has already netted for the partners more than $150,000, while Reisenstein's royalties have passed the $30,000 mark.

This success, coupled with that of "It Pays to Advertise," have made Cohan & Harris the biggest winners of the season among theatrical firms. George M. Cohan's pet brain-child, "The Miracle Man," lost money; "The Big Idea" was a losing venture, and "Hello Broadway," despite its big success, did not make much because of the big salary and percentage which Willie Collier received. But "It Pays to Advertise," which is still on the boards, has been almost as profitable as "On Trial." And, like "On Trial," it is the work of a playwright who was practically unknown before its production. There is another point of resemblance between the two in that an "outsider" has "a piece" of the show—to drop into the vernacular of Broadway. Selwyn & Co., the theatrical firm with which Roi Cooper Megrue, its author, is associated, participates in its profits, but the major part of the winnings go to Cohan & Harris.

Jean Webster, author of "Daddy Long-Legs."

In fact, the season of 1914-15 has been a record-breaker for this firm, for four companies of "The Seven Keys to Baldpate" and Raymond Hitchcock in "The Beauty Shop" all made money on the road.

The biggest individual winner, of course, is Charles Dillingham, whose two productions, "Chin Chin" and "Watch Your Step," have been the musical comedy hits of the year. "Chin Chin," which is still holding the boards at the Globe Theater, has played to $18,000 weekly for 36 weeks—which is all the more remarkable because the Globe seats only 1100. Mr. Dillingham has been particularly fortunate with this play, because he controls the Globe Theater, as well as the show, so he has not had to divide his winnings except with his backers. Of course, the expenses of a big musical production like "Chin Chin" are in the neighborhood of $7000 a week, the theater $2500 more, but before it finishes its New York season it will have given Mr. Dillingham a profit of approximately $250,000.

"Watch Your Step" played to even bigger business during the earlier weeks of its five months' run at the New Amsterdam, but 45 per cent of its receipts were taken by the theater management, Mr. Dillingham paying the expenses of the company out of his 55 per cent of the receipts. As the show was quite as expensive as "Chin Chin" it will be seen that, even when it played to $18,000 and $20,000 a week, Mr. Dillingham's profits were not extraordinary. And during the last few weeks, when business dropped off, the show was actually run at a loss. However, its tremendous New York vogue has made it an extremely valuable piece of theatrical property for next season on the road.

Next to Charles Dillingham comes D. W. Griffith, whose motion picture production of "The Birth of a Nation" has proved such a sensation. By leasing the Liberty Theater outright, Griffith is keeping all the profits to himself. He was anxious to put the picture in the theater on the usual percentage basis, but Messrs. Klaw & Erlanger refused, thinking that it would not attract patronage at $2 prices. Their decision made Griffith one of the big winners of the year.

"The Birth of a Nation" has played to more than $10,000 weekly since February, and its expenses, including the lease of the theater, orchestra and advertising, are less than half that sum. The picture is also being shown in Chicago, San Francisco and Boston in first-class playhouses, which have also been leased outright by the producer, and as the receipts in these cities are averaging the same as in New York, it will be seen that Griffith is piling up a weekly profit of approximately $20,000.

Until he tempted fate by asking Broadway prices for "The Birth of a Nation" no one believed that the theater going public would pay $2 to see a moving picture. He played the game and won.

Next to Cohan & Harris in the list of winners comes the new firm of Selwyn & Co. Its biggest money maker is "Under Cover," which is still playing at the Cort Theater. Despite the introduction of cut-rate tickets, this play has averaged between $9000 and $10,000 weekly on a season of nearly forty weeks. And "Twin Beds," a farce, which it bought from William Harris Jr. for a song, has already made over $100,000. Its inexpensive cast has contributed largely to this. When it was originally produced by the younger Harris it failed to attract audiences in paying numbers, but by selling cut-rate tickets, Selwyn & Co. has made it into a big commercial success.

Neither "The Lie," in which Margaret Illington appeared for several months at the Harris Theater, nor "The Show Shop" made any appreciable amount of money. Both were kept alive by cut-rate tickets, but their long runs on Broadway may make them valuable on the road next season.

Selwyn & Co. has had two bad failures in "The Money Makers," by Charles Klein, and "The Salamander," by Owen Johnson. Both of these productions were looked upon as sure-fire hits, but the theater-goingpublic would not have them. However, the financial losses caused by these two were very small compared with the profits from several companies of "Within the Law;" two companies of "Under Cover" and three companies of "Twin Beds," which toured the country under the Selwyn direction. And it must not be forgotten that Selwyn & Co. has an interest in "It Pays to Advertise," one of the big money makers of the season.

Among the individual winners Henry Miller stands high with "Daddy Long-Legs." In fact, this play has made almost as much money at the Gaiety Theater as "On Trial" at the Candler, or "Under Cover" at the Cort. And until its road production, in which Mr. Miller was appearing, was destroyed by fire in Toronto, it was equally successful out of town. This little play has not been advertised about as a great success, but it has been tremendously popular, and, because of its inexpensive cast, has made an unusually large profit, probably $100,000.

Another actor-manager who picked a winner this season is Joe Weber. His production of "The Only Girl" has run more than thirty weeks, and for a large part of the time the business averaged between $8000 and $9000 weekly.

Aside from "The Girl From Utah," which has been the biggest musical comedy hit excepting only "Chin Chin," the late Charles Frohman did not have any big financial successes in New York this season. The revivals of "Diplomacy" and "A Celebrated Case," both played to crowded houses, but the big salary rolls wiped out most of his profits. However, on the road the Frohman office has had the biggest season in years. "The Girl From Utah," Maude Adams, Billie Burke and most of the other Frohman stars have made money.

And it must not be forgotten that Charles Frohman was a silent partner in many other successful theatrical enterprises. For many years he was associated in the various ventures of Charles Dillingham, and it is more than likely that he was interested in "Chin Chin" and "Watch Your Step."

As far as new productions were concerned Klaw & Erlanger had a disastrous season. "The Dragon's Claw" and "Fads and Fancies" were two very costly ventures in which that firm was heavily interested. And David Belasco did little more than keep his theater open with "The Phantom Rival" and "Marie-Odile." Both plays were highly praised by the critics, but "The Phantom Rival" closed soon after it took to the road and "Marie-Odile" failed to make any large amount of money.

Cut-rate tickets kept alive most of the William A. Brady, Shubert and Al Woods productions, which were hailed as successes in New York. In the case of "The Song of Songs," a cut-rate ticket man guaranteed Woods an amount sufficient to cover the expenses of the production and the theater for a period of weeks and sold tickets at half price to make a little profit himself.

Among the playwrights J. Hartley Manners is the biggest money maker this season. His royalties from the eight "Peg of My Heart" companies have been considerably over $100,000 and, in addition, the play is a big success in London. In New York the honors in this respect must go to Roi Cooper Megrue, whose two plays, "Under Cover" and "It Pays to Advertise," have had all season runs. His royalties from the two plays, including the road companies, have been in the neighborhood of $50,000. Miss Jean Webster, the author of "Daddy Long-Legs," has drawn upward of $30,000 in royalties.

It is a significant fact that the three biggest dramatic winners of the season on Broadway—"On Trial," "Under Cover" and "Daddy Long-Legs"—were written by playwrights who had never had a "success." Two of the three, in fact, had never before had a play produced, while Augustus Thomas, Charles Klein, Eugene Walter and Paul Armstrong did not have a single "success" to their credit.

Experience seems to count for very little when it comes to picking winners on Broadway.

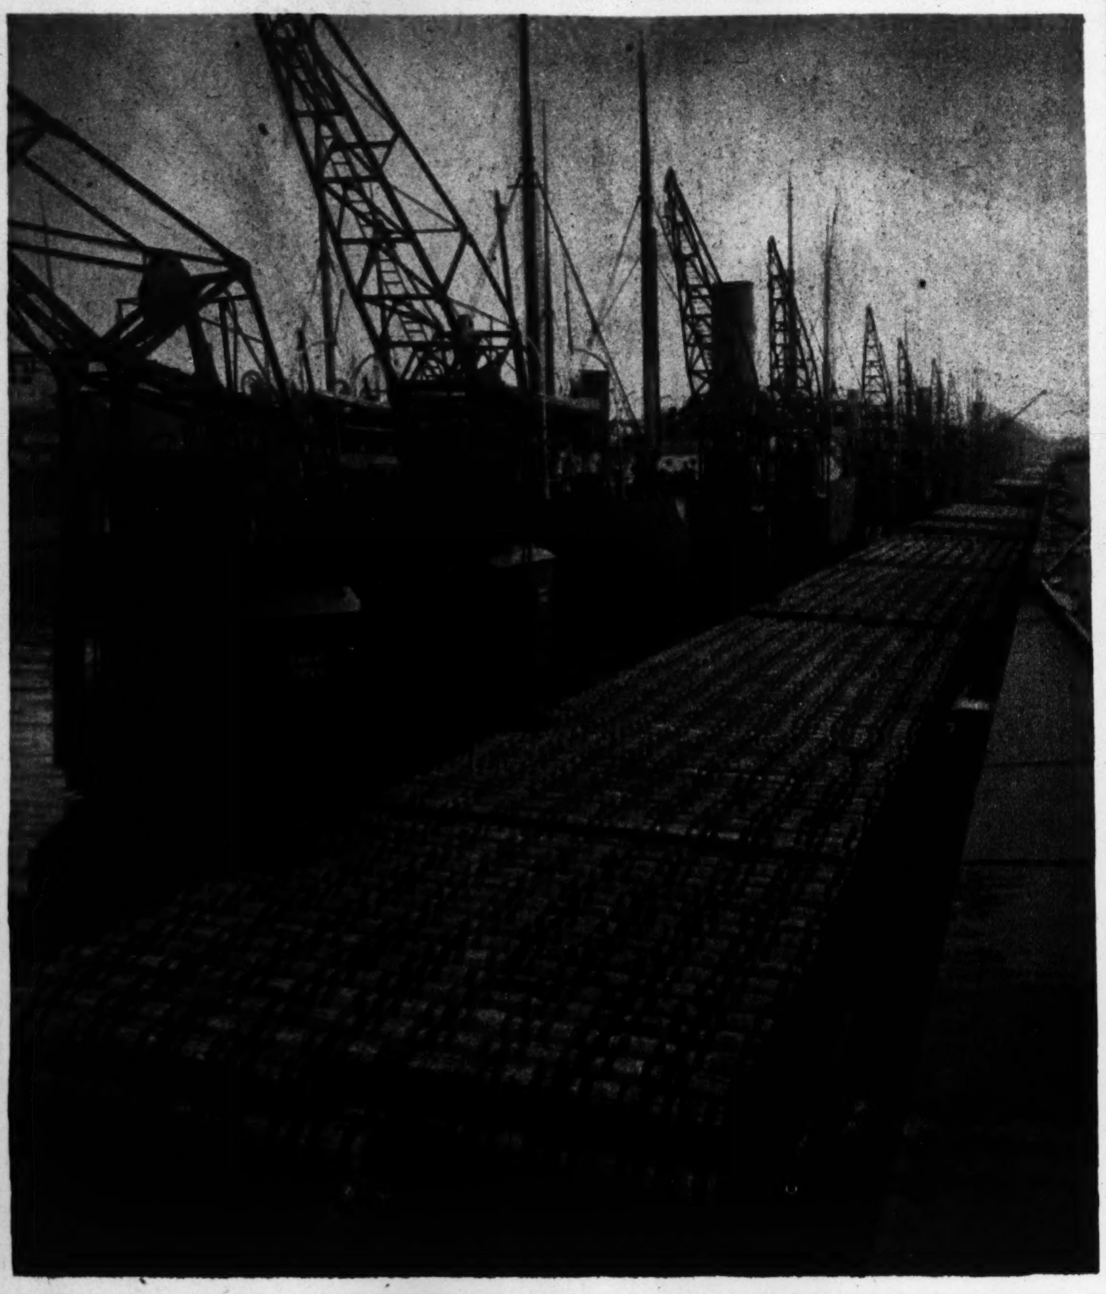
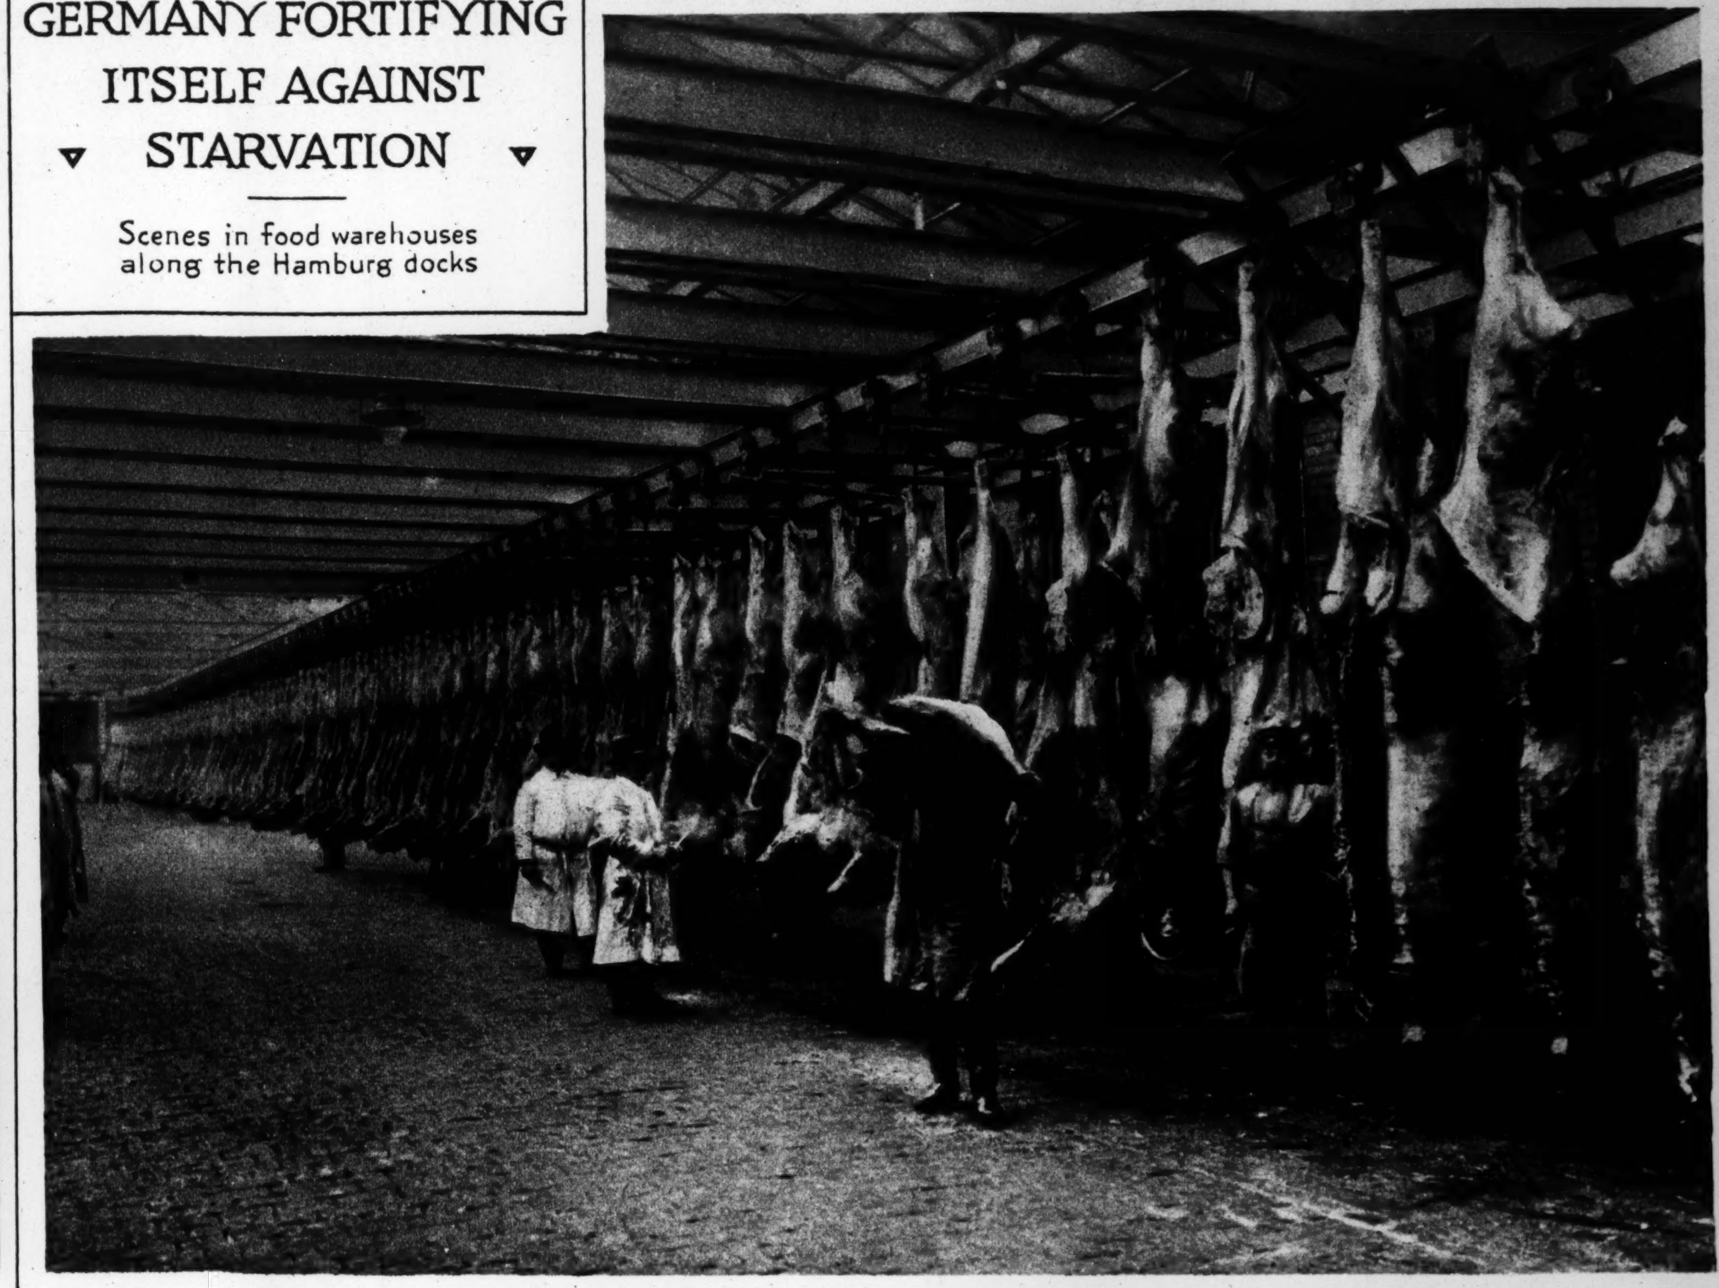
GERMANY FORTIFYING ITSELF AGAINST STARVATION

Scenes in food warehouses along the Hamburg docks



82,000 barrels of herring on this one pier and fisherman are constantly bringing more. Notice movable cranes for quick unloading of boats.



Municipal slaughter house in Luebeck, near Hamburg, Germany, on April 10.

Fishermen's boats loaded with fresh herring.

WHY YES, I'VE SOME OLD THINGS LYING AROUND—WAIT A MINUTE!
I'LL GIVE YOU FIFTY CENTS FOR THIS VEST!
OH, I COULDN'T SELL THAT—IT BELONGS TO HAWKSHAW!
TWO DOLLARS! THREE DOLLARS!!
GIVE ME TEN DOLLARS AND YOU CAN HAVE IT—WAIT TILL I LOOK THROUGH THE POCKETS!
I'M SOME BUSINESS MAN TO TALK THAT DUFFER OUT OF TEN DOLLARS FOR THAT OLD VEST OF HAWKSHAW'S!
$10
I MADE TEN DOLLARS FOR YOU, HAWKSHAW!
HOW'S THAT, COLONEL?
GREAT SCOTT!
OH VERY SIMPLE! I SOLD THAT OLD PLAID VEST OF YOURS TO A FOOL OF AN OLD-CLOTHES MAN THAT DROPPED IN!
QUICK!
HE HAS THE START OF US! I MUST TELEPHONE! GIVE ME A DESCRIPTION OF HIM!
HELLO! CHOW CHOW EMBASSY? LOOK OUT FOR A DANGEROUS CRIMINAL! DON'T LET HIM GET NEAR THE AMBASSADOR! HOLD HIM FOR ME!
I MUST SEE THE AMBASSADOR!
NOSSING DOING! NO DANGELOUS LUNATICS ALLOWED!
CHOW CHOW EMBASSY
I'LL TAKE CHARGE OF THE PRISONER NOW!
NOW THEN, PROFESSOR, I'LL THANK YOU FOR THAT PAPER YOU TOOK FROM IT'S HIDING PLACE IN THE LINING OF MY VEST!
ASTOUNDING!
AH, COLONEL, THAT IS A SECRET WHICH THE AMBASSADOR FROM CHOW CHOW WOULD GIVE MILLIONS TO HEAR! YOU LITTLE KNOW, COLONEL, HOW NEAR YOU CAME TO PLUNGING OUR COUNTRY INTO WAR WHEN YOU SOLD THAT VEST!
HAWKSHAW OFFICE
BUT WHAT WAS IN THAT PAPER THAT MADE IT SO IMPORTANT TO GET IT BACK?

Mr. Hubby---His Wife Is at the Epicurean Club
